MAYOR LEADS IN THE CITY

But His Plurality Is Steadily Dropping—Lewis Renominated by Democrats.

HARRIS BEATS HARDWICK

Candidate Indorsed by Wilson Wins in Georgia Over Man President Condemned.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—Medill McCormick has won the Republican nomination for United States Senator by a plurality over Mayor William Hale Thompson that seems likely to exceed 50,000. Incomplete returns from typical down-State districts indicate a landslide vote for McCormick outside of Cook county. These returns indicate that he has carried the down-State regions by a plurality of about 71,000.

In Chicago, the incomplete returns placed Thompson in the lead from the start, but by a constantly diminishing margin. On the basis of police returns from approximately one-third of the city precincts, Thompson had a plurality of 22,000 over McCormick in Chicago. With half of the returns in, Thompson's plurality had dropped to 9,475. Early in the evening the incomplete figures, when carried out, put Thompson from 30 to 40,000 votes to the good in Chicago. The drop has been constant, and so marked that it is not conceded that he has carried Chicago.

Down State the early returns indicated that Thompson carried Monroe county, the heart of down-State pro-Germanism, and possibly Adams and Kankakee counties. Congressman George E. Foss has taken Lake and McLean counties, for Governor. The rest of the thirty-five so far reporting have gone to McCormick by large margins.

Returns from 492 precincts out of 2,973 down State gave McCormick 21,105, and Thompson 9,535.

Senator Lewis Renominated.

On the Democratic side, Senator James Hamilton Lewis had easy sailing. He was renominated, there being no opposition.

A rainy day kept many voters away. The voting was light. In Chicago the downpour is estimated to have kept from 40,000 to 50,000 electors away from the polls. On the basis of one-third of the precincts the total vote in the city is indicated as about 138,000, as against 131,000 two years ago.

Indications from the incomplete figures are that Mayor Thompson lost his home ward, the Twenty-third, by a considerable margin to McCormick. In other north side wards, however, where the German vote is large, the Mayor walked away with precinct after precinct by large pluralities. A striking analogy is discernible between the Thompson vote in these sections and the vote polled for the Socialist anti-war judicial ticket last November.

The Twenty-second Ward, which went Socialist last Fall by 600, seems to have gone to Thompson on the incomplete returns. So has the Twenty-fourth, which went by 1,500 to the anti-war Judicial Socialist ticket in November.

As for Foss, down-State he seems to be running neck and neck with Thompson for second place. In Chicago his indicated vote is small. With one-third the precincts in, he has only about 10 per cent. of the Republican city vote.

Mayor Thompson said late tonight:

"I deeply appreciate the vote of confidence given to my administration as Mayor of Chicago and to the principles which I presented to the people of the State in my candidacy for the United States Senate in the Republican primaries."

An hour or so before that the Mayor had given out this informal statement:

cerely believe in the principles presented erely believe in the principles presented to the people in my campaign. It looks as if the people also believe in these principles and are voting accordingly. I am naturally highly elated. Nothing better could be asked for than the figures now in front of me."

Congressional Results.

Ex-Governor Richard Yates ran away in the primary race for the nomination for Congressman at Large. Early returns from down-State districts gave him almost as many votes as his two nearest competitors combined.

For the second nomination for Congressman at Large William E. Mason appears to have been successful by a narrow margin.

Congressman Fred A. Britten of the Ninth District within an hour after the polls closed claimed to have defeated Fletcher Dobyns, who waged a loyalist campaign, by a big vote. Meagre returns indicate that Dobyns has lost by a fair-sized margin.

American Escapes from Foe, Bombarding Them with Rocks

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 10— (Associated Press.)—Rocks and a steady nerve saved a private of an American division in the Toul sector who was taken prisoner by German raiders recently, but who escaped and returned to his own lines. The Germans were particularly exasperated at losing the prisoner because they had vainly sought to capture and hold at least one man from the division opposing them. But this one slipped through their fingers.

The American was carried to the German trenches after having been surrounded. Suddenly he broke away and ran. The Germans did not fire because they feared they might hit each other. The American stumbled into a shell crater and bombarded his pursuers with rocks. One of the Germans leaped into the hole alongside of him, but the American killed him with a trench knife, then dashed from shellhole to shellhole until he reached the American lines.

READY TO ENROLL 13,000,000 TODAY

Crowder Issues Final Call to All Between 18 and 45 Who Have Not Registered.

"SLACKERS MUST RESPOND"

Baruch Appeals to Employers to Help the Boards in Classifying Workmen.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Final instructions were sent out today for the draft registration tomorrow and General Crowder received assurance from all district boards that they were making the fullest preparations to meet the situation. It is estimated that approximately 13,000,000 men will register. In that event, the Provost Marshal General announced, about 23,400,000 men would have registered since June 5, 1917.

From this number General Crowder feels confident the great army of 4,000,000 or more which the United States must place in France by June 30 of next year can be supplied without disrupting the industrial strength of the nation to an extent which will hamper the production of shipping, munitions, and other supplies, on a basis essential to equip the overseas forces.

A War Department statement today gave definite assurance that several of the cantonments would be expanded to accommodate a considerably larger number of recruits than heretofore had been contemplated. The figures given showed that immediate expansions would provide for 77,000 more men at an expenditure by the Government of $29,270,542. It is said th they will cover the induction of anywhere from 80,000 to 150,000 men on a single call before Spring.

Camps to Be Expanded.

Camp.	Proposed Increase.	Probable Cost.
Lee	9,000	$3,501,600
Gordon	6,000	2,240,000
Pike	11,000	4,884,660
MacArthur	*	96,000
Taylor	*	*
Custer	14,000	4,814,820
Sherman	10,000	3,389,197
Dodge	7,000	2,835,210

*Not estimated.

Other changes decided upon are to remove the Tank Training School now at Gettysburg, Penn., to Raleigh, N. C. The Depot Brigade now at Camp Jackson will be sent to Camp Sevier. The Depot Brigade at Camp Gordon will go to Camp McClellan and the Infantry School of Arms now at Camp Sill to Columbus, Ga.

These expansions and changes forecast, it is believed, much larger developments of cantonments and training schools of all kinds if the situation demands. In military circles it is believed that plans of this kind will be forwarded on a considerably larger scale by early Spring.

In a final statement to all men between the ages of 18 and 46 years who must register tomorrow General Crowder said:

"Upon every man between the ages of 18 to 45 years, both inclusive, not heretofore registered or not already in active military and naval service, rests the obligation to register today, (Thursday, Sept. 12.)

"Through this registration it is proposed to enroll the names of approximately 13,000,000 men not heretofore subject to the draft.

Census of Man Power.

"This task completed, America will have taken a census of its available man power. With this enrollment and the registrations of June 5, 1917, June 5, 1918, and August 24, 1918, we shall have placed in this reservoir the names of approximately 23,400,000 men. From these we select, choosing for the army those best suited, physically and by

WHITE GUARDS IN VOLOGDA

Town Burned by Reds Before They Evacuated It—Petrograd Reported in Flames.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—American troops have been safely landed at Archangel, the headquarters and supply base of the Allied Expeditionary Forces now operating in the northern part of European Russia, and working their way steadily down the railroad line toward Vologda.

The fact that the army had dispatched soldiers from France to Archangel has been known in inner military circles in Washington for the last three weeks, but not until news of the safe arrival of the men was received did General March authorize publication of the fact that any forces whatever had been sent to that part of the world.

The official announcement reads as follows:

By order of General March, the safe arrival of American troops at Archangel is announced.

The size of the force is withheld for military reasons. It is not permissible to disclose the identity of the units. The forces sent from this country and the Philippines to Vladivostok for participation in the Siberian operations, however, are made up of regulars, and it is believed that the expedition sent to North Russia is also one of regulars.

British and French forces were landed at Kola and Archangel some time ago, and recently several contingents of Italian troops joined them. Simultaneously General Pershing selected units for dispatch by sea around the Scandinavian and arctic coasts to Archangel. The American forces were convoyed just as if sent across the Atlantic to France, for German submarines have been operating off the northern coasts and in the arctic.

Some months ago it was reported that American troops were co-operating with the allied forces in North Russia, but it developed that they were Marines disembarked from United States warships. The present contingent is the first sent by the army.

American forces are now in European Russia and Siberia, on the Flanders front of Belgium, on the French front, on German soil where the western line crosses the lower part of Alsace near the Swiss border, and on the Italian front.

ARCHANGEL, Sept. 4, (Associated Press.)—American troops have arrived safely at Archangel. Many of them speak the Russian language fluently.

Most of these troops are from States where the Winters are like those in Russia. Their voyage was quick and tranquil. The men suffered few discomforts, except that there was a heavy list of seasick.

More allied troops are urgently needed if the Russo-allied campaign in Northern Russia is to be carried to speedy success, in the opinion of virtually every officer and civilian observer here.

The Russian Winter will soon be at hand, and before that time it is hoped to reach the hard-pressed Czechoslovaks, establish a front against the Germans, and open an uninterrupted line of communication from Vladivostok to Archangel through Vologda. The available forces have been sufficient to defeat much superior numbers of Bolsheviki, but it is pointed out that the necessity for more troops is not so much a question of maintaining the front as of impressing the peasants and convincing them that sufficient power is at hand to insure final victory.

The peasants, for the most part, are extremely friendly to the Allies and anxious to aid in the movement, but fear to join the army because they are apprehensive that the Russo-allied forces are not sufficiently strong, and that the peasantry which aided the Russo-allied movement would be slaughtered if by chance the Bolsheviki were victorious.

The Russo-allied leaders feel certain of important results if the forces at their disposal are sufficient. When they reach the thickly populated provinces there are large Russian forces organized and waiting to join them, but while they are manoeuvring through the thinly populated swamps of the north the chief reliance must be upon the allied troops themselves.

The Austro-German direction of the Bolshevist forces is daily increasing in scope. Near Kotlas there are known to be twenty German officers organizing the artillery.

Killing of Ex-Czar's Family by Bolsheviki Again Reported

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The Daily Express claims to have unquestionable information that the former Empress of Russia and her four daughters have been murdered by Bolsheviki. The paper prints the following:

"The Express understands from a source which is beyond doubt that the Empress of Russia and her four daughters have been murdered by Bolsheviki. The whole immediate family of the late Czar has thus been exterminated.

"It is further understood that the Dowager Empress, who, with her daughter and son-in-law, the Duke of Oldenburg, has been staying at Yalta, was recently attacked by Red Guards, who sought to kill all three. Sailors of the Black Sea fleet intervened and fought the Red Guards.

"For a full fortnight the fight continued, until the Red Guards were beaten. It is now understood that the Dowager Empress is safe."

Various previous reports of the killing of the ex-Czar's family have been denied.

The four daughters of the former Emperor and Empress of Russia are: Grand Duchess Olga, born in 1895; Grand Duchess Tatiana, born in 1897; Grand Duchess Marie, born in 1899, and Grand Duchess Anastasie, born in 1901.

2,800 ESCAPE U-BOAT ATTACK

Liner Persic, Carrying American Soldiers, Torpedoed, but No Lives Are Lost.

QUICK AID BY DESTROYERS

Run Alongside and Men Drop on Decks—Ship Beached and U-Boat Probably Sunk.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A troopship with 2,800 American soldiers on board has been torpedoed. All hands were saved. The troopship was beached.

The vessel was torpedoed 200 miles from shore at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon. She was a unit of a large convoy approaching the English coast.

In order to save time, instead of launching the boats the men clambered down ropes to destroyers which swarmed around the stricken vessel and came close alongside. This operation was greatly facilitated by the fact that the sea was not rough. The transfer of the soldiers from the stricken vessel to escorting British and American torpedo boat destroyers was quickly made without injury to any one. They all escaped injury when the torpedo exploded and were soon on their way to a British port. There was no sign of panic on board and the admirable behavior of the men was especially gratifying to the officers.

Many of the troops came from Chicago and Cleveland, and a large percentage of them were factory hands of foreign extraction. Their behavior proved that they had assimilated the true spirit of the American soldier.

Several soldiers told The Associated Press correspondent that they saw the German submarine lifted clear out of the water after one of the depth bombs exploded and then entirely disappear.

Something had gone wrong with the troopship's engines which compelled her for a time to lag behind the rest of the convoy, but the trouble had been fixed up and she was fast catching up with the other transports when a torpedo hit her just forward of the engine room. The vessel at once began to sink by the bow. Many of the soldiers at the time were taking baths. They did not wait to dress, but made for the deck with what little clothing they could hastily lay their hands on. The water was rushing in at such a rate that it was thought the steamer would quickly founder.

To the surprise of most of the soldiers the troopship did not sink. Some means apparently were found to check the inrush of water and she got near enough to the shore to be beached. It is hoped that the vessel ultimately can be salved.

Men Safe in Rest Camp.

AN INLAND REST CAMP IN ENGLAND, Tuesday, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—The majority of the 2,800 American soldiers from the troopship which was torpedoed last Friday off the English coast, but was not sunk and upon which there were no casualties, have arrived here none the worse for their thrilling experience. The men are finding some consolation for the loss of their vessel in the assurance that the submarine that attacked her suffered a far worse fate at the hands of the avenging destroyers, which were speedily on the scene hunting the U-boat with depth charges.

To aid in caring for the men here the American Red Cross rushed in large quantities of supplies from London.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, Sept. 11.—Heavy outpost fighting is still in progress east and north of Péronne, where the enemy is strengthening his rearguards and resisting the advance of our troops more doggedly. He has a considerable amount of artillery in position again, with which he is shelling our advance lines and villages, like Fins and Equancourt a.d places south of Epehy, where there was similar fighting in the Spring of last year, when he retreated for the first time over this ground.

Our brave outposts are not having an easy time round about Gouzeaucourt and on Chapel Hill, where the enemy has made some strong counterattacks, and their progress has been checked here and there by severe machine gun fire from the German positions. Nevertheless the English, Welsh, New Zealand, and Australian troops have advanced their lines again during the last forty-eight hours, and taken a good many prisoners after sharp encounters. The enemy is falling back before them when our pressure warns the German rearguards that they must escape by further withdrawal or suffer heavy losses.

It seems probable that the main Hindenburg line east of all this rearguard activity is now held in strength by divisions that have been partly rested and reorganized, the best troops anyhow that the German command can now bring into line, while the divisions broken in the recent battles are falling back through them.

Enemy Gains a Little Respite.

So, for the time being, the enemy gains a little respite, and after the wild chaos of recent days, when, in spite of great skill in leadership, his forces became hopelessly confused, he may hope to order his defensive positions according to the old traditions of stationary warfare and repair the damage inflicted on the morale of his men by assuring them that the gravest dangers are past.

It will not be easy to do that, for the German soldiers are beginning to think more acutely for themselves and draw conclusions from the evidence of their own eyes. There comes a point in all conflicts when masses of men who have been falsely led to believe in victory suddenly awake to the awful truth that all their labors and suffering, all their sacrifice of blood, and all their hopes have been in vain and that their remaining strength is of no avail against the powers opposing them.

That point in time and thought has been reached by large numbers of German soldiers after the frightful disillusionment of their excited hope that the grand offensive of March would break through the enemy's will power and war machine and bring peace at last.

Even then, as I wrote at the time, it needed supreme persuasion by their officers to convince them that this possibility was within their strength. There were many who refused to believe they could break us and turned deaf ears and cold hearts

Germans Are Using Women as Air Fighters; One Killed in Machine Brought Down by American

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 11. (Associated Press.)—That the Germans are using women as military aviators is indicated in a report that in a machine recently brought down by the Americans the pilot, who was killed, was a woman.

The Captain of a company of the 167th Infantry says the pilot of a German plane brought down near Sergy Aug. 28 by Lieutenant Miller Thompson of the American air force was a woman. The discovery of the sex of the aviator was made, the Captain says, when his men buried the enemy pilot and her observer.

FRENCH ARE EAGER FOR NEW ADVANCE

Causes of Delay in Following Up Victory Last Year Are Overcome.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—From the viewpoint of a non-French observer the spiritual and mental physiognomy of Paris today is remarkable. We are at what is universally admitted to be a comparative pause in the mighties aggressive military effort the world has ever seen.

After eight weeks of continuous victories the armies that the Germans believed to be hopelessly weakened and incapable of further effort have recovered, by sheer hard fighting, an enormous extent of territory which the German military machine at the height of its efficiency required more than double that period to conquer. The Allies now find themselves faced by a still tremendously powerful adversary, strongly intrenched in positions which he believes, or did until recently, to be impregnable.

The soul of Paris today, however, regards the future with more serene confidence than at any previous moment since the war began. Gone is all the vague unrest that vexed and disturbed the nation for nearly four long years. The wild rumors that formerly ran through the city almost hourly are nonexistent. If anything of the kind is mentioned, it is promptly suppressed as the work of some enemy agent operating in subtle and devious ways.

Paris Trusts Its Leaders.

Clemenceau's leadership of the nation is acclaimed by all, even by his political foes. The supreme military skill of Foch and the inestimable boon which unity of command has conferred on the Allies are realized keenly by the humblest ragpicker in the city. The whole mass of the population is as one as to the entire justice of our side in the war and the certainty of the coming victory.

In spite of the fact that humanitarianism is one of the most deeply rooted features of French mentality, there is no evidence here of the virus of bogus pacifism. The vigorous action of Clemenceau, in the full knowledge that he has the whole nation behind him since he took office, has drained the last taints of this poison from the constitution of the nation. Politically and morally today, the Paris front is impregnable. And in this, whatever may be the case under other circumstances, Paris stands for the whole of France.

With a spirit of this kind, the famous Hindenburg line, which the enemy admittedly succeeded in elevating to the rank of a nightmare a year ago, has no terror for French opinion today. No illusions are felt as to the formidable nature of the defensive positions into which the enemy has been now driven, but in the French mind the whole meaning of what is somewhat loosely termed the Hindenburg line has undergone a complete change. Today it is regarded here merely as a series of positions, most of which are undoubtedly strong, but no more to be feared than any of dozens of strong defensive positions which have been overcome by Foch and the allied Generals and their troops during the last two months.

Allies Closely Pursue Foe.

It is now realized here that the basic factor in the great Hindenburg retreat of last year was not so much the inherent strength of the positions of the line to which the enemy then retired

CITY FIRST WAS LOOTED

Wanton Destruction Described by Woman Who Hid in Cellar Till French Came.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Sept. 10.—For pure wantonness of destruction, Ham offers an example that even the Germans will find it hard to beat. More than ever it is necessary that America support the demands which have been strongly taken up by the French press—that Germany be formally warned of the consequences of non-military acts of vandalism.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent visited Ham today and walked through street after street of fire-swept houses. At frequent intervals the wind still blew smoldering embers into a blaze, and the crash of falling walls was heard continuously. The boches had fired the town, which was practically uninjured by shell-fire of friend and foe, with deliberate thoroughness, despite the fact that its position on what was virtually an island, formed by the Somme River on the north and the St. Quentin Canal on the south, made it unavailable for military purposes once the bridges were destroyed. I crossed the canal by clambering across the lock gate that had escaped destruction, and passed out on the further side by a tottering series of foot-wide planks spanning the riverbed.

Chauny Street, leading to the market place, was piled high with the wreckage of fallen walls, and at the entrance to the square a group of poilus were risking their lives in clearing the outlet of a cellar in a house whose glowing beams still crackled into flame at each gust of wind and whose side walls were bound to fall at any minute.

"We have just spoken with one of the municipal clerks who emerged only half an hour ago from a cellar behind the Court House," said their leader. "He had an idea that there were two civilian refugees here, and we hope to save them. I fear several must have been trapped by the masses of débris in different parts of the city."

Hid for Days in Cellar.

I waited until the work was completed, but the cellar proved empty.

The soldiers stated that the civilian in the Court House cellar had been there since Wednesday night with nothing to eat or drink save a half pound bag of wheat ears taken from the fields and a quart bottle of water. Though his provisions were exhausted on Saturday it was only this morning that he ventured to leave his hiding place through fear lest he be shot if the town were still in the hands of the enemy, for having disobeyed the order of evacuation posted on Wednesday. When he saw the horizon blue uniforms he broke down and wept from weakness and emotion.

A few minutes later I talked with a woman named Léonie Verrier, who had similarly hidden with her father and 15-year-old sister. Dwelling on the western outskirts of the town, they had ventured to creep out on Saturday morning, only to find

FRENCH REPULSE ATTACKS

Smash Repeated Attempts to Check Their Thrust Against Chemin des Dames.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Northwest of St. Quentin the British in local operations today advanced their line north of Epehy, [which is immediately to the south of Peizières.] Similar gains were made west of St. Quentin in the neighborhood of Vermand.

Sharp fighting occurred last night and was continued today near Gouzeaucourt, [between Havrincourt Wood and Peizières.] The Germans captured one of the British posts in the night attack. Another attempt made this afternoon was repulsed by machine-gun fire.

North of the Arras-Cambrai Road a German counterattack at Ecourt-St. Quentin was repulsed last night after a fierce engagement.

The German artillery is reported to be active this evening in the Havrincourt Wood sector.

Northwest of Hulluch [north of Lens] the British today captured prisoners in local engagements and established posts in the enemy's former positions.

The night bulletin from the French War Office announces the repulse of German counterattacks around Laffaux [where American troops are co-operating with the French under General Mangin on the western outskirts of the Chemin des Dames region] and near Roupy, [southwest of St. Quetin.]

Otherwise the French official reports note only artillery activity at various points on the Aisne and Vesle fronts and in Champagne.

It is unofficially reported that the French hold the La Fère-St. Quentin Road from the former town to Travecy, two miles to the north, and that they have occupied the wooded region of Vendeuil, about four and one-half miles north of La Fère, on the same highway.

On their front south of the Aisne the Americans have shelled German machine-gun nests so effectively that the infantry has been enabled to make slight advances at several points, notably northeast of Glennes and Revillon. Between Vieil Arcy and Villers-en-Prayeres the Americans command the low ground to the south bank of the river.

OUR SHELLS DEMOLISH GERMAN MACHINE GUNS

Infantry Gains Ground on the Aisne Under Cover of Merciless Fire.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 11, (Associated Press.)—The Americans today manoeuvred cautiously along the Vesle front over the rain-soaked battlefield where the Germans Tuesday night had sent hundreds of gas shells. The infantrymen improved their positions at few places. Owing to the wet ground the gas remained longer than usual. The rain hindered operations more than the shells.

The Germans Tuesday night and at intervals Wednesday shelled the hills just south of the Vesle, but the French and American artillerymen returned two projectiles for every one the Germans fired.

The Americans and French continued today to pound the La Petite Montagne tableland and the German machine-gun positions along the hills

Northeast of Revillon, but more rain in the afternoon slowed down the operations.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE FRONT, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—The Americans poured shells into the hills northeast of Glennes and Revillon in such quantities today that the German machine gunners were compelled to take cover. During such intervals the American infantrymen made slight advances at several places.

The chief point of contention for the Americans continues to be La Petite Montagne, where the Germans are not only intrenched but have dug in from the trench bottoms as additional protection against the heavy guns of the French and Americans.

Despite a downpour of rain Monday night and part of Tuesday, the batteries kept the Germans guessing, and also drove out some snipers and annihilated a few machine-gun nests. The American infantrymen are moving forward along the ravines which slope to the north.

The Germans used a good many gas shells during the early hours of Tuesday, but, like the larger shells, many of them struck in pools of water and failed to explode.

Between Vieil Arcy and Villers-en-Prayeres the Americans command the lowlands to the Aisne. The German machine gunners along the hills to the northeast are being subjected to merciless artillery fire day and night.

AMERICAN FORCES ON THE AISNE FRONT, Sept. 10, (Reuter.)—The Germans this evening were still attacking on the Mont Rouge Plateau with desperate determination. The losses of the enemy in the last three days must have been appalling.

The German attacks, whether directed against Nanteuil, Laffaux, or Vauxaillon, have been for the recovery of the ridge line at Mont de Laffaux, which was captured by General Mangin's troops, with whom the Americans are fighting, before the Germans realized of what immense importance it was to them, or at least before they were able to take adequate steps to defend it.

How the German troops have been hurried here to attempt its recovery is evidenced by the fact that as many as five German regiments were represented among eighty prisoners taken yesterday.

This morning two fresh attacks were launched on either side of Nanteuil. Both were beaten back with severe losses.

Prisoners taken in this region, although they fought remarkably well, all showed complete despondency, and more than one when captured remarked: "Thank God, it's all over!"

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT OF OUR VOSGES LINES

Pershing Reports Repulse of Strong Hostile Raid in Woevre —Our Casualties Light.

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—At 5:30 o'clock this morning the Germans began a heavy artillery action on the American front lines in the Vosges region, sending over some 200 projectiles from their mine throwers and a thousand heavy-calibre shells. At 6:20 o'clock the enemy opened up a strong fire on the communication trenches.

Reports from two observation stations were that sixty Germans were observed entering their own lines with wounded, but no reports from the American front lines had been received at this hour.

Further details of the raid received later showed that storm troops were used. A considerable quantity of material left behind by the enemy forces after they had been beaten off was recovered. It included flame-throwers, helmets, and rifles.

The raid was marked by very severe fighting at close range with grenades and automatic rifles.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Repulse of a strong raid upon American lines in the Woevre sector, undertaken by the enemy to get prisoners for identification purposes, is described in detail in General Pershing's communiqué for Tuesday. The dispatch follows:

HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Sept. 10:

"Section A.—Except for artillery fighting in the Lorraine and in the Vosges the day passed quietly in the sectors occupied by our troops.

"Section B—The following details of a strong hostile raid in the Woevre, reported in American official communique No. 116, have been reported. At 4:30 o'clock morning Sept. 7, approximately 200 enemy infantry, accompanied by twenty pioneers, raided our lines between Fliery and Limey. A box barrage was laid down 200 meters south of the Metz road. The raiding party entered the sector and then rushed the outpost group, which retired, firing toward the enemy. Dividing into three detachments, the enemy tried to encircle this group but a counter-attacking platoon succeeded in routing them successfully, causing them to retire.

"Seven of the enemy were captured, two of whom were wounded. Three of the enemy were killed in their trenches and it is believed there are several others dead in No Man's Land. The combat group states that they saw many enemy wounded being carried off by their own men. Only one of our men was captured and he succeeded in escaping before the enemy could get him back to their lines.

"Interrogation of the prisoners captured established that the raid was made in order to get prisoners for identification of the opposing troops. As no prisoners had been taken for a considerable time, it was decided that a large raiding party should be sent out, made up of units from each regiment of the German division in the sector. Volunteers were asked for, but as none was obtained, men were conscripted for the raid.

"A second hostile raid on the same day in the same sector was also repulsed. Our casualties in the two encounters were exceptionally light."

"HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 11, 1918:

"Section A—In the course of successful raids in Lorraine our detachments penetrated the enemy's trenches, inflicting losses and capturing prisoners. There is nothing else of importance to report."

GERMAN GUNS RUINING ALL SOISSONS CHURCHES

Cathedral and Other Splendid Architectural Monuments Are Systematically Shelled.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 11, (Associated Press.)—Since their defeat by General Mangin the Germans have undertaken the destruction of the architectural masterpieces of Soissons. With the methods previously employed in burning or blowing up every structure in the region out of which they have been driven, they are proceeding with the demolition of churches and other edifices in this town, rich in specimens of the best work of the architects of the thirteenth century.

The Cathedral of St. Gervais is now the principal target. Enormous breaches have been made in the splendid façade. The upper gallery of three-quarters destroyed, while the lower gallery has been wrecked. The statues fall one by one from the tower.

The ancient Abbey of St. Jean-des-Mignes, in which Thomas à Becket spent several years, is also gradually crumbling. Both towers have been decapitated, while the façade has been pierced in many places. The vault has fallen in, and the rich ornamentation of the left tower has disappeared, with the exception of the statues of two saints that remain facing the enemy.

RUIN TOWNS BY SLOW FUSES.

Germans Lay Mines That Explode Weeks After Their Evacuation.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—Prisoners recently captured by the French have thrown light upon the work of destruction undertaken by the retreating Germans with the aid of extremely slow fuses that produce an explosion of mines days and even weeks after the enemy has evacuated a locality.

The same system that destroyed Château Béthancourt, to the west of Guiscard, on Sept. 6, and the cathedral at Nesle shortly afterward, was used freely at Ham and Noyon, and is being utilized by the Germans in preparation for the destruction of villages north and northeast of Rheims.

Prisoners who worked with a detachment of pioneers placing mines under church pillars in that region say that the Germans are making ready to raze all the towns to the ground.

Traps are being laid by use of the same system in the forest of St. Gobain and in the region of Laon, while all the crossroads in those regions, according to the captives, are being heavily mined. Some of these preparations for wholesale destruction are behind the Hindenburg line.

GERMANS HAVE THREE LINES.

Two Ready Behind Hindenburg Line —A Fourth Under Construction.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—The rapidity of the splendid operation that wrested the initiative of the battle from the Germans and drove them behind their defensive lines of 1917 to recuperate their forces and reconstitute their shattered divisions is no longer the proper basis for calculating the speed of progress. The Allies are now in front of obstacles that do not appear on ordinary maps by which the general reader followes changes on the battlefront. No maps show them in all their details, but enough is known of them to reconstitute them in a general way.

First is the Hindenburg line system of field fortifications which the Germans built by the forced labor of prisoners of war and French and Belgian civilians. It runs from Lens southeastward to the Aisne north of Rheims by way of Quéant, St. Quentin, La Fère, and the St. Gobain Forest. It consists of an elaborate system of trenches, multiple lines of barbed wire entanglements, concrete positions for artillery, blockhouses for machine guns, and shelters for the infantry and is further protected by flooded stretches of country where the means were available for that purpose.

The second line of defense runs from the fortress of Lille to the stronghold of Metz, generally parallel with the Hindenburg line, to the region north of Rheims and at distances varying from seven to twenty miles. From Soissons north of Rheims it runs southeastward, joining the old front north of Verdun, and continuing from there to Pagny on the Moselle River south of Metz. There are secondary lines attached to this system, notably along the Escaut (or Scheldt) River from Cambrai north between the valleys of the Oise and the Serre, and northeastward from La Fère along the Suippe River north of Rheims.

A third line of defense runs from the Scarpe River, south of Lille, to the Meuse, near Sedan, then southeastward to the iron region of the basin of Briey, which it protects from the west and the south, and joining the second line at the Moselle. There are secondary defense works to this line also in the region of Vervins.

A fourth line, as yet uncompleted, is intended to furnish a further defense between the Escaut near the Belgian frontier and the Meuse at Givet.

Each one of these lines furnishes a strong refuge for armies obliged to retire upon it. The lines also offer to forces dwindling in numbers the advantage of progressively shortening the battlefront.

The first of the lines has already been broken between Quéant and Drocourt. The development of this success may determine the question whether the Germans can oblige the Allies to revert to trench warfare. The enemy's second line of defense almost touches the Hindenburg line at Cambrai, just below the breach the British forces have made in it. If they are able to join the two lines there the Germans will have an uninterrupted defensive position in which the second line enters for only the distance from Lille to Cambrai, being continued to the Chemin des Dames by the Hindenburg line.

NEW MENACE TO LA FERE.

French Said to Have Taken Travecy, Two Miles North of the Town.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The village of Travecy, near the southern end of the main Hindenburg line, has been captured by the French, according to reports received here. If the French can hold this town the important enemy position at La Fère, a northerly defense of the St. Gobain massif, two miles south of Travecy, will be virtually flanked.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—The Germans have relieved several of their tired divisions in the region of Vauxaillon, on the front north of the Aisne, and with some of their best troops are making a strong effort to stop the further eastward progress of the French. The attempt has been without success, however, as the French forces took some additional lines of trenches in this region today, gaining ground also to the northeast of Laffaux.

Repeated counterattacks in this vicinity were repulsed. The enemy reacted violently north of the Oise, but also without stopping the progress of General Humbert's troops toward the road from La Père to St. Quentin which they now hold from La Père two miles northward to Travecy. The wooded region of Vendeuil also fell into their hands.

NEW FOE GAS SHELL LENGTHENS DANGER

Pumice Stone with Phosgene Causes Fumes to Linger for Twelve Hours.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 11, (Associated Press.)—The latest instrument of German frightfulness in gas is a small shell containing pumice stone and phosgene. The shell is projected by a rifle.

According to French investigators, the combination of pumice stone with the gas greatly increases the length of time that phosgene remains in the vicinity where the shell bursts, and continues to be dangerous.

In accordance with the discovery, the American troops have been cautioned that it may be necessary to wear gas masks for twelve hours after the shells have fallen.

OUTPOST FIGHTING HEAVY

By PHILIP GIBBS.

to the campaign of propaganda in which they were doped by the military and political leaders of Germany, intoxicated themselves by the prospects of their gamble for the highest stakes.

Evidence that Proved Correct.

I wrote all that last February on good evidence, which may have seemed a little false when with their overwhelming numbers of 114 divisions to 48—the figures have been given—against the British front they actually did break through our lines and threaten us with grave disaster.

Then for a time, while that was happening, the German officers said to their men: "What did we tell you?" and they had no answer because of success beyond their first belief. But now, when all that has been washed out, when they are back again in the old places after frightful losses, and when their strength has been so shattered they will never be strong like that again—never again—they have fallen from what optimism was theirs to the depths of black forebodings.

Victory will never be theirs in the field; they know that as a certain fact. They know it so well that when in recent days we captured large numbers of the 2d Guards Division, of which a remnant has just been withdrawn from the line, they desired capture and had no more fighting spirit.

Yet they used to be proud troops, these men of the Franz and Alexandra and Augusta regiments. The Kaiser had no prouder men in his army, nor any more disciplined by training and tradition. Men of the Franz Regiment were brought in first and were miserable, but later, when, after one or two more days of hard fighting, prisoners of the Alexandra and Augusta Regiments marched down in droves through our lines, they were not only pleased at their capture, but actually urged our men to go on attacking and take as many Germans as possible, so that the war would end quickly. Each batch of prisoners was greeted with open delight at our success, as I saw with my own eyes in one part of the field.

Where was your proud Second German Guards? It had gone under pressure of too great a blow which had struck down all their faith and hope.

What Soldiers Say to One Another.

So now queer, grim things are being said by the German soldiers among themselves and written to one another in letters which somehow pass their field censors and fall into our hands—sinister things—and the truth which had long been hidden from them. A non-commissioned officer of the 233d Reserve Infantry Regiment, writing to a comrade in the 3d Reserve Infantry Regiment of the 83d Division as recently as Aug. 20, says:

"I also had to do a retreat in Galicia in 1916, and I know well enough what it means. It is perfectly obvious that you had heavy casualties, for in a retirement of that kind they cannot fail to be heavy. I am only interested as to whether we are going to hold out much longer this Winter.

"In my opinion the English will bring up such a crowd of Americans and other stuff next Spring that we shall be unable to withstand the tremendous pressure. Also our enemies will have such a number of aircraft available that we shall not know where to find cover against this horror.

"Taking it all round we are in a bad way, and now the eastern problem crops up again, and I shall be interested to see whether the English will succeed in starting that madness again there. So far as I can learn we are moving a great many troops to the east."

That unteroffizier of the German Army has written what must be in the minds of hundreds of thousands of his comrades and does not allow his newspapers and the suave words of his politicians to hide the stark truth of Germany's position. The German Army will defend itself for a long time yet on one position or another, but each man in it will know he is fighting a losing war, and that in the end, however far away and whatever the agonies and courage of the men, there will be no joy bells for victory. It is bad knowledge on which to go on fighting.

On our side our men are keen to get this thing done quickly, to make an end of it without letting it drag on for years more of frightful conflict, and the belief in our army, as far as I have been able to test it, is that with the help of the American Army of reserve, strong and fresh, somewhere in France, the end may be quicker than the world believes.

Perhaps that is a false belief, perhaps there must be years more of fighting before the German Nation yields to inevitable things, but I think the hope of our men is the thing that warms them most during these wet days when they are pushing out against the German rearguards and following their retreat.

It is very wet, and the rain is splashing down, so that all our army is in waterproof capes, and the tin hats of the men feel like glass house roofs above their heads, with the tattoo of raindrops on them. Our transport horse are trudging through and splashing the puddles up to their girths, and the mule teams are not so spick and span when they lie down on the old battlefield, looking with cynical eyes at their masters, whose language is of a special kind for mules.

But the sun is bright between the storms at times, and behind the lines, where the last of the wheat sheaves are being carried in, the stubble fields are like glinting bronze, and France still wears the glory of her Summer.

SET FIRE TO HAM WITH ELECTRICITY

By WALTER DURANTY.

no Germans in that district, and shortly afterward they had met a party of French engineers.

"Tell the American what the boches have done to Ham," they urged her.

Nothing can be more touching than the faith of the inhabitants of the devastated regions that an American has only to appreciate fully the boche vandalism for the practice to be put an end to.

"Ham," said the woman, "was destroyed methodically by fires simultaneously started in every quarter by electric devices. Nearly a month ago we noticed the boches had begun fixing up wires in all directions, and we commented on the strangeness of such installation at a time when everything else pointed to a German retreat. It did our hearts good to see the stream of guns, the material, and the shattered, dispirited troops that had been pouring backward through Ham for the last few weeks.

"As time passed the boches steadily continued their preparations for departure, removing wagonloads of furniture, and, indeed, everything of any value. But the wiring parties continued their work all the more busily.

"Last Wednesday we had the key to the enigma. That morning the French guns were very near and a few shells fell close. At noon the boches issued orders to all civilians to evacuate the town. There were only about fifty inhabitants here, and perhaps twice that number of French and Belgian youths in the boche press gangs. Some fifteen of us and six boys managed to hide in the cellars. I believe all save one or two are now safely accounted for.

Found Whole Town Ablaze.

"On the night from Wednesday to Thursday we heard a sudden outburst of small explosions all around. At first we thought there was grenade fighting in the street, as the noise was not loud enough for shells or airbombs. Before dawn, father stole cautiously out. The whole town was flaming above our heads, but our house did not catch fire until we were able to leave it.

"The boche wires had been connected with incendiary bombs which were fired simultaneously from a central electric control. Ham burned furiously all Thursday and Friday. On Saturday morning the fire was dangerously close, and we left the cellar, to meet French soldiers shortly afterward."

In reply to a question as to the treatment by the Germans, Mme. Verrier said:

"On the whole it was better than might have been expected. We were useful to the enemy, the women washing and mending clothes, the old men cooking and doing odd jobs. Of course, they made us work very hard, but they paid us two francs per day in French money. But we had to hide the young girls for fear of the soldiers. That was shameful. One man chased my little sister into the house. I caught him by the tunic at the top of the stairs, and pushed him down headlong. The brute then attacked me. I screamed for father, and the boche made off, but not before he had struck me on the side of the face so violently as to leave the red weal of his fingers on my cheek. I went straight to an officer for whom I had done some mending, who spoke a little French, and complained. He permitted me to identify the assailant, whom he punished with three days' imprisonment.

"I think the food question was the worst. We would never have lived but for the supplies from the 'American Committee' (as the French still call it.) Of course, the boche took what the Americans sent us, and gave us their own meagre rations in exchange. But with the help of wheat ears from the fields, we managed to live.

"During the final week the boches here had no bread or meat—everything was kept for the men in the firing line. The soldiers here just got two biscuits an inch square, and a scrap of sausage per day. Potatoes were exhausted, and they too had to live on wheat grains. Still, they kept going. But they were depressed, and said: 'Germany is kaput.' Even the officers said that. If only it proves true, what we have suffered doesn't matter, and America will make them pay for that anyway."

ONLY FIVE WEEKS MORE OF FIGHTING WEATHER

Germans Counting on Autumn Rains and Mud to Stop Allied Offensive Next Months.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The recent Autumn rains are a forecaste of the inevitable limitations on a great allied offensive. When I asked a French military authority why it was not possible to go right ahead and crush the Germans while we had them on the run he replied:

"There's one Generalissimo whom all belligerents take orders from, General Mud. If we could continue Summer weather conditions another three months, we might get a decision. But it's unsafe to reckon on more than five weeks of good offensive weather.

"From the Somme to the Channel the character of the soil renders the mud the worst in all creation after the Autumn rains begin in good earnest. No soldier can move through it with a pack on his back. Cold frost don't matter so much, and perhaps south of the Somme where the soil is different an attack can still be pressed after the middle of October.

"Conservative calculations of the duration of the present offensive as a whole shouldn't extend it beyond Oct. 15, after which, unless the season is unusually dry, our front must become comparatively inactive. The Germans are counting on these weather probabilities to protect them from a decisive defeat and enable them to put out a peace tentative based on the plea that a stalemate exists on the western front."

TO ADVISE SURRENDER IS DEATH IN OUR ARMY

All Troops Ordered to Kill Any Man Who Tries to Stop a Battle.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 10, (Associated Press.)—American troops of all units have been instructed to kill on the spot any one who in time of battle urges surrender or attempts to persuade them that further resistance is useless.

These instructions, which originated with a certain division and have now been universally adopted because they proved so popular, were made necessary because some one in an American uniform during a German attack on Fismette on Aug. 27 ran among the troops, calling upon them to cease resistance, and declaring that the officers advised surrender.

The instructions point out that these statements were absolutely false, and add:

"The person who spreads such an alarm is either an enemy in our uniform or one of our own troops who is disloyal and a traitor, or one of our troops who has become a panic-stricken coward. Whoever he is should be shot on the spot. In battle there is not time to inquire into the identity or motives of persons who create panic or disorganization, or who advise surrender.

"It is the duty of every officer and soldier to kill on the spot any person who in a fight urges any one to surrender or stop fighting. It makes no difference whether the person is a stranger or a friend, an officer or a private."

The instructions conclude with the statement that a German soldier was found mortally wounded far inside the American lines at Fismette. He had lived for a long time in America and spoke English well, and possibly he intended to get an American uniform and create doubt or disorganization among the men.

FOE USES A NEW PROJECTILE.

It Is a Fireball Giving Off Gas, Fired at Short Range.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 11 (Associated Press.)—Just before the British launched their attack this morning on the enemy trenches northwest of Peizière, below Gouzeaucourt, the Germans for the first time employed a new kind of projectile in an effort to drive the New Zealand troops from nearby positions.

The projectiles, which were about the size of oranges, were fired at short ranges in salvoes of from 200 to 300 each, and were sprinkled over an area of two to three acres. These projectiles burst into flame as they hit the ground and gave off gas.

Liner Persic, which carried third class passengers and freight from Liverpool to Australia via the Cape of Good Hope before the war. The Persic sailed from New York on Aug. 24 for a British port. She was part of a convoy which steamed at a speed of eleven and a half knots, and that accounts for the Persic taking so long on the passage across.

She was a twin-screw steamship of 12,042 gross tonnage, built by Harland & Wolff, Belfast, in 1890, and was a sister ship to the Afric, which was torpedoed in 1916 off Plymouth, England. The Persic was 550 feet long, 63 feet beam and 39 feet depth of hold.

She was the fourth steamship carrying American soldiers to the war zone that has been attacked by German submarines. The other three vessels were the Tuscania, of the Anchor Line; the Moldavia; belonging to the Peninsular & Oriental Line, and the Oronsa of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company.

The Tuscania was sunk in February this year off the North of Ireland with 1,912 officers and men of the Michigan and Wisconsin Guardsmen, of whom 204 were lost.

There were only 250 on board the Oronsa, and all were saved with the exception of three of the crew, who were drowned when she was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland on April 30 last.

The Moldavia was torpedoed while carrying 500 troops to France from this country and fifty-five were lost, in addition to a number of artillery horses and mules.

NEW PHASE OF U-BOAT WAR.

Persic Attack Regarded as an Effort to Encourage German People.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The latest phase of the enemy U-boat campaign, involving a more desperate use of submarines in an effort to hinder the overseas movement of American troops, is believed by high naval officials here to have failed in the very first blow delivered under the revised plans of the German Admiralty.

This is the interpretation placed on a dispatch received from Vice Admiral Sims, at London, today, stating that all hands on board the British liner Persic, carrying American troops, which was torpedoed off the British coast, had been saved. The Navy Department received very meagre advices from Admiral Sims, it its official announcement regarding the attacks is any criterion. It read:

"The Navy Department has received a dispatch from Vice Admiral Sims stating that a British liner carrying American troops was struck by a torpedo off the British coast, but that all the troops and others aboard were rescued. A muster was held and all accounted for."

If facts other than these were received from Admiral Sims they were not disclosed by the Navy Department up to a late hour tonight. According to news dispatches from London there were 2,800 American soldiers on board, and the troopship was beached; the transport was attacked while lagging behind the convoy with engine troubles. Many of the troops on board came from Chicago and Cleveland, and there are intimations that the submarine was sunk or disabled. None of these statements was officially confirmed in Secretary Daniels's formal announcement. However, the official announcement that every one on board was accounted for in the muster that was held, along with the unofficial declaration that the liner had been beached instead of being sunk, is plain enough evidence that the warships were active enough after the attack came to balk the German game.

That attacks of this sort might be expected in a more desperate movement against troopships was indicated in a special cablegram to THE TIMES from London printed Sunday morning, in which it was asserted that the German authorities were making dispositions designed to strike a blow or series of blows to impede the steady flow of American soldiers to France and encourage the drooping spirits of the German people. The intimation from London was so plain that some new blow, aimed directly against loaded American troopships, was so plain that the arrival of this information inspired a belief that perhaps the blow had already been struck. When asked Sunday night whether any American troopships had been sunk, Secretary Daniels replied that no such sinkings had been reported by Admiral Sims. As a matter of fact the attack on the Persic had been made three days before.

SAVED BY SENATOR LEWIS.

He Helped to Carry Wounded Men to Boats on Mount Vernon.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—A cablegram sent from a French port to The Chicago Tribune when the troopship Mount Vernon returned there last Monday after having been torpedoed relates some stirring incidents.

Survivors said that twenty seconds after the periscope of the attacking U-boat disappeared destroyers were dropping depth bombs. Enough oil came to the surface to lead officers to believe they had damaged the submarine and possibly had destroyed it.

A fireman named "Tom" Buckley, who hails from Lowell, Mass., and is called "Dad" by the younger men, reassured the crew after the torpedo struck by shouting:

"Remember, boys, we're all Americans, and it takes more than one German torpedod to sink this ship."

Then voluntarily he led the way for the uninjured to the forward boiler rooms to help build up steam and shove the ship along. There he remained in the terrible heat when only a bulging bulkhead separated him from the pounding waters, and he served a full double shift "just to help out."

When the torpedo struck the ship Senator James Hamilton Lewis rushed from his stateroom, clad in a dressing gown and slippers, to the sickbay and the quarters where there were 180 wounded soldiers and helped to carry them on deck and to place them in lifeboats ready for an emergency. Without an overcoat or life preserver, he worked until the last wounded soldier was carefully placed in the boats. Then he went from boat to boat cheering them up. To one group of shell-shocked boys he said: "It's a shame to have boat drill at this hour of the morning, isn't it? We rush to the boats and have all this target practice fuss."

Soon the wounded men in the boats began shouting jokes from boat to boat.

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

LONDON, Sept. 11.

Night Report—We carried out a successful local operation early this morning north of Epehy, advancing our line in this locality and capturing a number of prisoners. Some progress has been made by our troops during the day on the southern portion of the battlefront in the neighborhood of Vermand.

An attack attempted by the enemy this afternoon against one of our posts west of Gouzeaucourt was repulsed by machine gun fire.

Local fighting also has taken place northwest of Hulluch and south of La Bassée Canal, as the result of which we captured a few prisoners and established posts in the enemy's former position.

The hostile artillery has developed considerable activity this evening in the Havrincourt Wood sector.

Day Report—We advanced our line yesterday in the direction of Attilly and Vermand.

In the evening the enemy again strongly attacked our positions on the ridge west of Gouzeaucourt. Sharp fighting followed, as a result of which the attack was completely beaten off except at one point, where one of our posts remained in the enemy's possession.

Local fighting took place yesterday afternoon and evening in the neighborhood of Moeuvres and at Ecourt-St. Quentin. In the former case an attack by a strong party of the enemy succeeded in entering our trenches, but was repulsed by our counterattack. At Ecourt-St. Quentin, also, the enemy was repulsed after stiff fighting.

We advanced our line slightly during the night west of Erquingham (west of Armentieres.)

French

PARIS, Sept. 11.

Night Report—A German counterattack southeast of Roupy [near St. Quentin] was repulsed.

In the region of Laffaux and Celles-sur-Aisne six enemy attempts to reach our positions were repulsed.

Day Report—Aside from activity by the artillery at different points on the front of the Aisne and the Vesle and in Champagne there is nothing to report.

German

BERLIN, (via London,) Sept. 11.

Night Report—The day was quiet on the battlefront.

Day Report—During the repulse of English partial advances south of Ypres and north of La Bassée Canal we took prisoners.

South of the Péronne-Cambrai road fresh English attacks again led to violent fighting to the south of Gouzeaucourt and round Epehy. The enemy reached our first lines at a few points. We drove him back in counterattacks. Three hundred prisoners remained in our hands.

Partial attacks by the French on both sides of the Ham-St. Quentin road, delivered by surprise after artillery preparation, were repulsed.

There was local fighting north of the Ailette River.

Between the Ailette and the Aisne the artillery fire increased to great violence in the afternoon. The enemy advanced in the evening to strong attacks. They failed in front of our line.

FRESH TROOPS TO MAN THE HINDENBURG LINE

Evidence That Germans Now Fighting Will Have a Rest Behind It.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 11, (Associated Press.)—There are indications that when the retiring Germans reach the Hindenburg line they will pass through fresh corps and divisions to whom the defenses have been intrusted. In such tactics is found one of the principal reasons why the German commanders have been putting formations back into active fighting after they had once been withdrawn because the men were temporarily exhausted.

There is evidence that the Hindenburg line is already being manned by troops who have not appeared in the fighting so far.

In the area over which the recent advance has been made, from one end of the British front to the other, many "booby" traps have been encountered and rendered ineffective. Mines have been found under dugouts and in dilapidated houses to which time fuses had been attached.

In general the British are continuing to close in on the Hindenburg line by a series of small actions and manoeuvres. The lines in the northern part of the battle zone have now been advanced through the village of Trescault, three and one-half miles southwest of Marcoing, to the eastern edge of the place, where the troops are actually in the old British trenches facing the Hindenburg line.

In the south Australian troops have advanced in the area from Vermand to the outskirts of Attilly, on the edge of Holnon Wood, from the outer side of which the whole of the flat country up to the famous German defensive positions and the spires of St. Quentin are clearly visible.

In the centre the British have gained a footing in Peizière and Epehy, and this morning an attack was launched against the enemy trenches northwest of Peizière.

Trenches Carried in Pouring Rain.

The enemy trenches were stormed during a downpour of rain. The troops are reported to have gained their objective, although the advance was made over ground covered with oozy, slippery mud.

The enemy has delivered several small counterattacks. The line west of Gouzeaucourt was attacked last night, but the advancing Germans were met with a withering machine gun fire and were repulsed everywhere except at one place, where they managed to penetrate a British post at the crossroads known as Dead Man's Corner.

Another party tried to enter the British trenches southwest of Moeuvres, but was repulsed with comparatively heavy casualties.

The enemy delivered a hurricane bombardment in the Sensée Valley last night, and soon after the British posts north of Ecourt-St. Quentin were attacked, and some of them were withdrawn.

In the north British patrols have penetrated through Pont-de-Nieppe without meeting with opposition. In this area the Germans apparently have withdrawn for some distance. More posts were established by the British south of the River Lys in the course of yesterday evening and last night.

A heavy rain still is falling over the whole area, and many of the smaller streams have been flooded. In the Flanders lowlands the ground has become almost impassable. There are no signs of the weather clearing. Luckily in the Somme region the ground made most difficult by the fall of heavy rain has been left behind by the advancing British.

RAIN HAMPERS AIR WORK.

But British Aviators Make Observations in Fine Intervals.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Tonight's communication on aerial operations says:

Owing to continued heavy rainstorms on Sept. 10, aerial observation was very difficult. In spite of a very high wind some work was accomplished during the fine intervals which occurred from time to time.

Several reconnoissances were carried out by our machines, and some photographs were taken. One of our airplanes failed to return.

KAISER IS WATCHFUL OF THE HOME FRONT

Relies on Help in Upholding the People's Steadfastness— Thanks Farmers.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—Emperor William, in replying to a message from the German National Soldiers' Union, is quoted by the Cologne Gazette as saying:

"I am firmly convinced that the members of the German Soldiers' Union will exert all the powers of their personal influence in support of the home front and, like our glorious comrades in the field, will not in the vicissitudes of war let themselves be turned from their will to victory and steadfastness by the enemy's superior forces and reprehensible methods of combat.

"The military and moral strength and the unanimous determination of the German people must and will succeed, with God's help, in breaking the more and more openly manifested will to destruction of the enemy, who is charging upon us from all parts of the earth, and in safeguarding for all time the freedom of our dear Fatherland."

TURK HOPELESS OF VICTORY

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—Following closely on the statement published in Vienna on Sept. 8, in which Talaat Pacha, the Turkish Grand Vizier, said he believed that peace would come before Winter, the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna now prints an interview with Djavid Pacha, the Turkish Minister of Finance, who said:

"I am definitely of the opinion that the war cannot be decided on the battlefield. A military victory in the sense that one army penetrates into the country of the other and forces the enemy to peace by crushing his military force I consider impossible, and I have always considered it impossible."

as the fact that he deliberately left between him and the allied armies a broad belt of devastated country which they would require many months to organize before they would be able again to assume the offensive.

Today this factor is practically nonexistent. The Germans have been driven right into their positions of retreat with the victorious Allies close on their heels and hammering furiously there before they have even had time to install themselves in safety.

Moreover, as every expert points out, the Hindenburg line between Lens and Rheims is no longer intact. The British have opened a seven or eight mile door in it above Cambrai, and in front of Cambrai, it is insisted here, there is no more Hindenburg line at all. There, at any rate, the Germans have nothing but improvised trenches to meet the British attacks.

The situation is almost as satisfactory, as Paris sees it, at the other end of the battle. On the Ailette, where Mangin's men have secured the Soissons plateau and are threatening to deprive the enemy of the magnificent defensive positions of the Chemin des Dames, which the French occupied nearly twelve months in conquering in 1917.

Bold Stroke Expected.

Further, it is realized here, the strength of the enemy line does not consist merely in fortifications, but in the military value of the men defending them. Ludendorff's shock troops, such as are left of them, are no good as far as their special qualities go for defensive purposes. Moreover, both in quantity and quality, the available men of the enemy are now known to be most unfavorably rated as compared with six months ago.

The belief is growing daily here that in view of all the circumstances, what remains of the Hinderburg line can be successfully attacked, if Foch thinks fit to do so. The general opinion, howeevr, is that the allied Commander in Chief will succeed in rendering the much-vaunted enemy line useless to him by quite other means than by direct attack, even of the kind that Mangin has been so cleverly employing lately. Bonaparte, it is pointed out, found the key to Egypt in the Plain of Marengo, and it was by the battle of Wattignies, in 1793, that Carnot freed Maubeuge.

Where Foch will strike the blow that will have the same effect on the Hindenburg line that the trumpets of Joshua had on the walls of Jericho, Paris is content to leave to Foch himself to settle. The only feeling Paris has in the matter is the certainty that wherever Foch strikes the necessary blow, the Hindenburg line will surely fall.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 11.—In common with all other Americans who have seen only to admire the spirit of France at war, the brave French suffering most cruel blows but never complaining, I have come to marvel at the invincible soul of the unconquerable people. But of all the tributes paid to the soul of France surely none is more eloquent than the following. It came from the pen of a high German officer. Read now what he has to say of the French:

"I have been living for years now in this joyless country. From month to month I have seen it become more pitiable. And what is remarkable is the Frenchman's mind, the Frenchman who does not make any complaint against the man who has settled as his unwelcome guest by his fireside and consoles himself with the well-known saying, 'C'est la guerre.'

"So when we go home on leave of absence and we hear our wives and parents whining, we feel like taking them by their coat sleeves and dragging them down here to the invaded country. They would learn what little misery is theirs who have remained masters in their own homes.

"The French of the occupied country hate us, but do not complain. They state their pride in forbearance of complaint. I am never weary of marvelling at this grit of theirs. But you, Uncle Fritz and Aunt Mina, of Mains or elsewhere, how would you behave if the enemy were in your country? To judge from the small trials which you bear so poorly you would lose all confidence. You are always flinching. You feel hurt if the Hindenburg hammer does not crush, as he is wont to do, a whole hostile army. What the French could teach you is this child's faith that they preserve in such cruel trials. Or, to express it more brutally, I am jealous of their impertinent pride.

"Many Germans could learn a good deal at the school of misfortune which the inhabitants of the occupied country bear up under so proudly. Let us consider the question once more. How many French people in the course of these last four years have learned German? Not one in a thousand. But I will wager anything that in Mannheim or Aschaffenburg, if the French ruled there, there would be no shop girl with whom the conqueror could not talk in his own language. It would be a fad to speak French.

"French women and girls who compromise themselves with Germans are branded. Their honor is lost even should the boche be such a fool as to marry them. But in an occupied Germany? Let us remember Napoleonic times.

"The Frenchman himself is never inclined to become sociable, in spite of the fact that many of our comrades go more than half way to meet him, and despite the little advantages he would derive in his daily life. He has national pride akin to passion. I admire the French.

"Let every German man and woman ask himself this question, If the enemy were in my country would he be compelled to admire my pride?"

BULGAR ARMY WEAKENS RESENT GERMAN RULE

Show None of Their Old Spirit in Fighting—Italians Assured of Victory.

MILAN, Sept. 11.—The Secolo prints a special dispatch from its correspondent at Saloniki setting forth details of the rapid demoralization which has developed in the ranks of the Bulgarian Army. Until recently the Bulgarians showed themselves invariably to be the most valiant fighters, but the terrible privations to which they have been subjected, their keen irritation against the Germans, and the withdrawal from Macedonia of a great bulk of the Teutonic elements that served as the bolts and framework of the Bulgarian military machine are one and all contributing to bring about a state of collapse which is increasing daily on a remarkable scale.

In the course of a stirring address delivered to the Italian troops, their commander, General Montielli said:

"Nearly all the Germans have abandoned the Macedonian front. The handful that remain continue to do us the honor of facing our Italian lines, but we know them of old and fear them not. In fact, today we fear them less than ever. The Bulgarians are sick of German domination, which is draining their blood and famishing them. More and more every day they are morally depressed, and their military discipline is breaking down.

"The beseeching wails of their families that languish in the midlands are paralyzing their energy and causing their arms to drop to their sides. You, then, are now superior, both morally and materially, to the enemy that confronts you, and on those fitful occasions when under the German goad the Burgars try to muster that little reserve of warlike vigor that remains to them, you never fail to overcome them easily. Hence you have the right to claim that such a marked superiority of material and moral means as we possess should speedily be assured an adequate opportunity of demonstrating itself."

Commenting on Montielli's speech, the Secolo notes that it is an indication of the growing feeling that the time is ripe for transforming into a determined campaign what hitherto has been purely a defensive attitude for preventing the downward advance of the Bulgars and Germans toward Saloniki, because there is ever the prospect that a well-aimed blow on the part of the Allies would result in changing the whole condition of affairs in the Balkans in our favor.

The War Situation

By THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The allied commander is rapidly approaching the point where he must make a decision as to his next move. The allied rate of progress still continues to decline. The Hindenburg line is only a short distance off and will soon be reached. Foch still has before him from six to eight weeks of good fighting weather, and if he is to retain the advantage which he seized on the 18th of July and has not relinquished he must continue to press the situation as long as the weather makes extended field operations possible. This advantage is the initiative, the ability to pick the time for action, and the place where the action shall occur, leaving to the Germans the task of guessing where the next blow shall fall and trying to forestall it, with all the possibility of guessing wrong.

Moreover there is a further advantage. While Foch has not succeeded in breaking the German Army or demoralizing it to anything like the extent that at first seemed apparent, he has, nevertheless, shaken it pretty badly and sent it hurrying eastward to be restored, and if possible rejuvenated. The main German force has already gone through this process. Undoubtedly a regrouping necessitated by losses has already taken place and new dispositions have been made. The main army has been back in its prepared positions for some time, while the rearguards have been fighting relaying actions. The general morale of the army has not been restored as yet since a retreat of the character of that of the Germans is something which cannot be made up at once. When men have been going back for two months it takes time to restore their confidence. It is this condition which Foch must take advantage of if he does not wish to lose much of the advantage he has already secured. We may, therefore, be reasonably certain that before the Germans can get altogether comfortable in their new positions, which positions they mean to make final if such a thing be possible, Foch will strike again.

The difficulty of striking against the Hindenburg line south of Cambrai is widely enhanced by the condition of the country. The Germans in their retreat have leveled it absolutely, just as they did in 1917. Every road has been destroyed, every railroad torn up, every house burned. The difficulties of attacking on a front which has this country behind it are exceedingly great. The matter of transport is a vital one, and it is difficult to see how arrangements could be made for a continuous flow of materials for a great and continuous action. It is probable, then, that when Foch strikes again it will be against a section of the line where communications are good and over which the Germans have not passed.

This would argue that there is a strong probability of the blow falling between Douai and the Belgian coast. The Flanders country is not attractive. It has already been torn to pieces by shell fire and is a very difficult country in which to operate by reason of its very flatness, which makes surprise a very difficult matter. The ground being waterlogged after every rain is not well adapted to the work of the tank, which is such an important element in the allied tactics. The probabilities, then, seem to indicate the front between La Bassée and Arras as the one most probable to be attacked. There is one great object here, and that is to relieve the British positions along the Canal du Nord as far north as Arleux and the Sensée Canal, between Arleux and Arras. In this angle the Canadians appear to have been well anchored. The German defense has made itself almost impregnable, and it seems hard to do anything by a frontal attack. And yet this is the key to the present system of German bases running southward from the coast. Douai is thrown into serious jeopardy the moment these water barriers are forced or flanked, and with Douai in allied hands the Germans will find it difficult to retain their hold on Lille and Roulers in the north.

That such a move may be in contemplation is indicated by activity in the vicinity of Hulluch, between Lens and La Bassée. The chalk pits about this town were the scene of some of the heaviest fighting of the early days of the war, and with the excellent communications radiating westward from Lens would offer a tempting point for a renewal of the offensive.

CONDEMNS U-BOAT WAR

German Publicist Holds Pan Germans Responsible for Starting and Prolonging Hostilities.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—In order to reach peace it is necessary to rid Germany of all Pan German ideas and war aims. That is the keynote of an article by Professor Hans Delbrück in his well-known monthly Preussische Jahrbücher.

He frankly declares that not only are the Pan Germans largely guilty of starting the war, but that they are mainly responsible for the prolongation of the struggle. They set up the theory that Germany must come out of the war so strengthened that no power or coalition would dare attack her, and that she would be in such a position that all others would give way before her by reason of the mere menace of her strength.

Thus, says the professor, distrust has been aroused throughout the world, which it will be difficult to dissipate. The German Government, he adds, has never acted according to the Reichstag's July resolution, and the Chancellor's declaration about Belgium was too late and too indefinite.

He expresses the belief that the depression in Germany has been caused by the Pan German war aims, and he severely condemns the U-boat politicians who promised victory by submarine warfare in a few months.

"So away with Pan German ideas," he says, "for our own sakes, for Pan German is doing moral damage to our people's character."

He admits that the world has a right to demand that the German people give a pledge that the Pan German spirit of the presumption of force, of hostility to culture, and of barbarism is not the German spirit.

The best means, he says, of showing that the ruling factors in Germany have finally irrevocably turned Pan Germanism out of doors would be to collect all the pre-war Pan German bellicose utterances and at the same time to show by reference to the literature of the enemy how much damage Pan German agitation has done and how it was responsible for bringing about the catastrophe of war.

The article attracts a great deal of attention in the German press and will undoubtedly give an impetus to that campaign against the Pan Germans which is being waged by persons and in circles having considerable influence on the public mind.

Meanwhile reports of coming changes in the German Government are much discussed throughout the country.

The International Korrespondenz, the organ of the Extreme Right of the Socialist Party, believes that the Prussian upper house will persist in its attitude of hostility to franchise reform and doubts if Hertling will have the necessary strength to be Chief of Staff in the decisive battle for reform. It also doubts if his administration is fitted for the serious task of leading the German people through the fifth Winter of the war.

Hertling's pape Government, the article concludes, has been a failure and a deception.

The Berliner Tageblatt thinks that the mention of Scheidemann and Erzberger as members of the Government is merely designed to rouse a conservative campaign against them and to make them impossible as candidates for such an honor.

There is a definite denial, of course, that changes are in contemplation, and it should always be borne in mind that certain of the reports that moderation is progressing in Germany may very possibly be directed toward creating an effect in England in view of a general election.

PREDICTS DRIVE ON CAMBRAI

Berlin Critic Hints That German Lines May Give Way.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Captain von Salzmann, military critic of the Berlin Vossische Zeitung, has written a significant article in which he predicts that a heavy British attack will soon be made on Cambrai. He says that the German lines before Cambrai cannot be regarded as final lines of resistance.

Von Salzmann depreciates the importance of the St. Quentin Canal and says that the main defense lines lie further east. He adds that the Germans, without running any risk, can voluntarily abandon all the territory south of the Aisne and retire to the Chemin des Dames.

FOUND WOUNDED CHEERFUL.

Surgeon General Gorgas Says Our Men Are Well Taken Care Of.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Major Gen. William C. Gorgas, Surgeon General of the United States Army, following an inspection tour today of the Paris military hospitals where Americans are undergoing treatment, expressed his satisfaction with the manner in which the wounded are being cared for.

"The cheerfulness and commodious arrangements and the genuine spirit of hopefulness of the wounded in the hospitals have been the most impressive things witnessed by me since my arrival in France," said General Gorgas. "It is inspiring to see the determination displayed by our men; they are filled with real spirit and there is an atmosphere of happiness among them, although they are suffering from wounds. They are well taken care of, and the work of the Medical Department which I have seen so far has been above reproach."

General Gorgas will leave tomorrow for a trip of inspection of the front line and rear medical units. He expects to return to Paris next week.

John D. Ryan, Assistant Secretary of War, left this afternoon for a visit to the airplane training camps and aero fields. He expects to return to Paris on Sunday.

Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, left Paris today for a conference with army officers. He will return here tomorrow for further conferences.

DUTCH OUTLOOK GLOOMY.

Closest Food Economy Necessary Until Next July.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—The last act of Agriculture Minister Posthuma before handing over his portfolio today to his successor, M. Van Ysselsteyn, was to send out a circular to the synods of the various religious congregations of Holland stating that the outlook for the country's food supply was very grave. The retiring Minister declared that for the harvest year 1918-1919 385,000 tons of grain and substitutes were available, including 100,000 tons promised from America, thus insuring a continuation of the present meagre daily ration of about seven ounces per capita until early in July next, at the monthly rate of consumption of 37,000 tons.

M. Posthuma urged the religious leaders to impress upon the rural population the necessity of delivering their entire crops, pointing out that the calculations do not allow for any neglect of duty by the farmers nor for mishaps to the American grain cargoes.

The appointment of M. Van Ysselsteyn finds little approval in the press of Holland. The Nieuwe Courant of The Hague says he is not the man for the position, while the Nieuwe Courant of Rotterdam holds that he has never given any evidence of such ability as to inspire confidence.

DOWNED 280 TEUTON PLANES

French Aviators Also Dropped 629 Tons of Bombs During August.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—During August French bombardment airplanes dropped more than 629 tons of projectiles, according to a statement issued today by the War Office. The statement says:

"In the course of August our bombardment airplanes in day flights dropped more than 269 tons of projectiles on objectives on the battlefield between the Somme and the Aisne. In night attacks our bombing airplanes dropped 360 tons of projectiles on railway stations and enemy roads of communication.

"In the same month 280 enemy machines were downed, or seen falling out of control, and 66 enemy balloons were set on fire."

U-BOAT SUNK BY TRAWLER.

French Craft Went to Aid of British Ship and Used Depth Bombs.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The exploit of a French trawler, the Automne, which succeeded in destroying a submarine which was attacking a British steamer in the Mediterranean, is described in a dispatch to the Matin from Toulon.

The trawler was patrolling the Mediterranean when it received a wireless call from the British vessel, which was being attacked thirty miles off Marseilles. Although the submarine had submerged, the Automne traced it and succeeded in destroying it with depth bombs. The British steamer returned safely to Marseilles.

MISSANABIE NEWS MEAGRE.

Owners Believe All Passengers on Lost Ship Were Saved.

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—The news of the loss of the Missanabie was confirmed today by the Canadian Pacific Ocean Steamship Company. The steamer sailed from a British port on Sept. 8 with fifty-nine soldiers and a number of passengers. She was torpedoed on Sept. 9. It is believed by the company that none of the passengers was lost.

No news was received yesterday from England by the agents of the Canadian Pacific Steamship lines regarding the loss of the Missanabie on Sept. 9 off the coast of Ireland, except a confirmation of the first cable dispatch, which stated that there were only twelve passengers on board besides the crew.

GERMANS REFUSE WEST FRONT DUTY

REPORT REGIMENT'S MUTINY

Trenches Dug on Dutch Border to Prevent Deserters from Fleeing from Belgium.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 11.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has irrefutable evidence that two weeks ago 25,000 soldiers on leave in Berlin refused to return to the western front. As a result of this, neither officers nor men are allowed to spend leave in Berlin.

THE TIMES correspondent also learns that secret reports received here by the authorities show that the Germans are building a trench system along the Dutch-Belgian frontier, facing inward. This is in order to prevent German troops from entering Holland should Belgium be evacuated. The existence of these trenches has been allowed to become known among the German troops in order to dissuade them from possible attempts to cross the frontier.

"The war cannot last long because the German soldiers will refuse to fight. Some regiments have already refused to return to the front, and others refuse to fight at the front, saying they prefer to give themselves up as prisoners rather than continue to be slaughtered."

Thus a Dutch doctor, just arrived from Germany, expressed himself to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

"The army is in a terrible state of depression, as also are the civilians at home, who no longer believe in the official reports," he said.

This report only confirms many others which THE TIMES correspondent has received from persons recently arriving from Germany and which are being circulated in Holland, but which should be accepted with reserve, as it is quite possible that reports of this kind are propagated for foreign consumption as a part of the peace offensive.

Soldiers at the Belgian-Dutch frontier are, however, also in a pitiable state of depression, and are imploring the inhabitants on the frontier to send them over civilian clothing in order that they may escape.

That depression is making itself manifest is evident from the speeches and articles appearing in the press, while von Freytag-Loringhoven makes a cheerup speech before the Deutsche Gesellschaft, telling the people that the present times are not nearly so critical as during the invasion in East Prussia and East Galacia or the battle of the Marne.

The Kölnische Zeitung has a long article headed "Self-Control." In the middle of extraordinarily severe battles in the west the people must remember that Germany is fighting a war of defense, the paper points out, and that the enemy wishes to destroy Germany politically and economically so that she ne longer exists as a big power.

"No responsible Entente statesman has definitely rejected the will to destruction which President Wilson clearly and strongly in December, 1917, expressed," the paper says, and it quotes Wilson as asserting that the Germany of today should be excluded from communication with other peoples. The paper points out that similar ideas had not been entertained in Germany when Germany was at the height of her military success; and even at the height of the offensive, it adds, Germany was only waging a defensive war.

"Our strong will for self-control, which up to the present has overcome the most difficult military and economical situations, will continue to protect our German earth," it concludes.

RUMORS OF A CRISIS PERSIST IN GERMANY

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 11.—Once again rumors of a Governmental crisis are gaining ground in Berlin. It is certain that something new is afoot, but it is difficult to say whether this movement is part of the general peace offensive or has its origin in the fresh political combinations now in process in Germany.

The Berlin correspondent of the semi-official Cologne Gazette denies all rumors on principle, but especially those relating to important political changes, which his paper has not announced. He says that it would be an act of political insanity even to play with the idea of a Government crisis at the present juncture.

Meanwhile internal and foreign affairs are discussed and often settled without the Reichstag majority party being even consulted. This element is decidedly disgruntled, and is striving after more Parliamentary power.

The famous Catholic leader, Erzberger, who has been somewhat in the background since the latest Government upheaval, is the ringleader of this new movement, and is organizing a strong combination with the left wing of the Catholic party, which will probably form a group with the Progressives and Socialists. He has been striving to undermine Hertling's position.

Most papers deny the rumors of the Chancellor's resignation. Although the Kölnische Volkzeitung, one of his organs, is obliged to admit that machinations are in progress, it scoffs at "Parliamentarization."

Erzberger has always belonged to the party which disapproved the U-boat war. "It is crazy, and you will see the results of it," he said eighteen months ago to an informant of THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. The fact that most Germans are now obliged to admit the failure of the submarine war only strengthens the Erzberger party.

The Reichstag Party leaders are very busy conferring these days, and it appears that they are trying to keep von Hintze from making his expected speech, as they feel that any speech made at present will not be moderate enough to further peace interests. The Foreign Minister hurried to Army Headquarters immediately on his return from Vienna.

Most papers appear to agree that no progress has been made in settling the Polish question since von Hintze held his conference with Burian.

The International Korrespondenz says that the crisis affecting the Chancellorship is due to the delay in the reform of the Prussian franchise. If the Upper House refuses to move in its favor, it asserts, the Government must resign, and then it will be a question whether Hertling is strong enough to continue the fight.

All the papers agree that no decision can be reached for a few weeks, until the Grand Committee of the Reichstag meets.

REGIMENT OF GERMANS REPORTED IN MUTINY

Said to Have Refused to Entrain at Cologne for the Western Front.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—A German regiment, the 25th, mutinied at Cologne on Aug. 31, according to the Telegraaf.

An eyewitness of the incident says that the soldiers on being ordered to leave Cologne for the Western front refused to board a train. Another regiment was then ordered to force the refractory troops to enter the cars, but the men refused to fire on their comrades.

A detachment of the home defense guard, composed of youths, was then ordered to undertake the task, and a fight followed in which eleven boys of the defense guard were killed and many others were wounded.

JEWS IN RUSSIA PATRIOTIC.

Race There Misjudged Through the Deeds of Some Bolshevist Leaders.

A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States, yesterday issued a statement in which he said:

"A cablegram from Petrograd printed in the American press today tells that three Jews, Trotzky, Kamenev, and Sverdlov, occupy important positions in the so-called Soviet Government. This may produce a wrong impression as to the rôle the Russian Jews are playing in the Bolshevist movement which has brought the new democracy to the verge of ruin.

"Jews in Russia behaved most patriotically in the highest sense of the word, not only after the March revolution, but even before the revolution while being oppressed and tortured by the Czar's Government. Together with the best representatives of the Russian people they understood the historical sense of the great war and rushed into the Russian Army, fighting bravely for democracy, even under the Czar's banners. After the March revolution the Jews in Russia took a definite stand, supporting the Provisional Government and opposing the Bolshevist adventure.

"The question, while not mentioning that Trotzky, Kamenev, and Sverdlov are Jews, does not mention that Dora Kaplan, who shot Lenine and was executed by the Bolsheviki, was a Jewess. It does not mention that Kamkov, whose real name was Katz, one of the leaders of the Social Revolutionists of the Left, who was executed by the Bolsheviki, together with Maria Spiridonova, for the assassination of the German Ambassador, von Mirbach, was a Jew. And, as far as we can judge from the name, the young man who assassinated Field Marshal von Eichhorn was also a Jew.

"The presence of several Jews among the leaders of the Bolsheviki will indeed be used by reactionaries to stir up anti-Semitic propaganda. Tens of thousands of innocent Jewish lives will probably be the payment for the maniagrandiosa of Mr. Trotzky. But it should be stated before the civilized world in the name of justice that there are many Jews who fight actively against the Bolsheviki as a danger to democracy and that the Jews as a nation respond to the Allies' cause in Russia."

$50,000 BOND FOR GIBBONS.

Will Be Presented to Him at Celebration of Golden Jubilee as Bishop.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11.—A $50,000 Liberty bond will be given by the Catholic clergy and laity of the Archdiocese of Baltimore to Cardinal Gibbons on the occasion of the celebration of his golden jubilee as a Bishop. An invitation to subscribe to the fund with which to buy the bond will be issued to Catholics throughout this State and the District of Columbia within the next few days.

The honor of celebrating a golden jubilee as Bishop is one that has come rarely to a Catholic prelate in any country in the last few hundred years. Cardinal Gibbons, when he was consecrated Bishop of Adriamyttum on Aug. 16, 1868, became the youngest Bishop in the Catholic Church in this country and one of the youngest men raised to that dignity in the history of the Catholic Church in the world.

The Cardinal has purchased generously of Liberty bonds in all the campaigns and has urged his priests and laity to subscribe until they had to make real sacrifices to do so. It was immediately suggested, when the proposition of presenting him a purse came up, that the money be invested in Liberty bonds.

FOR RUSSIAN EXPEDITION.

Red Cross Names Members Who Will Go to Archangel.

The Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross announced yesterday that C. T. Williams of Baltimore had been appointed to command the relief expedition to be sent to Archangel. As a Deputy Commissioner of the Red Cross he will have the rank of Major. Major Williams was a member of the Red Cross mission to Rumania in 1917. Another member of the Rumanian expedition, who will accompany Major Williams as medical officer, is Major W. D. Kirkpatrick, who has been engaged also in hospital service in England and Serbia.

Eleven others who are to aid in the relief are Captain Robert L. Barr of Orange, N. J.; Miss Alma Foerster of Chicago, Miss Beatrice Gosling of Millburn, N. J.; Mrs. Aurora B. Merriman of Minneapolis, Captain D. O. C. Lively, and Lieutenants Henry C. Hibbard, John A. Stalinski, N. H. Clifton, William H. Dudley, H. M. Wyckoff, and Roger L. Lewis.

GERMANS COMPLAIN OF FOOD

Socialist Party Tells Hertling of Critical Situation.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 11.—The German Socialist Party and the trade unions sent a communication to Chancellor von Hertling recently pointing out the growing dissatisfaction among the population because of insufficient food.

In the communication, which was published in the Socialist newspaper Vorwärts on Monday, the conditions are characterized as critical. Numerous applications to the Food Administration for relief have been without result, it is declared. The workers and the middle class of the population are represented as unable to pay for food that is most necessary for them, and physical exhaustion has been caused, together with increased mortality among children and the aged.

The statement asserts that the Winter allowance of potatoes will be only seven pounds weekly. It adds that the Government is aware of the excitement among the people over these conditions and that the situation will grow more critical if the Government does not cease favoring the producing interests and provide sufficient food for the population.

Nizhni-Novgorod, the town on the Volga 265 miles northeast of Moscow which was recently taken by the Russian White Guards, was represented by the Bolsheviki to be one of their strongholds, as it is a large industrial centre. The workmen there, however, the advices say, were disaffected because of food conditions and unemployment. Recently there were many strikes at Nizhni-Novgorod.

PETROGRAD IN FLAMES, WASHINGTON HEARS

City Also Prey to Massacre, Pillage, and Riots, According to Christiania Reports.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch from the American legation at Christiania today said reliable information had reached there that Petrograd was burning in twelve different places and that there was indiscriminate massacre of people in the streets.

Secretary Lansing, in announcing receipt of the message, said it did not indicate whether the massacre was organized or merely was a result of a general state of anarchy. There was nothing to show what part the Bolshevisit authorities were playing in the situation.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—On inquiry at the Foreign Office tonight it was learned that no news had been received regarding the reported burning of Petrograd with accompanying massacres. The situation in the capital, however, is known to be critical and the news of sensational developments would not be received with surprise.

Months of Horror in Russia.

STOCKHOLM, Tuesday, Sept. 10 (Associated Press.)—July and August were months of horror which never will be forgotten by persons who watched Russia's two great cities—Petrograd and Moscow—pass through the mad attempt of the Bolsheviki to shoot or imprison all persons who disagreed with their wild efforts to control crumbling European Russia. September probably will be worse, for the opposition parties are gaining strength through desperation.

The lives of the non-Bolsheviki are unsafe and everywhere in Russia self-defense is forcing unwilling belligerents to take up arms against the ruthless persecution of the so-called Commissions for the Suppression of a Counter-Revolutions, which shoot down the bourgeois by the hundreds.

Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevist Minister of War, evidently is determined that his dictatorship of the proletariat shall not repeat the history of the former Provisional Government and fail through being too merciful.

Ex-Premier Kerensky refused to impose the death penalty, and his Government fell almost without the loss of a life, but observers of the Russian political situation say that no such bloodless end can come to the Soviet Republic. It has given no quarter, and it will receive none.

Premier Lenine, War Minister Trotzky, Sverdloff, President of the Central Executive Committee, and other Bolshevist leaders realize this, and they doubtless will fight as long as a single soldier remains loyal to them.

Trotzky has said in speeches that Moscow will be reduced to ashes before it is surrendered. Jaroslav, a town on the Volga, 160 miles northeast of Moscow, was burned for resisting Bolshevist domination, and Vologda, 110 miles north of Jaroslav, is reported to have suffered the same fate.

Night has been hideous in Moscow for months because of the volleys from execution squads in the military enclosures where prisoners are kept. Foreigners and Russians alike were searched without warrants and the Red Guards marched crowds of men and women prisoners through the streets with such regularity that pedestrians hardly noticed them.

Marie Spiridonova, the Social Revolutionary leader, charged in her memorable speech made before the All-Russian Soviet Congress at Moscow on July 4 that Bolshevist rule was more tyrannical than that of the late Emperor, and the reign of terror had scarcely begun at that time.

Attempts to Murder Helfferich.

Dr. Karl Helfferich, the German Ambassador at Moscow, rushed back to Berlin and reported to his Government that Moscow was in such a state of anarchy that the Embassy could not stay there, and he is alleged to have advised a discontinuance of diplomatic relations with the Soviet power. There is little wonder that Ambassador Helfferich had such an impression. Two attempts were made on his life while he was in Moscow. (This is the first news to come out of Russia of an attempt being made against the life of the new German Ambassador at Moscow. His predecessor, Count von Mirbach, was assassinated.)

Shots were heard everywhere day and and night and motor lorries filled with armed soldiers dashed madly through the streets with utter disregard for the life of civilians. The actual fighting which took place in the streets of Moscow on July 7 when the city was under artillery fire for several hours was far less terrifying to the public than were the endless days of sheer brutality which the soldiers imposed on the helpless public by virtue of their arms.

Men who have refused to fight the Czechoslovaks on the Volga have been arrested. Even the helpless and paralytic and one old woman more than 80 years old have been taken into custody.

Such is the wild campaign carried on by the Bolsheviki under the guise of suppressing a counter-revolution. Moses Uritzky, who mercilessly directed activity of this sort in Petrograd, paid for it with his life, but Dzerzhinsky still continues his frantic persecution of civilians in Moscow. Former army officers are the greatest sufferers at the hands of this wild search for counter-revolutionaries, but it extends to all sections of the bourgeois.

Not content with seizing the property of the educated classes, the Bolsheviki are now harassing them in every possible way. A brutal class war is encouraged by exhortations daily in the Bolshevist newspapers to continue attacks upon the bourgeois and even to take their lives.

But, bad as conditions are now in Moscow and in Petrograd, a worse situation is expected by the intelligent classes if an interregnum takes place. The spirit of vengeance is so strong and the feeling so bitter against the Jewish leaders, arrivals here from Russia say, that rioting against the Jews generally is feared. Such riots never are confined to one class in Russia, but expand into general murder and plunder.

Somewhere among the Social Revolutionaries, probably among those of the Right, a leader is expected to develop who may eventually crystallize the opposition to the Bolsheviki. M. Tchernoff, former Minister of Agriculture and Chairman of the suspended Constituent Assembly, and General Boris Savinkoff, former military commander of Petrograd and acting Minister of War in the Kerensky Cabinet, are the most conspicuous Social Revolutionaries at present. Their whereabouts is unknown, but General Savinkoff is reported to be in Siberia.

GERMAN PRINCE IN FINLAND.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse has declared his willingness to receive the Crown of Finland, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraphy Company from Copenhagen today. The Prince is now visiting Finland, accompanied by a strong guard, and has been engaged in conferences with political leaders in the different cities he has passed through.

The Finnish Landstag is summoned to meet on Sept. 26 for the election of a King.

REDS PAY MONEY TO BERLIN.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The first portion of the Russian war indemnity to Germany was sent on Saturday last from Moscow to Berlin, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today. It amounted to 250,000,000 rubles, one-half in gold and the remainder in notes.

The money was carried on a special train under strong guard, and was received by a representative of the Reichsbank at the border line.

FALL FUR EXHIBITION

THE Exhibition of new Fur Fashions for Fall and Winter, in progress in the show rooms of the Jaeckel Building, in West Thirty-second street, has awakened interest to the full extent justified by the occasion.

In no former presentation of Fur Fashions has the grace with which the finest furs may be draped, to conform perfectly with the latest Parisian developments in style, been exemplified.

The lavish abundance of new Paris models—greater in number than in any former season, represent the best type of collaboration between our own representative and

To produce the results shown required the expert knowledge possessed by this house, as to the manipulation of furs and the present condition and possibilities of the fur market, added to the inspirational taste of these great French authorities in dress.

The presentation is most complete, both in the highest grade of garments and those of more moderate price—and through the entire collection the fact is apparent that fine furs have not increased in price in proportion to woolen apparel. The present economy of furs, by comparison, is manifest.

FRANCE FIGHTS RISE IN COST OF LIVING

Committee of Ministers to Seek Methods of Cutting the Prices of Food.

HIGHER STATE PAY INDORSED

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The extremely serious increase in the cost of living, not merely in Paris, but throughout France, may be gauged to some extent by the substantial character of proposals to increase the pay of the military and civilian employes of the State, which have been embodied in a bill to be laid before the Chamber. The bill was approved by the Council of Ministers today.

Under this bill married civilian public servants drawing salaries under $2,400 a year will receive additional war pay of forty cents a day. This increase will also be given to unmarried civil servants who are mobilized and who have parents, brothers, sisters, nephews or nieces dependent on them.

All those who are mobilized and draw their pay monthly, that is to say, all officers, will receive in addition to the present allowances for their families an extra dollar a month for each child. The present salary limits are to be abolished and the benefits of existing allowances made in respect to families are to be extended to all classes of men, regardless of pay.

The total cost to the country of these increased allowances is estimated at $100,000,000. The new scale of allowances, it is proposed, shall date as from the beginning of July last.

Finance Minister Klotz, at today's meeting of the Ministers, announced that the Government would take vigorously in hand the question of stopping the artificial rise in the prices of all necessaries in the way of foodstuffs, which in the last few weeks has assumed little short of monstrous proportions. Taking the view that the only effective remedy will be to suppress the abusive profits of intermediaries, the Government has appointed an Interministerial Committee to study the best means of placing at the disposal of the population of the country, in best condition as to price and quality, necessaries in the way of foodstuffs, and more particularly measures which may be taken in this direction for the benefit of those engaged in public services, by the creation of co-operative agencies, canteens and organizations for meals in common.

M. Boret, the French Food Controller, is known to have contemplated for several months past the wholesale requisitioning of a large proportion of the foodstuff in the country, and any step in this direction would undoubtedly be welcomed by the great mass of the public.

Instances of the manner in which prices are being raised develop daily. The price of ordinary French table beer suddenly rose yesterday 40 per cent. in the average Paris restaurant. The reason given was that the public was drinking more beer owing to the higher present cost of wine. The cheapest vin ordinaire, which couldo be obtained before the war at from 7 to 21 cents a bottle of a pint and three-quarters, according to quality, cannot now be had under 40 cents. The prices of all wines, it is announced this week, are to go considerably higher forthwith. The extraordinary explanation given by the dealers is that the increase is due to the fact that the wine crop is exceptionally large this year and that prices have to be raised because there is a shortage of barrels.

On a par with this is the defense offered by the dairy farmers, who have raised the price of milk from 7 cents for a pint and three-quarters to 20 cents. Their excuse is that their cows, which were formerly worth $100 each, are now worth three times as much, consequently they say, as the yield is more or less a fixed quantity, it is right to raise the price of that commodity until it yields the same percentage of profit on the increased value of their four-legged capital as it did before that value soared to the present fancy figures. The fact that the cows are exactly the same animals, they insist, does not enter into the argument.

The cost of living in Paris, it is generally agreed, is now twice what it was a year ago and three times the figure of before the war days.

KILLED FLEEING CREW OF NORWEGIAN SHIP

Lone Survivor's Tale of German Brutality Arouses Indignation Throughout Norway.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Christiania correspondent of The Daily Express telegraphs:

"The sole survivor of the Norwegian ship Eglantine, which was carrying charcoal, has arrived at Bergen and reports that a submarine sank the vessel without warning. The boat then bombarded the crew, who had taken refuge in the ship's lifeboats. The Germans saw their victims bathed in blood, but gave no assistance. The Captain and five men died of wounds on a raft, while the mate went mad.

"The whole country is indignant. The Christiania press declares that the U-boat brutality has surpassed all limits."

Colville Barclay a Minister.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Colville Barclay, who has been first counselor of the British Embassy here for several years, and who now is in charge in the absence of Lord Reading, has been elevated to the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary. He will remain attached to the embassy for the present, which thus will have three Ministers in addition to the Ambassador, Sir Richard Crawford and Sir Henry Babbington-Smith holding that rank.

HOLD ENEMY WOMAN AS TELEGRAPH SPY

Had Charge of Wire That Carried Government Messages to Munition Centre.

CAUGHT BY SECRET SERVICE

Men Posing as Kaiser's Agents Said to Have Gotten Information from the Prisoner.

Wanda Kruetzinger, a German subject and a registered enemy alien, who has been handling Government messages for the Postal Telegraph Company at Broadway and Murray Street, was arrested by agents of the Department of Justice yesterday afternoon and held pending further investigation of her activities since the outbreak of the European war in 1914. Miss Kreutzinger was born in Posen forty-two years ago and has made her home in this country for more than twenty years. She is said to be as loyal as she ever was to the Kaiser, and Government agents say that during 1914 and 1915 she was in position to render valuable assistance to German agents in this country because of messages relating to munitions, ships, and other important matters which passed through her hands.

It was also said yesterday that the Federal officials have information which leads them to suspect that during the last six weeks Miss Kreutzinger gave important information to certain persons, whom she thought were agents of the German Government, but who were secret agents of the Department of Justice. The information she is alleged to have given to these agents was contained in telegrams which passed through her hands and which were sent over the direct wire to New Haven, which wire is used almost exclusively for Government messages.

It was during the lunch hour yesterday when two agents of the Department of Justice appeared at the Postal Telegraph Building and asked to see Miss Kreutzinger. They were told that she was in the main operating room and was in charge of the New Haven wire.

When she saw the agents of the Department of Justice she is said to have torn up several papers which were on her desk, but the fragments were picked up and pieced together in the offices of Chief De Woody. The nature of the writing was not disclosed by Chief De Woody. The woman protested vigorously when informed that she was in Federal custody, and continued to protest as she was taken down in the elevator and through the hall into Broadway.

On her arrival at 21 Park Row she was taken before Chief De Woody and questioned most of the afternoon. She told De...oody she was a registered enemy alien and that her home was at 1,324 St. Nicholas Avenue. She entered the employ of the Postal Telegraph Company in Chicago sixteen years ago and added that when the European war started she was transferred to the New York office. For some time she said she has been in charge of the New Haven wire. New Haven is in the centre of one of the most important munition manufacturing districts in this country.

The information in possession of the Department of Justice is that Miss Kreutzinger did not supply copies of the messages to supposed German agents, but memorized them and imparted the information by word of mouth. The Federal authorities say she rendered this service to the Germans not for money, but for love of the Fatherland. It is said that she had reason to believe that the information was for the naval and military authorities in Berlin.

Following her examination by Chief De Woody the woman was arraigned before Rufus W. Sprague, Jr., head of the Enemy Alien Bureau, who ordered her locked up in the Waverly House detention prison for women enemy subjects. There are now about a dozen women subjects of the Kaiser at Waverly House waiting the determination of their status by the Department of Justice.

Another enemy taken into custody yesterday was Simon Tinchner, a farmer of Mineola. He, too, has been in this country many years. Years ago he applied for first papers, but never completed his naturalization. He was arrested by agents of the Army Intelligence Service. For some weeks Tinchner has been collecting waste materials at a large embarkation post near New York. He got the privilege by posing as an American citizen. When arrested he had a 38-calibre pistol in his pocket. He was committed, pending further investigation, to the Essex County Jail.

Edward Warneke of 131 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken, and another German, who said his name was Wilhelm Kaiser, and that his home was at 548 Third Avenue, this city, were arrested yesterday afternoon and committed to the Essex County Jail until their cases can be looked into by Mr. Sprague. The Germans, both young men, are alleged to have violated the barred zone regulations by operating jitney buses along the New Jersey waterfront. Most of the passengers they carried were soldiers.

Kaiser when taken into custody wore an American Defense League badge and Warneke wore a Red Cross button.

PUT ATTORNEY IN JAIL WHO ASSAILED SCHWAB

Lawyer from Washington Is Held in Jersey City on Charge of Sedition.

Richard Rowe, a lawyer of Washington, D. C., who said that he was acquainted with many Government officials and knew much of the affairs of the United States Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation, was held on a charge of sedition for the Hudson County Grand Jury yesterday after witnesses in the Second Criminal Court in Jersey City had testified that he made "seditious remarks about a prominent official of the Federal Administration." Witnesses testified that Rowe described Charles M. Schwab as a "four-flusher" who was sending "unfinished" ships to sea to carry American troops and had "stolen" German ships for the American transport service.

Rowe was arrested in the Grove Street Station of the Hudson tunnels at 4 o'clock yesterday morning while he was on his way from the Yale Club here to Jersey City to take a train for Washington. Witnesses in the Jersey City court said that Rowe began a tirade against the Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation after he had overheard William Pennewell, a soldier on guard duty, remark to James O'Neill, a sailor in the United States Navy:

"Well, I suppose you are going back to swabbing the decks now, aren't you?"

While Rowe was in the midst of his remarks about the shipping program the soldier and the sailor interrupted him and called the police. The soldier and the sailor went to the City Hall Police Station to make a complaint, accompanied by Charles J. Moriarity, an officer of the Atlas Construction Company, at 20 Clinton Street, Newark.

When he was taken to court, Rowe insisted that he was a loyal citizen but said he would not retract his assertions about the Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He repeated them, and added that he did not criticise the Administration, but that he did wish to criticise Mr. Schwab. Mr. Moriarity and other witnesses told Judge O'Driscoll they had heard him make the remarks in the station. Bail was fixed at $2,500, and Rowe was remanded to the Hudson County Jail when friends, whom he had summoned, refused to furnish bail after they had heard his remarks.

Rowe insisted that he was a friend of Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's Secretary, and was acquainted with President Wilson and many other members of the Administration. In his correspondence were letters indicating that he might have done legal work for the Shipping Board or for shipbuilding companies holding contracts from the Government.

MAY NEED MORE JAPANESE.

And Tokio Believes We, Too, Will Follow Practical Course in Siberia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch to The Daily Express from Tokio says:

"The present progress of the Allies in Siberia is encouraging, but it would be unwise to underrate the possibilities of resistance which the Austro-Germans are organizing. Many experts urge an increase in the Japanese force in order to insure the safety of the Czechs before Winter, and a diplomatic council has been summoned for tomorrow.

"Newspapers report that America is still against the sending of a large expedition. If that is the case the Japanese political elements which opposed intervention will assert themselves, but I have authority for stating that America, while adhering to her general policy, will follow a practical course.

"The American Red Cross at Vladivostok is freely open to all Allies. Twenty-seven British soldiers are now being treated in the American hospital."

AUTO SHOWS CANCELLED.

Action Taken at Request of War Industries Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board announced today that the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has canceled the National Automobile Shows of 1919, which were to have been held during January and February in New York and Chicago.

This action was taken at the request of Mr. Baruch and of George N. Peek, the board's Commissioner of Finished Products.

TO FINISH BUILDINGS BEGUN.

Government Not to Interfere with New York Construction Under Way.

Assurance that the Government would not interfere with building operations now under way in New York is tending to clear a situation which for a time threatened to paralyze all local construction. William Fellowes Morgan, Regional Adviser for the Resources and Conversion Section of the War Industries Board, was notified yesterday by Charles A. Otis, chief of the section, that permission had been issued for the continuance of buildings now under way until further notice without permit, but that new construction of all kinds must be authorized by the Building Material Section of the War Industries Board after favorable recommendation from the State Council of Defense.

The Branch House Man

This is one of the Swift & Company Branch House Men.

They are all pretty much alike in the way they feel toward their work—and that is what this ad is about.

They know that most people couldn't get such good meat promptly and in good condition if it weren't for the branch houses of which they are in charge.

They know that the branch house is one of the most important links in the chain of preparing and distributing meat for a nation.

They know that Swift & Company must have its branch houses run at the highest notch of usefulness; that even a Swift & Company branch house won't run itself, and that it is up to the branch house man to run it properly.

Any branch house man who doesn't see his work in this light is transferred to some other place with Swift & Company to which he is better adapted.

They are picked men, these branch house men. Every time you sit down to a steak or chop, or cut of roast, you can give a grateful thought to the whole crew of them.

And remember, in a general way, that everything that makes life smoother and more convenient for you is the result of the thoughtfulness and effort of a lot of people of whom you have never heard.

CITY'S SOCIALISTS DEMAND PEACE NOW

Local Party Will Go Into the Election Upon That Platform.

"NOT 100 PER CENT. LOYAL"

Alderman Cheered for This Sentiment—Scott Nearing Will Oppose Administration at Washington.

The Socialist Party in this city will go before the people at election urging an immediate peace by negotiation with the enemy, declared speakers at a mass meeting last night in Webster Hall, East Eleventh Street, to ratify Scott Nearing, once professor and once indicted, as the Socialist Congressional candidate from the Fourteenth District. Every reference to demands that the United States play into Germany's hands by negotiating for peace received wild applause, and when one speaker condemned the National Security League's campaign to insure 100 per cent. loyal candidates, and inferred that the Socialists didn't give a rap about 100 per cent. loyalty, more cheers and handkerchief waving and stamping and other forms of radical approval were his.

"I do not believe that there are many people in this country who think the United States should stay in the war forever," said Alderman Abraham Beckerman, "and I believe that it is vitally necessary to lay down a program of peace. I think that we should put in a peace program and try to put it in effect as soon as possible."

Here Alderman Backerman halted for a full minute while the audience applauded. He then continued

"The Socialist Party is not a party that believes in war to the bitter end. The Socialist Party believes that the war should be brought to an end and through negotiations with Italy, Russia, the United States, Germany, France, and Austria taking part. If you want war vote for Weis and La Guardia (Congressman serving as aviator with the Italian forces.) We want to protest against any Government that prevents an international conference of Socialists from meeting to work out a program of peace. We insist upon the method of bringing out peace, and we do not want peace to be brought about by professional diplomats who played a big part in bringing about war.

"The Socialist Party doesn't pretend to be 100 per cent. loyal, but we will put our ideas up to the people and if they elect us it won't matter whether we are 100 per cent. loyal or not."

Scott Nearing was then introduced and applauded for nearly three minutes. He declared that the Socialist campaign wasn't going to be a speakers' campaign, saying, "because of the Espionage law and the Liberty Loan campaign there never was a time when the American people were up against it as they are now." As some of the principles upon which he intends to base his campaign for Congress, he read these:

That the producing classes of the United States take over the machinery of production, and declare their independence of big business, just as our ancestors in 1776 took over the machinery of politics and declared their independence of royalty.

That the producers of America take possession of the banks, railroads, mines, factories, and other great industries, organize them as an industrial co-operative commonwealth, and operate them for the benefit and advantage of the producers, with the slogan, "Self-government for the producers; a steady job for the parasites."

That the producers organize a public press and operate it, like any other great utility, for public benefit.

That the State Department issue passports to the representatives of the American Socialist Party so that they may attend conferences of Socialist and Labor delegates from the warring and neutral countries.

That the American Government take the necessary steps toward the holding of an international conference for the purpose of bringing about an early, democratic, and permanent peace.

That the American delegates to the peace conference be elected at large by a system of proportional representation.

That sufficient wealth be conscripted to pay the entire American war debt.

That the Federal Suffrage Amendment be passed without further delay.

I shall go to Congress, in your name, opposing the present Democratic Administration because:

It passed and enforced an espionage law and other similar laws under which the rights of free speech, free press, and freedom of assemblage, guaranteed by the Constitution, have been abridged and denied.

It has established a nationwide spy system over American citizens, and attempted to terrorize a free people into silence on public questions of the greatest importance.

Nearing announced that he planned to issue a weekly letter to his following during the campaign. His platform, he said, was the first of his bulletins. He closed with an appeal for funds, and many in the audience pledged themselves to contribute $5 weekly. About 1,500 were present.

The township officials will be required to show cause on Saturday why they should not be permanently prohibited from putting the resolution into effect.

TO CURB SUGAR PROFITS.

Federal Food Board Warns Public Against Profiteering.

In behalf of the United States Food Administration, the Federal Food Board yesterday issued a statement analyzing the new sugar prices which became effective on Sept. 9. The Food Board warns the public that the increase of 1½ cents on the pound allowed to refiners and producers must not be averaged with the cost of any sugar, nor will the wholesalers and retailers be permitted to advance prices until the present stocks of old sugars are exhausted. The Food Board's statement says:

"The prices to the consumer in New York City, after allowing a gross profit of 35 cents a hundred pounds for the wholesaler and $1 per hundred pounds for the retailers, are now as follows: One pound, 11 cents; two pounds, 21 cents; three pounds, 31 cents; four pounds, 42 cents; five pounds, 52 cents. Slight increases in prices for up-State are allowed to cover the cost of freight transportation. These prices apply only to sugar sold or in transit from the refiner on and after Sept. 9.

"The regulation limiting the sale from the retailer to the consumer to two pounds at a time in cities and towns and five pounds in rural districts have been rescinded. Consumers are now allowed to purchase one week's family supply. For instance a family of eight people in New York City who have heretofore been allowed to buy only two pounds at a time are now permitted to buy one week's supply on the basis of two pounds per month, or one-half pound per week per person, or a total of four pounds for one week."

E. V. DEBS DECLINES TO OFFER DEFENSE

Admits Federal Charges and Is Willing to Die in Jail for Views, He Says.

PLEADS FREE SPEECH RIGHT

Socialist Contends Minorities Are Always Right—Jury to Get the Case Today.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—The ideals of the socialistic belief and the hard facts of the law of a land in deadly earnest about winning a war were presented to a Federal jury here today, and tomorrow Eugene V. Debs will know whether he is to pay the penalty for violation of the Espionage act.

The defense presented no evidence, no argument, save that presented by the defendant himself. Four times candidate of his party for President, and famous as the most eloquent of its orators, Debs expended his eloquence in admitting every fact alleged by the Government, even declining to repudiate the rabidly anti-war program of the Socialists adopted at St. Louis. He pleaded only that the Constitution guaranteed the right of free speech.

His attorneys, Seymour Stedman, William Cunnea, Joseph Sharts, and Morris M. Wolf, sat quietly as spectators while the tall, gaunt defendant, whose worn gray suit hung loosely from his angular frame, declared his willingness to die in prison for the principles of socialism to which he has devoted his life.

Judge Westenhaver's court was packed with spectators, mostly standing up the better to see and hear. At the opening of court tomorrow the Judge will charge the jury, which will then retire to consider a verdict.

In the forenoon the Government completed the presentation of its case, and argument was opened by Assistant United States District Attorney Joseph A. Breitenstein. Debs spoke at the opening of the afternoon session, and District Attorney Edwin S. Wertz closed. Debs's speech, he said, was a complete confession not only that he opposed all wars, but that, he actively opposed this one and the machinery by which it was being prosecuted. The District Attorney traced the careful wording of the defendant's speech at Canton, Ohio, on June 16 which led to his indictment, to the outspoken declarations of the St. Louis anti-war program.

In his first words Debs said: "I have no dispute with the evidence presented by the Government, no criticism for the counsel for the prosecution. I would not take back a word of what I believe right to save myself from the penitentiary. I am accused of crime, but I look the Court in the face, I look the jury in the face, I look the world in the fact, for in my heart no accusation of wrong festers."

Debs said that history showed that minorities had always been right on great questions, and recounted the martyrdom of men who, like Socrates, thought in advance of their time. Lincoln and Webster, he said, bitterly opposed the Mexican War, and criticised the Administration of President Polk.

Wertz later reminded the jury in his turn that in the days of Polk there was no Espionage act such as that under which Debs was accused.

BRIDGEPORT STRIKERS REJECT ULTIMATUM

Refuse to Return to Work After Being Threatened with Expulsion from Union.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 11.—The 5,000 machinists who have been on a strike in this city for the last two weeks at a mass meeting this afternoon unanimously rejected the ultimatum of William H. Johnston, National President of the International Association of Machinists, which stated that if they did not go back to work within forty-eight hours and abide by the decision of the National War Labor Board their union cards would be revoked. The men voted unanimously to remain out till they heard direct from President Wilson on their appeal to him.

After President Johnston's ultimatum was read to the meeting a number of speakers said that he was exceeding his authority; that the international body of machinists would never stand for a Czar; that Johnston had a yellow streak in him, as on Labor Day he advised the men to stick for their rights, and that if they could not get their minimum wage in Bridgeport they would go to cities where they could get it.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Striking machinists at Bridgeport, Conn., were notified today by William H. Johnston, President of the International Association of Machinists, that they must return to their work at war plants within forty-eight hours on pain of suspension from the international body.

TO SERVE ON RESERVE BOARD

Representative Glass and Albert Strauss May Fill Vacancies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—While no confirmation is available owing to the absence of Secretary McAdoo, there is a strong expectation that the selections have been made, at least tentatively, to fill the vacancies on the Federal Reserve Board caused by the resignation of Frederic A. Delano, who has entered the American military service in France, and the retirement at the end of his term of service of Paul M. Warburg.

The place made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Delano is to be filled, it is said, by the appointment of Representative Carter Glass, now Chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency. The place made vacant by the retirement of Mr. Warburg probably will be filled by the appointment of Albert Strauss of the Banking firm of J. and W. Seligman & Co. of New York.

Mr. Glass, if he accepts the appointment, will have two years to serve on the Reserve Board. Mr. Strauss will serve for the full term of four years. His selection is due to his standing as a banker and man of administrative ability. The Federal Reserve act provides that of the five members appointed by the President at least two shall be persons experienced in banking or finance.

There has been consideration of the name of Dr. H. Parker Willis, the framer of the Federal Reserve act and the First Secretary of the Reserve Board, who is now in New York organizing the office of the Director of Research, a division under the Reserve Board. Dr. Willis recently resigned the office of Secretary of the board to enter on this work and also to accept the Chair of Banking in Columbia University. There is a possibility, however, that in the event that Congressman Glass should prefer to remain in the House, that Dr. Willis would be asked to become a member of the Reserve Board.

It is expected that the announcement of the new appointments to the Reserve Board will be made soon after the return of Secretary McAdoo from his tour of inspection of the railroads of the country.

Schiff Declines to Join Conference to Oppose Zionism.

The Zionist Organization of America gave out yesterday a letter written by Jacob H. Schiff to Dr. David Philipson of Cincinnati, Ohio, in which Mr. Schiff declared his opposition to anti-Zionist movements. Mr. Schiff asserted that even more than when he first ceased his opposition to the Zionist movement, he now felt that the creation of a Jewish homeland in Palestine was desirable. Declining Dr. Philipson's invitation to join a conference to organize an opposition to Zionism, Mr. Schiff said:

"I am very much afraid that conditions in Russia, Poland, Rumania, Austria, perhaps even Germany and elsewhere, are such that the outlook for the Jews there—and these form a vast majority of the Jewish population of the world—is far from being a favorable one, and that for reasons which would lead too far to go into here, but which by all those who want to use their eyes can be well seen, considerable unhappiness, if not suffering, is likely in store in the countries I have named for the Jewish population.

"American Israel alone, in co-operation with its English and French coreligionists, is in a position to effectually help this proposed creation of a centre where the Jew forced out by impossible conditions under which he may have to live in the Diaspora, shall be able to go with the assurance that he shall find very sympathetic surroundings and conditions under which he and posterity shall be willing to live.

"There can be no doubt that the success of these endeavors will have the most healthy and refreshing effect upon entire Israel, wherever in the world its members may be located, and the proposition which you bring forward that American Israel combine to oppose these efforts is in my opinion nothing less than preposterous."

Mr. Schiff in the concluding paragraphs of his letter paid his respects to Dr. Philipson, but said that in organizing an opposition to Zionism Dr. Philipson was about to place himself at the head of a movement that is certain to fail.

The Zionist Organization of America announced yesterday a contribution by Bernard M. Baruch of the War Industries Board of $10,000 to the Palestine Restoration Fund.

Schooner Derelict After Collision.

ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 11.—After having been in collision with the four-masted schooner Governor Powers, off the New England coast, last night a steamer arrived here today with the schooner's Captain and crew. The steamer's bow was damaged and the end of the schooner's jibboom protruded from it, indicating that the collision had been head-on. The wreck of the schooner was reported to be lying three miles west of Handkerchief Shoal Lightship, a menace to navigation.

SOUND COLLEGE PREPARATION

Riverdale Country School

Overlooking Van Cortlandt Park, at West 252nd Street, near Broadway.

RESULTS at the College Entrance Examination Board:

June, Nineteen Seventeen — 16 Riverdale students secured 96% success.

June, Nineteen Eighteen — 21 Riverdale students secured 94% success.

The country-wide AVERAGE in 1917, the latest figures published, was only 52.9% success.

In either boarding or day departments at Riverdale Country School, there are, literally, but few vacancies, and these principally in the last few years of college preparation.

The new building of Riverdale Country School is perhaps the most healthful and certainly the most beautiful structure of its kind in these parts.

The POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE, COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING, 85-99 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has established for high school graduates a unit of the Students' Army Training Corps.

Every regularly enrolled student in the technical courses who passes the physical examination and is 18 years or over may, about October 1st, be inducted into the United States Army as a member of the Students' Army Training Corps. He would from that time receive the pay of a private, be supplied with the regular uniform, with lodging and subsistence, and the War Department would pay the full cost of his military and academic instruction. This is an opportunity to work for a commission.

Peach Stones and Gas Masks

It is easier in war than in peace to interest boys in school if you put them in the right school. Following is an extract from a conversation between the head of the Science Department and a parent:

Parent:—"By the way, can you tell me why the Government is so eager for peach stones?"

Teacher:—"Yes, indeed. It has been found that the peach pits make the best charcoal for gas masks."

Parent:—"Now I should be interested to know if you actually make charcoal from peach pits."

Teacher:—"No, indeed. I have the boys make the charcoal themselves, and test it in their home refrigerators."

Parent:—"You may enroll my boy at McBurney."

So Much Depends on Footwear

For instance, the woman of to-day is learning that her health, her carriage, her figure and even her face reflect the shoes she wears.

The very foundation of good looks and gracefulness is comfortable, well-supported feet. Such feet are most often shod in Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes.

Think well of these things before you buy shoes. You are sure to realize that this yielding cushion underfoot presents you at your best.

Resinol
aids poor complexions

If your complexion is rough, red, or unhealthy looking, don't try to cover up the defects with cosmetics which do not conceal, but usually attract attention to the reason for their use. Begin today to treat your skin with Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap.

This treatment not only helps cleanse the skin but enables it to breathe, and usually removes redness and roughness.

Ask your dealer for Resinol Soap and Ointment.

SOLDIER AND SAILOR
Carry in your pocket two or three envelopes of Allen's Foot-Ease
The Antiseptic, Healing Powder

These envelopes take up little or no room and are always ready for instant use in healing scratches and skin breaks as well as for sprinkling into the shoes to prevent chafing of the feet and inflamed foot sore conditions. Allen's Foot-Ease takes the friction from the shoe and freshens the feet.

Soldiers use Foot-Ease

The Plattsburg Camp Manual advises men in training to shake Foot-Ease in their shoes each morning.

When writing to your Soldier and Sailor friends in Training Camps and Cantonments, why not enclose an envelope or two of Allen's Foot-Ease. One War Relief Committee writes: "We are having many requests for Allen's Foot-Ease from the troops." Sold everywhere by Drug and Department Stores, 30c.

Old Time in his flight turned backward twenty years and more last night at the Casino. Those walls which in late decades have sustained the shock of musical comedy heard again the more stately strains of operetta. On the program "The Maid of the Mountains" is called "A Musical Play," but that is mere managerial camouflage. The offering is in the grand old manner—or, rather, the baby grand—which was so much loved in the youth of those who would now find a compliment, and no insult, in being rounded up by the slacker raiders. Its success will depend almost wholly upon whether, in despair of renewing their youth, they are willing and eager to recall it.

In London the public has proved equal to the strain of remembering happier things. The piece, produced over a year ago, is still running there, and running strong. In point of fact it is a very favorable specimen of its kind. Sperimen, you the whole, is the word. It is a perfect exemplar of its type.

The first act shows a band of robbers, hidden deep in the fastness of presumably Spanish mountains, where they have grown rich with loot under a romantic gentleman chief. Though beloved by a peasant girl who has attached herself to the band, his eye has been taken by a maiden from the capital. He and his band go to the city in disguise, where the second act brings a development of the long familiar love story. He wins the regard of his lady love, and his peasant adorer, torn by jealousy, betrays him. The last act shows them captives on a Mediterranean island and brings the romantically happy ending.

Sidonie Espero was the mountain maid, and she not only sang the role with a voice of unusual clarity and sweetness, but invested its primitive passions with no small vigor and fire. They ran through the gamut of love, jealousy, revenge, and remorse and each phase was quite adequately denoted. By the end of the evening the audience was all her own. Evelyn Egerton was the naughty daughter of the Governor, and very beautiful in her stately, Castilian way. William Courtenay was the bandit hero; and though being gentle untrained to song, he omitted the musical numbers in his part or recited them as verse, his handsome presence and his power as a romantic actor made ample amends. It was perhaps the most vigorous and distinguished performance of his career.

There was also the usual band of low comedians. Bert Clark and Miriam Doyle exploited the humors and infelicities of married life. William Danforth as a silly ass Governor and Al. Roberts as his aide burlesqued official vanity and incompetency. The humor of the piece, too, was of a sound old vintage, as was the musicianly score.

The three sets were spacious and beautiful in their various colors, splendors that quite dazzled the eye, and the costumes likewise. The women of the chorus were notable for good looks—considering how well they sang. Altogether, it was a characteristic Elliott-Comstock-Gest production, which is to say that it was distinguished for the generous use of money, inspired by good taste.

And so we have them back again, the good old days. It will be interesting to see whether we like them as well as they do in England—and as well as our local prophets of modern despair have so long insisted that we should like them.

HAYS DENIES SLUR ON ADMINISTRATION

Questioned by Tumulty at President's Request—Republicans' Versions of Speech Conflict.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Secretary Tumulty has written to Will H. Hays, Chairman of the National Republican Committee, asking him if it is true, as a published report states, that on Labor Day at Chicago he said to a gathering of thirty-one Republican State Chairmen:

"The Democratic leaders at Washington would not stop at anything that they believed would insure the re-election of a Democratic Congress this Fall. They would even end the war with any kind of a compromise if that would insure the continuance of the Democratic Party in power."

President Wilson does not purpose to allow the attitude of the Government respecting international policies, vitally involved in the war, to be unjustly assailed for political reasons, and it was at his request that Secretary Tumulty questioned Mr. Hays.

The telegram was addressed to Mr. Hays at Indianapolis, but it happened that he was in Washington and did not receive the message. He said tonight that he had not uttered the words attributed to him. He will reply to that effect to Secretary Tumulty's telegram when it has been received.

TOPEKA, Kans., Sept. 11.—State Chairman Harvey H. Motter of the Republican Party, in an interview here today, stated that he gave to the Kansas press the statement accredited to National Chairman Will H. Hays upon his return to Topeka from a meeting of State Chairmen with Hays in Chicago.

"The statement quoted in Secretary Tumulty's letter is just about what Chairman Hays said, with this exception," said Chairman Motter: "Mr. Hays said: 'There is a Socialistic coterie of men in Washington,' who would do the things referred to by Tumulty. The impression I got was that Mr. Hays meant certain influences in Washington and not necessarily the Administration or the Democratic Party as a whole."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—Fred W. Upham, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, said today that while he did not hear all of the speeches Mr. Hays made here on Labor Day, he knew Mr. Hays did not say anything like the language used in the Tumulty telegram.

"He never said it," declared Mr. Upham. "He might have said that while the Democrats were saying that politics was adjourned the Democrats were making every possible effort to elect a Democratic Congress. Mr. Hays is one of the most loyal men in this country and would never think of making such a charge against the Administration."

circumstances, for the field of battle, and classifying those remaining in accordance with the extent to which their energies are needed for the support of the nation at home and the maintenance of the military establishment. It is thus that we must proceed if we are most effectively to distribute the energies of our people for the supreme task of winning the war.

"The obligation resting upon the individual this day is clear-cut and not to be mistaken. The patriotism and the honor of our manhood furnish the main reliance of the nation at this hour. Patriots will not fail to respond. Slackers must respond. For those who would evade their obligation the law provides punishment swift and certain. A year's imprisonment faces the man who evades registration. And no man can buy his escape from this penalty through payment of a fine.

"The registrars are at their posts awaiting you."

An earlier statement from the Provost Marshal General's office, which was authorized by the War Department, read:

"Everything is in readiness for the registration tomorrow. We have received telegrams from every State and from every one of the local boards and registration districts, stating that preparations have been completed.

"Registrars in every locality will be at their posts at 7 o'clock in the morning and will remain continuously on duty until 9 o'clock tomorrow night. It only remains for those required to register to do their part.

Orders to Draft Officials.

"Pursuant to the decision regarding the age groups first to be classified and called out, the Provost Marshal General's office today sent out the following instructions to the draft executives in all the States:

"'Please communicate by wire the following in full to all local boards:

"'Under the act of Congress approved Aug. 31, 1918, the President directs that in calling and drafting for military service the persons who register Sept. 12, 1918, or at any time thereafter in pursuance of the proclamation by the President, dated Aug. 31, 1918, only registrants who on Sept. 12, 1918, shall have attained their 19th birthday and who shall not have attained their 37th birthday, shall be called for classification and drafted for military service until further orders.

"'In accordance with Section 92, Selective Service Regulations, a day will hereafter be designated by the Provost Marshal General when the mailing of questionnaires shall commence and instructions will then prescribe the time within which questionnaires shall be mailed by local boards.

"'In pursuance of this order, questionnaires will be mailed by local boards during the time to be hereafter designated only to registrants of the ages hereinbefore specified.

"'Hereafter only the Third Edition of the Questionnaire shall be mailed or delivered registrants.'"

Immediate consideration for active military service will be given to the groups including youths of 19 and 20 years and the men between 32 and 36. They will receive the questionnaires first—probably the task of sending them out will be begun by Monday—and will be expected to return them within seven days. Employers and all other representatives of industries are asked by the Provost Marshal General to assist in rushing this work of classification because of the immediate demand for man power in the cantonments.

The recruiting division of the Navy Department made this announcement today to all inspectors and recruiting officers:

"Registration is required of all Naval Reservists not on active duty. These men will be placed in Class 5 as heretofore."

Baruch's Plea to Employers.

Another recognition of the added importance which the classification decisions involve since the draft ages have been extended to include older men was given today when Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board asked employers to familiarize themselves with the details of the law, and to "make it a matter of honor to ask for the industrial exemption of the lowest possible number, and only for the indispensable key men."

The age limits for those to be first called, the Provost Marshal's office indicated, were fixed so as to include for earlier service a variety of individuals between those ages. Besides the 19 and 20 year old classes, it takes in 60,000 men who have reached 21 since Aug. 24. As 3,000 youths of 18 reach their 19th birthday each day, the date Sept. 12 fixes a dividing line for them. Also, a smaller number of individuals now between 21 and 31, who by some circumstance of location or condition on previous registration days did not register, will be enrolled tomorrow, and they, too, are included in the first calls.

To permit employes to register with the rest, the Senate today adjourned until Friday, though the lower house will be in session to continue discussion of the Revenue bill.

While it is not expected that there will be a general cessation of work, General Crowder has asked employers to give their men ample time to register so that the registrars will not be overwhelmed in the closing hours of the day.

MAKE FINAL PLANS FOR REGISTRATION DAY

Army of 900,000 Men to be Enrolled at 1,100 Places in This City.

The registration of 900,000 New Yorkers who come within the new draft ages of 18 to 21 and 31 to 45 years begins at 7 o'clock this morning in about 1,100 registration places in the 189 draft districts into which the City of New York is divided. Every man who is over 18 years old has has not yet reached his forty-sixth birthday must register today, unless he already is in the military or naval service or registered in one of the three previous selective draft registrations. Special arrangements for the registration of the sick in hospitals and other persons who through no fault of their own are unable to go to a regular registration place have been made. Draft Director Martin Conboy expects the registration to be completed by 9 o'clock tonight, the official hour for the closing of the registration offices.

In a statement issued last night from his office in the Hall of Records Director Conboy said:

"The plans for registering the great army of men between the ages of 18 and 46 have been completed in every respect and detail, and at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning every registration place in the City of New York will be fully equipped to handle the registration at that place.

"There should be no lingering doubt in any one's mind at this time about his duty to register if he is within the new ages. This applies to every man of those ages without exception. It not only applies to citizens of the United States, but every alien as well, and whether he has declared his intention to become a citizen or not. It applies to enemy aliens. In short, no one is relieved from the necessity of registering if he is between the ages of 18 and 46 unless he has already registered on the three previous registration days—June 5, 1917, and June 5 and Aug. 24, 1918. Of course, those who registered under the State military enrollment must register under the selective service law at this time.

About 12,000 persons will assist in the registration. Mr. Conboy said that one registrar for every eighty registrants had been provided, and that an ample force of interpreters had been engaged to handle the problem in those parts of the city where there is a large non-English speaking population.

Each registrant will be asked twenty questions, which means that about 180,000,000 questions will be asked by the registrars in the City of New York today. The questions are simple.

MEN MUST REGISTER TODAY.

Every man past his 18th birthday and who has not yet reached his 46th, except those already registered or in service, must register for the selective service draft today.

LEAGUE INDORSES SMITH.

Non-Partisan Committee Reports in Favor of Democratic Candidate.

At a meeting of the Nonpartisan League held last night at headquarters, Lafayette and Reade Streets, Alfred E. Smith was indorsed for Governor on the report of a committee of fifteen headed by John J. Kean which had been appointed to report on the records of each candidate for Governor.

George B. Hutton, President of the League, presided, and speeches favoring Mr. Smith were made by John McNamara, Arthur Berry, and Assistant District Attorney Alexander Rorke. Because two other organizations are using the name Nonpartisan League it was decided to change to the Nonpartisan Association of New York.

NAVY RESPECTS YOM KIPPUR

No Jewish Sailors or Officers to be Transferred on That Day.

The Navy Department has issued an order deferring transfer of Jewish sailors and naval officers on Monday, Sept. 16, because Yom Kippur, the most sacred of all the Jewish holy days, falls on that day. Arrangements had already been made to transfer a large number of men, including many Jews, on that date when, through the Jewish Welfare Board, the Navy Department was made aware of the important religious observance. It immediately changed its plans so that Jewish boys might spend the day with their families or observe it in a fitting manner.

THOMPSON LOSES, M'CORMICK WINS

no opposition for the Republican nomination in the Second District.

The indications in the First District were favorable for the easy renomination of Congressman Martin B. Madden.

Congressmen Joseph Cannon and William B. McKinley were winners without opposition.

In the Democratic contest for Congressman at Large, William Elza Williams of Pittsfield, and Benjamin J. Rosenthal of Chicago appear to be winners.

Congressman John W. Rainey, in the Fifth District, seems to be an easy winner of the Democratic nomination, over ex-Congressman James T. McDermott.

Fought Thompson on His Record.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11, (Associated Press.)—In the campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, Congressmen McCormick and Foss made their fights on their patriotic records, while Mayor Thompson was accused of numerous anti-war activities. Among the charges are that he opposed this country entering the war, that he criticised the passage of the army draft law and predicted trouble in enforcing it, that he was against sending American troops to France, that he refused to invite Marshal Joffre to visit Chicago, declaring that it might be resented by German-born citizens, as Chicago was the sixth German city in the world, and that he hesitated several days before he permitted Liberty bond salesmen to canvass the city building.

In his compaign speeches Thompson used as his slogan the phrase, "America first," and proclaimed his loyalty. He denounced war profiteering and urged the conscription of wealth to win the war. Certain sections of his platform, his opponents declared, were calculated to arouse class prejudice and rally to his support the German and labor votes.

Scattering returns for Congressman at Large show Richard Yates, ex-Governor, in the lead for the Republican nomination, with William E. Mason, present incumbent, maintaining a slight advantage over Henry Rathbone. Two candidates are to be nominated.

HARRIS WINS IN GEORGIA.

Candidate Indorsed by Wilson Nominated for United States Senator.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—Unofficial returns from ninety-five out of 152 counties of the State early tonight indicated that William J. Harris, ex-Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who was indorsed by President Wilson, carried seventy-one in the Democratic Senatorial contest today. Senator Thomas W. Hardwick, who seeks renomination, apparently had a plurality in twelve counties, Representative William Schley Howard a plurality in eleven counties, and Emmet R. Shaw of Clay County in one.

Unusual interest centred in the Senatorial contest because of a letter President Wilson wrote to Clark Howell, Democratic National Committeeman, in which he said he opposed the renomination of Senator Hardwick, whom he characterized as "a constant and active opponent of my Administration."

Early returns indicated that Harris had carried Hardwick's home county of Washington by a big majority and had won in his own county, Polk, ten to one. Fulton County, in which Atlanta is located, was carried by Howard. The only county recorded for Shaw was Clay.

Under the new primary law a second primary will be held Oct. 2 if none of the candidates receives a majority of the county unit vote.

TYNAN AND SHOUP NAMED.

Result of Democratic and Republican Primaries in Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 11.—Thomas J. Tynan, Warden of the State Penitentiary, has been chosen the Democratic nominee for Governor, defeating Governor Julius C. Gunter, on the face of complete returns today from Denver and scattered reports from throughout the State. Oliver H. Shoup has won the Republican nomination for Governor.

Lawrence Phipps of Denver has been named Republican candidate for the United States Senate. Senator John F. Shafroth was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

The official count will be necessary to decide the Democratic nominee, John L. Stack or William L. Morring, for Congressman from the First District. Dr. R. S. Jones and Clement Yore, the rest, are running close for the Democratic nomination in the Second District. Charles B. Timberlake, Republican incumbent, had no opposition. Congressman Edward Keating, Democrat, is leading John A. Martin in the Third District. Guy U. Hardy, Republican, had no opposition.

ARIZONA RADICAL WINS.

Colter Nominated for Governor in Democratic Primary.

Special to The New York Times.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 11.—Arizona Democrats appear to have chosen Fred Colter as their candidate for Governor. This estimate is based largely upon primary returns from a considerable number of precincts in Maricopa County, the pivotal section, where Colter has shown unexpected strength, his gross vote being two-thirds of the combined vote of his opponents, State Secretary Sydney P. Osborn of this county and Judge Fred Sutter of Cochise.

Colter represents the radical wing of the party. Sutter, Conservative, made his campaign on an anti-I. W. W. platform. Osborn stood on midway ground. Colter appealed especially to the labor union and socialistic elements of his party, with special hostility to the mining corporations.

Thomas E. Campbell, who nearly defeated Governor Hunt last election, is the Republican candidate for Governor, without opposition, and Thomas Maddock, now an engineer Lieutenant in France, will be the Republican candidate for Congressman, opposing the re-election of Carl Hayden.

TODAY'S ENROLLMENT.

Every man not yet registered or in service who has passed his eighteenth birthday and has not yet reached his forty-sixth birthday is called upon to register today for the defense of his country. If one could visualize what will be happening all over the country today, it would afford one of the most thrilling and impressive sights that the war has given—thirteen millions of Americans stepping forward to answer "Ready!" at the nation's call. It is unfortunate that it cannot be seen as a whole; it seems prosaic enough when seen in infinitesimal sections, as it will have to be.

At the first draft Germany scoffed, perhaps sincerely. She did not underestimate the ultimate possibilities in that registration, but she did not believe the National Army could get across the ocean in time to participate in the war; she did not believe that much of it could get across at all, because of the potency of her submarines. She is undeceived now, and for that reason the registration today will have a real effect on the duration of the war. Germany will receive this news soberly, whatever her subsidized newspapers may say.

For that reason alone, every man who registers today may feel that by the mere fact of registering he is dealing a blow to that German self-confidence which must be overthrown if we are to win; that if he never fires another shot in the war, he has fired one.

A BETTER BOND MARKET.

A comparison between the Stock Exchange quotations of the first issue of the Liberty bond bearing 3½ per cent. interest and tax exempt, now selling slightly above par, with the subsequent issues, bearing 4 per cent. or 4¼ per cent., selling at a few points below par was sufficient to suggest to Secretary McADOO the necessity of the step he has now taken in recommending a limited exemption from income surtaxes for the Second and Third Liberty Loan issues and for the bonds yet to be issued under the Government's fourth call for subscriptions. The Federal Government meets competition in the investment market. It has the primary and great advantage of a credit superior to any other; that is reflected by the moderate interest rate at which it is able to dispose of bonds. But when income taxes reduce, as the surtaxes imposed in the pending Revenue bill will materially reduce, the net return to the holder of Government bonds, it is easy to foresee that the rival tax-exempt securities of States and cities, and private issues paying such a rate of interest that even after deducting the income taxes the yield is appreciably greater than that of Government bonds, will have a new attraction for investors.

This competition can be met either by raising the Government rate of interest or by granting some measure of exemption from income taxes. The Secretary of the Treasury very wisely and for reasons he clearly sets forth adopts the latter method. In his letter to Chairman KITCHIN, Mr. MCADOO explains the situation:

> I am influenced in this determination by the fact that it continues necessary to sell Liberty bonds in competition with billions of dollars of bonds of the United States, the various States and municipalities which are wholly exempt from surtaxes, as well as from all forms of taxation, so that the person whose income is subject to surtaxes is apt to make a comparison of the income return from Liberty bonds which he is asked to subscribe for, not with the income return from corporation and other securities such as carry no exemption from taxation, but with the income return from wholly exempt bonds of the United States and the various States and municipalities.

Accordingly he recommends, and he transmits to Mr. KITCHIN a draft of a bill to accomplish the intended purpose, that the interest on an amount of the forthcoming Fourth Liberty bonds not exceeding $30,000 in the hands of any individual or corporation or partnership shall be exempt from the surtax and excess profits and war profits taxes; and that the interest on converted First Liberty bonds, bonds of the second issue, converted and unconverted, and of the Third Liberty Loan, the principal of which does not exceed $45,000 in the aggregate, shall also be exempt from the surtaxes. A clause intended to stimulate subscriptions for the Fourth Liberty Loan is inserted, providing that "no owners "of bonds of the First, [the word "'converted' has evidently been "omitted here,] Second or Third Lib-"erty Loan shall be entitled to ex-"emption under subdivision two of "this paragraph in respect to the in-"terest on an aggregate principal "amount of such bonds exceeding "one and one-half times the amount "of bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan "originally subscribed for by such "owner and still owned by him at the "time of his tax return."

The Secretary's proposal was welcomed by bankers and persons well informed as to present conditions of the financial market, and it had the effect of causing an immediate rise in the quotations of Liberty Loan issues. A considerable part of this advance was lost in later trading, but that apparently was only an incident of the day's market. The limited exemption proposed should make better prices for the outstanding bonds and materially improve the outlook for the sale and wide distribution of the new issue. The marked difference between the first issue of the tax-exempt bonds and those of subsequent issues, as the Secretary points out, could not escape the attention of investors and it was necessary in some way to make the Federal issue more attractive compared with private securities paying much higher rates. The new and heavy taxes must and will in some measure stand in the way of the distribution of the new bonds. That was an obstacle to be overcome, and the Secretary has been wise in meeting it before subscriptions are opened.

DRYS FOR WHITMAN.

Mr. WHITMAN'S unofficial State Convention cannily kept mum about prohibition. Now virtue has been rewarded. Mr. WHITMAN has been nominated by the Prohibitionists also, beating the regular Dry candidate by a few hundred. The Prohibitionists surged to the primaries in stupendous numbers, especially in Greater New York City, where Mr. WHITMAN was beaten. Fortunately, the rural districts were truer to the ingenious Wet-Dry, all-Republican, Prohibitionist candidate.

The Dry vote in New York County was impressive. For the regular aspirant, Mr. BISHOP, 171; for Mr. WHITMAN, 70. The combined colossal vote in the five counties of the city was 681 for BISHOP to 303 for WHITMAN. Passion to throw away revenue, city, State, and national, in this time of squeezing taxation, is at least moderate in these parts.

Still, Mr. WHITMAN and Superintendent ANDERSON are to be felicitated. A neat game was "put up" by the masters of the Republican machine. The Dry vote is worth having. In 1916, the Prohibitionist candidate for Senator in Congress got 19,425 votes, the Prohibition candidate for Governor 21,756. Even if some of these stern and rock-bound brethren can't be made to take a nominee outside of the straitest sect, there should be a handsome pile of Prohibitionist ballots for the Governor. And won so easily!

THE RUSSIAN CHAOS.

Nothing is more striking in the dispatches of the correspondents who have escaped from Russia to Sweden than their bewilderment at discovering that the rest of the world is not in the same condition as Russia—that of anarchy. In Russia, they tell us, the Bolsheviki and Germans, who control the news completely, have imbued the whole population with that belief. Russia believes that Finland and Sweden are plunged in anarchy, that the United States is struggling against a vast rising of the Indians, that there are great revolutions in China, Japan, and Siam, and that the whole world is starving to death and on the verge of a proletarian revolution.

As the Germans and Bolsheviki control all the news going into Russia, so they control all the news going out of it, and the rest of the world knows only what these two allies choose to tell us; so say the correspondents. Russia is telegraphically isolated from the world, Germany excepted; so that what we get is Bolshevist news censored by Germany. This does not apply to the Archangel Government or to Siberia.

The correspondent of The World is astonished at the calmness with which he finds the other nations taking the condition of affairs in Russia, a calmness occasioned by the fact that we have not been allowed to get any idea of what is really going on there. If what he says is true, it is absurd to compare these conditions to the French Reign of Terror, which was a mild and well-regulated system of government by comparison. The Bolsheviki, he declares, have ceased to kill counter-revolutionists alone and are now "beginning their avowed purpose to kill the educated." This new phase of the Russian terror, he says, "is just beginning, and thou-"sands of the best Russian brains and "the only ones capable of recon-"structing the country are going to "be killed in the following weeks."

Speaking of the hundreds of "hostages" put to death by ZINOVIEFF, the President of the Petrograd Soviet, he says that "they were not killed by "ZINOVIEFF because they were active "counter-revolutionists, but because "they were educated men, engaged in "some business or profession." The Bolsheviki, he declares, "are engaged "in the purpose of extermination of "all possible enemies, however pass-"ive," and the basis on which arrests are made is "according to social "standing rather than political activ-"ity." At least 90 per cent. of the Russian people, he tells us, are opposed to the rule of the Bolsheviki, who are able to retain their power only by terror.

Doubtless, too, the conviction that they are in a miserable minority and cannot hold their position long if unsupported has hurried them into a closer alliance with the German autocracy than they had at first intended. They may hope for German soldiers to keep the Russian people down when their own Falstaffian army of Red Guards proves unequal to the task. The offensive and defensive alliance they have concluded with Potsdam, whereby they agree to do Germany's work in fighting against the Allies in the north, is entirely one-sided. The Bolsheviki promise everything and Germany virtually nothing, the only engagement made by Germany being that she will promise not to let Finland loose at Russia's throat as long as Russia keeps on fighting against the Allies. The Bolsheviki promise not only to fight against us, but to pay Germany 6,000,000,000 marks.

The condition of Russia, then, is that of cannibalism within and slavery to a foreign power without. It is hardly necessary to say that this will not last. The first sign of hope is the evident firmness with which the Russian people and the Allies are consolidating the Government of Northern Russia. The dispatch sent from Archangel to Ambassador BAKHMETEFF by NICHOLAS TSCHAIKOVSKY, the President of that Government, is both an announcement of a successful revolution and an invitation to the rest of Russia to use it as a nucleus. This is a people's government, and TSCHAIKOVSKY declares that its final aim is "a single "government for the whole of Russia, "based on universal suffrage." Meanwhile, despite the Bolshevist fabrications about Czechoslovak defeats, such as that peculiarly impudent one about the capture of Samara, communication with Western Siberia has been opened, and it may soon be possible to do for Asiatic Russia what has been done for North Russia.

PROFESSOR DELBRUECK AGAIN.

Professor HANS DELBRUECK of the University of Berlin, an old scourge of the Pan Germans, is after them again. In the Preussische Jahrbücher he puts on them part of the responsibility for the war, the main responsibility for its prolongation. "The world demands, and has a "right to demand, that the German "people give a guarantee that the "Pan German spirit of superiority, of "might, of heathenism, isn't the "German spirit."

What guarantee can be given of such a denial of plain fact? The spirit of the German people is a spirit of arrogant superiority, of utter disregard of the rights of others. It seeks and worships power, conquest, military and economic. To the fantastic excesses, to the exhibitions of bad taste, of Pan Germanism Professor DELBRUECK has long been opposed. He wants the practical realities and achievements of the politics of power. Mere Pan German megalomaniacal bellowing disgusts him. Not only is there no use in it, but it excites an unnecessary fear and hatred among Germany's rivals. He is not a whit less Pan German in reality than the Pan German rhetoricians and extremists whom he assails. But why be immoderate? Take what you can get, keep what you can get, and throw in all the fine moral sentiments that occur to you.

In this same Preussische Jahrbücher, not a year ago, this same Professor DELBRUECK, taking for granted that Great Britain, France, Russia had set out to ruin Germany, assumed, the paralysis of Russia being evident, that the Entente had failed. France's fight was only "a forlorn hope and a gesture of despair." Great Britain is threatened "as much by the "new maritime enterprise of America "as by the U-boats"; universal and female suffrage, Ireland, and so on will weaken her. Russia is out of the game. Germany has asserted and maintained her power. Give her a chance at "rectifications" on the eastern frontier and she is secure. Having shown her power, let her show her true goodness, her conscientiousness. Professor DELBRUECK rolls as a sweet morsel under the tongue the beautiful words of a Reichstag Deputy, Mr. HAUSMANN:

> A nation which has astounded the world by its vast power, as we have done, can only reconcile the peoples to German might by showing that the motive behind it all comes from conscience.

And Professor DELBRUECK conscientiously plays with pacifism and arbitration and disarmament! The weakened Entente Powers might have to accept these first fruits of the German conscience. Besides, Germany could rearm more quickly than her adversaries.

Most of us will prefer the rabidest Pan German to the unctuous Professor DELBRUECK.

MUST PAY FOR THE SHIPS.

German newspapers have recently been criticising their Government's plans for control and use of merchant ships after the war. Owners of tonnage now in home ports, interned abroad, or seized by enemies say that distribution of "available cargo space" can best be made by their own existing committees. They object to a pending bill which would place all the ships under the direction of an imperial officer, and to decrees which restrict the carrying of freight to voyages between home ports and those of German colonies. It is assumed, of course, that the nation's mercantile tonnage now afloat will be intact and ready for service; also that it will be enlarged by the addition of vessels at present partly built in the shipyards.

All of the critics and protesting owners ignore in argument and prediction the probability that peace terms will seriously affect their Government's shipping plans and the vessels now lying in their harbors. Do they think that Germany will not be required to pay for the ships which her submarines have destroyed? To the British, American, and French tonnage thus lost must be added nearly 1,500 neutral vessels. Is it expected that the nations whose ships have been torpedoed will not insist upon taking German tonnage to replace them, so far as it will go, and demand compensation for the remainder? Those Germans who are giving so much time and thought to arguments against Government control should be asking themselves how Germany, after the war, is to find such ships as she may need; how she will pay for those which the U-boats have sunk, and what foreign nation can then be induced to help her by freight service on the seas.

JERSEY LOTS.

Last year New Jersey Virtue bewailed the wicked prospering for a season by the blessing of alphabetical priority. It was "ABBOTT, AUGUSTUS W.," wasn't it, whose name gave the Essex County local option candidates for the Assembly last year that first place on the ballot which is as good as election? It has been said lately in Ohio, and is said, as occasion offers, in every State endowed with the alphabetical order of names on the ticket, that if ARNOLD, BENEDICT, were running against WASHINGTON, GEORGE, the Father of his Country would be beaten.

So the Jersey Legislature forsook the alphabet and trusted position on the ballot to the blind honest eyes of lot. Thus, among the Republican candidates for the long term for Senator, the first shall be last. Governor EDGE is third, GEORGE L. RECORD first, Representative GRAY second. The "designations" of the candidates are instructive. Mr. RECORD is the "Pa-"triotic Republican, Prohibition, Suf-"frage, Government Ownership" candidate. This is the briefest selection from the army of principles, practices, isms and schisms that Mr. RECORD assembles every year toward nomination time. The Governor's ballot bears the device "Republican, Americanism Before Party"; Mr. GRAY'S, "Republican, America First." Both these legends need rearrangement. Americanism and America should have the pas on the party name.

Uncle DAVID BAIRD, Republican candidate for the short Senatorial term; Uncle DAVID BAIRD, whom neither homilies from the White House nor the wraths of feminists have converted to "the Cause," has the finest, the best motto of all: "Support the President. Win the War."

By the way, a Mr. NUGENT gibes vainly, if curiously, at Governor EDGE'S ambition:

> I would rather be Governor of this State than Senator from thirty [forty?]-eight States.

NUGENT, NUGENT? Where have we heard that name? There was Lord NUGENT, who wrote "Memorials of Hampden." There was Boss NUGENT, who—but these people must have long since passed away.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Advice to Anxious Relatives.

In cases which, though relatively few as compared with the whole number of American soldiers abroad, are yet a good many, their close relatives in this country have been subjected to a cruel grief that would have been avoided if they had been better informed as to the Government's method of collecting and reporting casualties and had trusted it as, in spite of its inevitable imperfections, it deserves to be trusted.

This particular trouble arises from the fact that the men on active service, in writing home, have a habit of including in the news they send what they hear in regard to acquaintances stationed some distance away. Not infrequently, they thus forward as truth what is mere rumor, and, as ought to be better known than it is, of all rumors, those that circulate among the soldiers are of a particularly untrustworthy sort.

Whenever one of the men thus reports the death of another, his statement is sure to be transmitted by those to whom he sends it to those whom it most deeply affects, and the latter, even though they appreciate its lack of official authentication, are thrown into great anxiety. If they happen to belong to the more articulate class, they immediately assail "Washington" for information as to the fate of the son or husband concerned, and they are apt to be indignant because, in most instances, it takes a long time for "Washington" to find out even as much as whether the man is dead or alive.

Usually it is at last discovered that the man thus reported dead has been more or less seriously wounded, and that, owing to the confusion and haste in which the evacuation of the field hospitals often has to be done, his company officers have failed to record either his wounding or the base hospital to which he has been taken. For a while, therefore, though he is getting good care and is probably recovering, his name does not appear in the official lists.

The wise course, on getting bad news not official and not personally known to be true by the sender, is to assume that in all probability the bad news is either wholly false or an exaggeration, and to wait with whatever of composure can be commanded the arrival of the Government's notification. In such contingencies no news is distinctly good news, and should be taken as such as long as possible.

We Should Save All the Week.

So well, and in most cases so cheerfully, has heed been paid to the Fuel Commission's request for a suspension on Sunday of all automobiling not directly connected with winning the war that it is fair to ask why more people have not realized the motive of the request and heeded its spirit as well as its letter. What the existing situation with respect to gasoline demands, of course, is not that the unnecessary or nonessential use of this precious combustible be stopped on Sunday, but that it be cut down to such a degree that the military needs of our own country and of our allies can be met.

A special plea with regard to Sunday was made simply because on that day a very much larger part of the automobiling is of the sort called "pleasure" than is the case on any other day of the week. On the other days, too, a great amount of the same kind of motoring is done, and it is not commendable, or even innocent, while the scarcity persists, merely because no definite demand for its abandonment has yet been made.

To effect a real saving, or rather to effect as much of saving as would insure a fairly cheap and a fairly abundant supply of gasoline for the conduct of the war, there should be for the present a complete sacrifice of this form of enjoyment. The line between necessary and unnecessary automobiling could be drawn here without too much rigidity, perhaps, though the line is already of uncompromising steel in France, England, and Italy. Here the conditions, as yet, at least, are somewhat different, for it would not be expedient for us to accumulate gasoline without regard to the possibility of shipping it abroad, but certainly our consumption of it should be kept some distance behind production, and this we could effect easily enough by not doing on any day any automobiling for which there was not a better excuse than that it is a pleasant way to spend leisure time.

The ban on Sunday riding was reasonable and justifiable, but it involves some hardships and some absurdities that would be avoided under a system of general and continuous restraint, conscientiously carried out under no other compulsion than patriotism and good-will. There is no sense at all in saving gasoline one day, only to waste on another, and it is to be feared that too many people are doing just that now.

Why Should They Meditate Martyrdom?

It would be interesting, and perhaps profitable, to know on just what "principle" it was that some of the people who were fined for applauding at the Debs trial in Cleveland announced that they would rather go to jail than pay. To be sure, they were all persuaded, and rather easily, by their friends to abandon this desperate resolve, but the proclamation of their purpose, even though it was not carried out, indicates the existence in their minds of a belief or notion that "principle" required that they should not admit, by the payment of money, that the Court had a right to fine them.

This attitude would have been comprehensible, and even admirable, if these persons had been subjected to anything that sane people would call unjust or tyrannous. If there are to be courts at all, however—and that courts are rather useful is not denied, so far as known, by anybody except the more extreme anarchists—applause within their precincts is properly reprehended and punished, for it utterly violates the theory on which judicial action is and must be founded, and seriously lowers judicial dignity.

The Judge in Cleveland did what any self-respecting Judge would have done and had to do, and while Socialists often criticise laws, they are not against the law, but profess a burning love for it. The "principle" on which they thought of refusing to pay a fine imposed for disobedience to a good and necessary rule is therefore very hard to imagine. For of course whoever can applaud can also hiss.

Thanks for Summer Outings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to express our appreciation for the very substantial service you rendered in publishing a recent appeal for $300 toward our Summer work. The appeal resulted in raising the necessary sum, and you are entitled to the gratitude of the many youngsters whom you helped to make happy. I wish that they could be vocal and that you could hear them. Will you accept this letter as a poor substitute? JACOB S. EISINGER,

THE NEW DRAFT ARMY.

Up at the beat of the nation's drum
Again the hosts of the people come!

Populus rex! proclaim the guns;
Populus rex! the bugles blow;
Democracy sends her stalwart sons
To slay the Beast that would strike her low.

Up at the roll of the summoning drum
Still they come, still they come!

They rally from workshop, desk, and farm
With hearts of steel and the dawn in their eyes;
At the danger call and the loud alarm,
Like the Minute Men of old, they rise!

Up at the rattle of Fate's own drum
While the need be there, they come!
they come!

"No peace, no peace," the fifes shrill high;
"No peace, no peace," responds the tread
Of myriad freemen marching by.
"There can be no peace till the Beast is dead!"

ELIAS LIEBERMAN.

GREGORY DEFENDS DRAFT RAIDS HERE

But Condemns Use of Military as Unlawful and in Violation of His Orders.

Also Many Thousands of Delinquents Apprehended in New York, Brooklyn, and Northern New Jersey.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—President Wilson made public today a letter from Thomas W. Gregory, the Attorney General of the United States, relative to the recent arrests in New York City and Northern New Jersey cities of persons charged with evading the selective draft law.

These were the so-called slacker raids which were severely criticised in the debate in the United States Senate. In his communication to the President, based report made by John Lord O'Brian, who was sent to the metropolitan district to look into the circumstances of the dragnet measures instituted there last week, the Attorney General not only accepts entire responsibility for the arrests but justifies generally what was done.

The Attorney General reports that in Manhattan and the Bronx about 300 persons were inducted into the military service as a result of the arrests, and at least 1,500 turned over to their local boards as delinquents.

In Brooklyn 252 were held by order of the court and about 100 delivered as delinquents.

In five cities in Northern New Jersey 749 men were sent to the army and 12,515 were found to be delinquents.

With regard to New York City, the Attorney General says:

"I again accept full and entire responsibility for putting into effect there the general plan of rounding up deserters and slackers."

Condemns Use of Military.

The Attorney General, however, does not justify the use of soldiers, sailors, and members of the American Protective League in making arrests.

"Contrary to my express instructions," says the Attorney General, "instructions which I have repeated over and over again, and contrary to law, certain members of the investigating force of this department, without consultation with me or with any law officer of the department, used soldiers and sailors and certain members of the American Protective League, I am satisfied, in making arrests. I am convinced by the inquiries which I have made that they were led into this breach of authority by excess of zeal for the public good. While this extenuates it, it does not excuse their action."

The Attorney General declares that the employment of military forces and of private organizations in making arrests was not only unlawful, but also ill-judged, and asserts that such men were not fitted by experience or training to exercise the discretion required in the circumstances connected with such arrests.

The Attorney General asserts that energetic measures were required to round up slackers and draft delinquents, and that unless the President issues orders to the contrary similar drag-net arrests will be made, although it is not to be expected that soldiers, sailors, or private individuals will hereafter be employed in making arrests.

The Letter in Full.

Mr. Gregory's letter follows:

The President, the White House:

Dear Mr. President: On returning to Washington I find your letter of the 5th inst., asking to be informed of the facts and circumstances in connection with the recent arrests by representatives of the Department of Justice in New York of persons charged with being slackers. As stated by the Attorney General in acknowledging your letter, the circumstances attending these arrests as reported in the newspapers had already challenged the attention of the department, and immediate steps had been set on foot to ascertain whether any action had been taken by representatives of the department contrary to law or the instructions of the Attorney General.

In order to set forth intelligently the proceedings at New York it is necessary to touch on a serious national problem. There are many deserters and slackers at large in this country. In a letter to me dated Aug. 5 the Secretary of War gave figures showing the number of deserters and delinquents under the first and second drafts and stated that, while it was impossible to give the actual number of those who had failed to register at all—slackers, so called—the number was large.

The Secretary of War referred to this condition "as an indictment against the honor of the nation." To permit it to continue would weaken substantially the nation's fighting power and do grievous injustice to the great body of the youth of the land who have so gallantly met their military obligations. Energetic measures were required. The Secretary of War naturally looked to this department for assistance. To attempt to apprehend so great a number of offenders by running down individual cases obviously would have been futile. Some form of dragnet process, within the law of course, was absolutely essential.

Law as to Delinquents.

Section 49 of the Rules and Regulations for the enforcement of the selective service law promulgated by the President Nov. 8, 1917, referring to slackers and delinquents, provides:

"Those who fail to return the questionnaire, or to appear for physical examination, or to report change of status, or to report for any duty, or to perform any act at the time and place required by these regulations or by directions by local or district boards in pursuance thereof, are guilty of a misdemeanor under section 6 of the selective service law. Under authority granted in Section 6 of that law, it is hereby made the duty of all police officials of the United States and of any State or of any county, municipality, or other sub-division thereof, to locate and take into custody such persons and to bring them forthwith before local boards."

"It is hereby made the duty of all such police officials to apprehend and arrest such deserters."

It was accordingly decided to adopt the plan of canvassing or rounding up in large cities on particular days all men apparently within the draft age and arranging for a summary and immediate investigation of their status through their local draft boards. Of necessity this involved detaining, pending investigation, all such men who did not have registration or classification cards (which registrants are required by the regulations to keep always in their personal possession) or who were not able to establish by satisfactory evidence that they were outside the draft ages. It was expected that for the most part such men would voluntarily go to the places of detention, which were usually armories, while the investigation of their status was being made. Where arrests were necessary it was never contemplated that they should be made by any but police officials of the United States or of the States and municipalities where the canvass was being conducted. The making of arrests in such cases by the military or by the members of any private organization would have been contrary to law and contrary to the express directions of the Attorney General, except in the case of deserters, where, of course, the military authorities had the power to make arrests. It was expected, however, that where the number detained was large this department, in making the necessary investigations, would have the aid of the American Protective League, a private organization of established standing which had long been participating in the enforcement of the selective service law by express invitation of the Provost Marshal General; and that in guarding the persons taken into custody it would have the aid of units of the military and naval forces.

Tested in Chicago and Boston.

The plan was put into effect at several points before it was attempted in New York, notably Chicago and Boston, with excellent results; and, so far as I am informed, to the satisfaction of the communities affected.

While this plan was evolved in discussion with a representative of the Provost Marshal General's office, I take full and entire responsibility for adopting it and for putting it into effect. I know that some such dragnet process is necessary unless thousands upon thousands of deserters and slackers are to remain at large; I believe the plan adopted is authorized by the regulations; I believe also, judging by the results at a number of different points, that the great body of our people will cheerfully submit to the minor inconveniences which the execution of any such plan of necessity entails, to the end that this indictment of the nation's honor, this drain on the nation's strength, may be removed. I shall, therefore, continue to employ the plan unless you give directions to the contrary.

Coming to the city of New York, I again accept full and entire responsibility for putting into effect there the general plan of rounding up deserters and slackers which I have described. Contrary to my express instructions, however, instructions which I have repeated over and over again, and contrary to law, certain members of the investigating force of this department, without consultation with me or with any law officer of the department, used soldiers and sailors and certain members of the American Protective League, I am satisfied, in making arrests. I am convinced by the inquiries which I have made that they were led into this breach of authority by excess of zeal for the public good. While this extenuates it, it does not excuse their action.

Besides being unlawful, the employment of members of military forces and of private organizations in making arrests was ill-judged, as such men are not generally fitted by training or experience to exercise the discretion required in the circumstances.

Results of the "Roundup."

During the three-day canvass in Manhattan and the Bronx 11,652 persons were apprehended and temporarily held at places of detention. Of these, about 300 were inducted into the military service, and at least 1,500 turned over to their local boards as delinquents. In Brooklyn 9,750 were detained, of whom 252 have been held by order of court, and at least 1,000 turned over to their local boards as delinquents. These figures do not include a large number of persons who, on being accosted, made a satisfactory showing, and were not detained; nor do they include a smaller number who were taken to the police station, and required to give further information before being released.

Unquestionably, a considerable number of persons, who on the showing made by them should not have been detained, were detained—none, however, overnight. Such mistakes always occur in exercising the power of arrest, though in much fewer number where the power is exercised by trained police officers.

On the other hand, the investigation which I have made leads me to believe that the number of persons over or under draft age who were apprehended was inconsiderable; that there was no disorder anywhere; that no persons are known to have been assaulted or maltreated; that in general the canvass was acquiesced in with good nature.

Simultaneously with the canvass in New York, one was made in the cities of Northern New Jersey, where, so far as I can learn, there was little if any criticism. The canvass in Northern New Jersey was carried out in accordance with the instructions and known policy of the department. In the city of Newark, for example, the canvass was made by groups of men composed of one regular police officer, who, in every instance, made the arrest, aided by members of the American Protective League and uniformed unarmed members of the State militia, who assisted in the work of accosting and making inquiries. No soldiers, sailors, or members of private organizations were employed in making arrests.

There were apprehended in the five cities of Northern New Jersey—Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, Paterson, and Passaic—a total of 28,875 persons. Out of this number 749 men have been ordered inducted into the army, and in addition 12,515 were delinquents, whose draft records of classifications were corrected by the local boards. These delinquents were persons who at one time had been given a temporary classification by reason of illness, exemption, &c., but who had failed to report for a corrected classification, or else persons who had failed to register, failed to appear for physical examination, or failed to file questionnaires, &c. I remain, sincerely yours,

T. W. GREGORY,

BRITONS SEE VICTORY SURE.

Prime Minister Massey Says War Must Go On Till Freedom Wins.

The British Navy is 60 to 70 per cent. stronger than at the outbreak of the war, and complete victory for the allies is as certain as sunrise, said W. M. Massey, Prime Minister of New Zealand, at a luncheon yesterday at Sherry's. The luncheon was in connection with a reception by the British Bureau of Information to Mr. Massey, Sir Joseph Ward, Minister of Finances for New Zealand, and the Rt. Rev. Charles Gore, Bishop of Oxford, all of whom arrived yesterday form overseas.

Mr. Massey told of the great sacrifices that England had made and said that she had stood the strain wonderfully.

"I believe that the great necessity of the moment," said the Bishop of Oxford, "is the deepening of good understanding among the allies. I do desire, I can not say how profoundly, that the alliance shall result in a widespread league that shall leave its impress, that shall forever do away with prejudices and misunderstandings. I am certain that the vocation for us, all of us, at the present moment is something greater than nationalism, something more than alliances—it is the deepening of the fellowship of humanity. This desire can only be fulfilled when the geniuses of a nation are devoted to something beyond that nation's needs."

Sir Joseph Ward said he had seen Americans at the front and that he, and, in fact, every one, has been impressed by the soldierly qualities of our men. Speaking of peace propaganda, Sir Joseph said there was a small section of Britishers who urged peace by negotiation, but that he could say for the overseas dominions that "they hold no such aspirations."

"I am proud for what President Wilson has done in this war. I remember that President Wilson was returned to office on a peace program, and I think that it was a wonderful thing to convert the millions to the necessity for war. To get this big country wholeheartedly into the war—it is one of the greatest achievements that a man at the head of a country has ever had placed to his credit.

TO URGE WOMEN TO VOTE.

Republican Workers Arrange for a Great House-to-House Canvass.

Ways of bringing out the Republican woman vote at the coming election were discussed yesterday at a meeting of women Assembly District leaders at the Republican County Committee headquarters, 105 West Fortieth Street. The meeting was called by Miss Helen Varick Boswell, and the twenty-three district leaders or their representatives discussed neighborhood methods for interesting the women voters.

It was decided to make a house-to-house canvass and urge every woman to go to the polls. One reason for this campaign, it was explained, was that there seemed to be an impression on the part of some women that voting at the primaries carried with it the privilege of voting at the election without registering. Each of the 7,000 active women workers and a host of volunteers are to participate in the house-to-house canvass. Meetings are to be arranged in the various districts.

NAMES ALIEN ENEMY RELIEF COMMITTEE

URGES ALL TO CO-OPERATE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. — Secretary Lansing announced today the appointment and final organization of a National Alien Enemy Relief Committee to take over control of relief work for suffering families of interned alien enemies in this country. Dr. Norman Bridge of Washington is Chairman of the committee. All its members are Americans.

The committee as created will cooperate with the Legations of Sweden and Switzerland and the Consuls under their jurisdiction in relieving the situation and condition of "law-abiding residents in this country who are German or Austrian nationals," and in supervising the aid to be given to the families of interned alien enemies. The personnel of the committee follows:

Dr. Norman Bridge, Washington, D. C., Chairman; Eugene E. Prussing, Executive Secretary; Willis H. Booth, Security Trust and Savings Bank, Los Angeles, Cal.; Hiram S. Cody, 105 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.; J. E. Chilberg, President Scandinavian American National Bank, Seattle, Wash.; George B. Dealy, the News, Dallas, Texas; Felix Frankfurter, Department of Labor, Washington; Mrs. George C. Hitchcock, 5,363 Waterman Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.; Darwin R. James, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, New York; Dr. F. P. Lewis, 454 Franklin Street, Buffalo; W. L. Marbury, 700 Maryland Trust Building, Baltimore; Walter A. May, May Building, Pittsburgh; Charles Nagel, Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.; George W. Niedringhaus, 3,745 Lindell Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.; J. E. Otis, Vice President Central Trust Company, Chicago; Miss Mary E. Richmond, 130 East Twenty-second Street, New York; Jacob G. Schmidlapp, Chairman Board of Directors, Union Savings and Trust Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; C. C. Webber, Deere & Webber Company, Minneapolis, Minn.

"This committee," said Secretary Lansing, "has now been formed under the name of the 'National Alien Enemy Relief Committee, in Co-operation with the Legations of Sweden and Switzerland, and with the approval of the Government of the United States,' with an office at 816 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C., and with a membership which comprises prominent Americans citizens in the larger cities of the country. On and after Sept. 15 this committee will be in a position to perform its functions in the fullest possible manner.

"This committee is not, however, a general relief organization, nor has it any funds of its own for the relief of those in distress. Its functions are to oversee and direct rather than actually to administer relief, and these functions may be summarized as follows:

"1. To investigate, at the request of the legations, appeals for aid and assistance which are received from the families of interned alien enemies, in order that the legations may be informed whether the appeal is genuine, what the real need of the applicant is, and how long that need is or will be continued, so that the legations may grant relief from funds in their possession with the assurance that they are not being imposed upon.

"2. To direct and encourage the relief, through the numerous local organizations throughout the country, of the law-abiding Germans and Austro-Hungarians resident in the United States who are in need of financial or other assistance on account of discrimination and prejudice against them, arising out of their nationality or from other causes directly or indirectly attributable to the war.

"Appeals made to the committee for relief will be promptly investigated and, if the request is a proper one, adequate assistance will be rendered, if possible, through an appropriate local relief society under the direction of this committee.

T. STOKES, 73, WEDS, ELUDING RELATIVES

Retired Financier Marries Miss Kuenemann, 30, Before Court Order Can Prevent.

TWO MINISTERS REFUSED

Brother of W. E. D. Stokes Then Got Patchogue Justice to Tie Knot—Valet Refused to be Witness.

Thomas Stokes, 73 years old, a retired financier of this city, brother of W. E. D. Stokes and member of one of the best-known New York families, was married yesterday forenoon to Miss Lillyan Marie Louise Kuenemann, who is forty-three years his junior, in the Justice's courtroom at Patchogue, L. I. Justice of the Peace C. W. Coleman performed the ceremony after two ministers of that section had refused.

It was a hurried affair, the bridal pair having learned that a representative of the Stokes family in New York was planning to obtain a restraining order from the courts forbidding the marriage. When their engagement was reported last Friday it was said that the wedding would take place within a month.

Meantime Mr. Stokes had arranged with the Rev. Joseph P. Smyth of Bellport, L. I., to perform the ceremony at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, but at a late hour the Rev. Mr. Smyth called up Mr. Stokes, stating that he did not care to officiate.

"I had arranged to perform the ceremony," said the Rev. Mr. Smyth yesterday, "but Anson Phelps Stokes, a nephew, called on me Tuesday night and asked me not to officiate for family reasons. Later another member of the Stokes family made a similar request, so I decided not to act, and so advised Mr. Stokes."

Last Monday Mr. Stokes called on the Rev. Frederick A. Allen of the Presbyterian Church at Brookhaven, where he has been spending the Summer, to officiate, but the minister declined to perform the ceremony.

These stumbling blocks were quickly surmounted yesterday by the hurried civil ceremony, and after the marriage Mr. Stokes and his bride returned to Brookhaven by the way of Bellport, where they told the Rev. Smyth that they had been married.

Miss Kuenemann, who has been staying in the city, left for Patchogue early in the morning, accompanied by a friend, Miss Deisle Bostwick. She arrived on the 11:02 train, and was met by Mr. Stokes. A short time afterward Mr. Stokes sent his negro valet, George Alston, who has been with him for fifteen years, to the Justice of the Peace, asking if the Justice would perform the ceremony.

After the Justice had arranged for the marriage, the valet refused to act as a witness, and left the courtroom. Chief of Police William H. Valentine was called in and acted as emergency witness. After the ceremony Mr. Stokes kissed his bride and Miss Bostwick, who stood up, then handed the Justice $5. The couple seemed in radiant spirits despite the obstacles placed in their path. The bride wore a becoming blue traveling suit, and the bridegroom was conspicuous with his English sport cap and red necktie.

Much interest was aroused when the couple's engagement was reported. Their acquaintance is said to have begun at Paul Smith's camp in the Adirondacks, where Mr. Stokes was recovering from a paralytic stroke a year ago. Miss Kuenemann has been a frequent guest at Edgewater Inn, at Brookhaven, during the Summer, and often dined and motored with Mr. Stokes, who came down to the inn from the Ansonia Hotel early in the season with his valet.

Mr. Stokes is a son of the late James Stokes and inherited a fortune from his father. The late Anson Phelps Stokes was his brother. His first wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Cossett and a sister of the late Mrs. A. D. Juilliard, died more than twenty years ago. One of his daughters married Jules J. Vatable.

Weiskopf-Sternau.

The marriage of Edwin C. Weiskopf, formerly of Chicago, and Miss Lucille Sternau, daughter of Sigmund Sternau of the Belnord, took place at 7 o'clock last evening at the St. Regis. Dr. Muzzey of the Ethical Culture Society officiating. There was a dinner after the ceremony. None except the immediate family and a few close friends were present.

Stimson-Strangmann.

Harry P. Stimson, proprietor of the Hotel Cumberland and Secretary of the Hotel Association of New York City, was married yesterday in this city to Mrs. Mary K. Strangmann, widow of Carl A. Strangmann, a brewer of Buffalo. Mrs. Strangmann has been active in Red Cross work.

Justice Weeks Gets License to Wed.

Justice Bartow S. Weeks and Mrs. Josephine de Marigny Smith of New York and Dinard, France, obtained a marriage license yesterday at the Municipal Building. When their engagement was announced some weeks ago it was said that the wedding would take place quietly on Sept. 16. Justice Weeks gave his age as 57. This will be his third marriage. Mrs. Smith was divorced from her former husband in June, 1913.

Lieut. Francis Ouimet Marries.

FLACK'S MUFF TELLS TALE

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 11.—When Max Flack made a ludicrous muff of Whiteman's line drive in the third inning at Fenway Park this afternoon two runs wafted over the plate, which gave the Red Sox the baseball championship of the world. The score was 2 to 1 and the 1918 triumph marks the fifth world's series that the Red Sox have brought to the high brow domicile of the baked bean. Boston is the luckiest baseball spot on earth, for it has never lost a world's series.

In the wake of the scrappy club led by Manager Ed Barrow there is a trail of Chicago's shattered hopes, sleepy base running, silly errors, and sillier bases on balls. A momentary lapse of control by Lefty Tyler in this doleful third inning sent two Red Sox runners, Carl Mays and Dave Shean, to berths on the bases on dead-head tickets. Mays was the first batsman to face Tyler in the third and walked. After Harry Hooper had sent Carl to second on a sacrifice, Tyler again lost the location of the plate and Shean also perambulated. As Pick was bringing about Strunk's demise at first base Mays and Shean moved up a station.

That was the layout when Whiteman came to the bat with two down. It looked like a cinch for Lefty to retire the side, and so it should have been. Whiteman lifted a line drive to right field and Flack came running in to make an easy catch. He caught up to the rapidly descending ball and had it entirely surrounded by his hands. Tyler was offering thanksgiving for crawling out of a bad hole when the ball squeezed its way through Flack's buttered digits. As the ball spilled in a puddle at Flack's feet both Mays and Shean were well along on their way home before Flack's alarm clock went off and woke him up.

Those two runs were enough to place a large period at the close of the history of baseball of 1918. It may be a long time before there is another world's series, and this finish, the all-important, which hinged on a life-sized laughable muff, closes a topsy-turvy season in much the same way as the famous $30,000 muff of Fred Snodgrass ended the series of 1912 when the hopes of the New York Giants trickled through his hands in centre field on the same Fenway meadow.

Sad Ending to Season.

Baseball's valedictory this afternoon should have been played to the weary strains of Chopin's Funeral March. The smallest gathering that ever saw the national game's most imposing event sat silently about, and watched Boston win and Chicago lose. There was no wild demonstration of joy when the last man went out, and Stuffy McInnis, with the ball in his hand, led the scramble of the players to the clubhouse. No hero was proclaimed, no player got a ride on any one's shoulders, no star was patted on the back or madly cheered to a modern baseball's temple of fame. The finish was as uneventful as the last moment of a double-header in Brooklyn.

The gleaming sun of admiration did not shine this afternoon on the professional leather worker who thrives and glories in the effervescent acclaim of popular approval. He was hidden behind the murky clouds of indifference. Silent was the trumpet voice of the ribald fan, and still were the thundering echoes which the ball tosser has always held as his own. After the game the crowd filed out of the gates with about as much enthusiasm as a party of home folks trooping out of a poor moving-picture show.

George Whiteman, the man who hit the ball that Flack muffed, takes the leading place in the day's sombre proceedings. Why? Well, Flack wouldn't have had a chance to bobble the Red Sox into the baseball berth de luxe if Whitey didn't punch out that no account liner, would he?

Whiteman is the Rip Van Winkle of baseball. In the fine classic language of the draft lingo Whiteman may be described as follows: Age, about 40; eyes, blue; hair, bald. Occupation, nonessential. Habits, three meals a day. Accomplishments, standing on his head.

Whiteman's Acrobatic Feat.

It was on account of this accomplishment that Whiteman was unable to finish the game. In the eighth inning, when the game was as good as cooked, Manager Mitchell called on his reserves to come in and save the day. Barber was injected into the fray to bat for Chuck Deal. Barber soaked a tremendous bang on a bee line to left field. Whiteman came tearing in, and he did not appear to have a chance in the world of even flirting with the ball. He quickly realized that the only way he could get the ball was by resorting to radical measures, so he poised himself nicely and took an Annette Kellermann. His outstretched hands clutched the ball, but his head was taking the shortest route to the grass mat. Even ball players are likely to get injured by landing on the top of the head against anything hard. Whiteman knew this. Whitey ducked his head, and his feet left the ground, going straight into the air as he folded his top piece under, and landed on the back of his well-known neck. Then he completed the acrobat stunt, and came up on his feet. Whitey ought to be able to get a job at the Hippodrome any time on a stunt like that.

When play was resumed after this great catch Whitey discovered that his head did not revolve on his shoulders as it used to do, so Whitey retired to the garage, where "Doc" Lawler started to overhaul the mechanism in his neck. Babe Ruth went out into left field, and spent a perfectly miserable afternoon, for he did not get a chance to bat, and had one fly to catch, which was nothing more than one of those easy fielder's delights off Hollocher's bat in the ninth.

The one thing that stands out in to-day's game, and in the series for that matter, is the magical fielding of the Boston team. Play after play was ripped off this afternoon when the players seemed to be under the spell of sorcery. Jackie Thomas of the U. S. Navy made a play in the seventh which was plain downright grand larceny against one Fred Merkle. Fred popped an angry bouncer down the third base line, which moved over the foul line after it passed the bag. Thomas stuck out one fin, knocked it down, picked it up, turned around a couple of times, spoke affectionately to the ball, and then whipped it over to McInnis in a manner which looked as if the ball was going to the grand stand. It did not.

Stuffy McInnis Stretches.

Stuffy called on every ounce of india rubber in his makeup, stuck one toe on the pillow, and began to stretch. First he stretched only a few inches, then his body and arms stretched and stretched, half a foot at a time, until his hands seemed to reach half way down to the home plate. It was while he was in this marvelous condition of elasticity that he nipped the ball, and Merkle was out; no one could beat that without cheating.

The remarkable horseshoe infield of Boston did things like this all afternoon. The Cubs in the meantime were becoming more and more depressed. Carl Mays tickled their knees and shins with low sweeping curves which saved Umpire George Hildebrand from dusting off the plate all afternoon. Mays's pitching was tricky and tantalizing and the Chicago stickers spent most of the time rolling the ball along the infield. Fifteen of them were tossed out at third base in an outbreak of defensive baseball that was almost uncanny. The Boston infielders couldn't throw the ball anywhere but in the right place.

The strong cold breeze which blew in off Boston Harbor must have caused the drowsiness of the Cub players, for two of them were found asleep at their posts. In the second inning Pick singled, and Mays threw the ball over to first four or five times to catch him, and still Pick didn't keep his eyes open. He was finally trapped by several feet in the fourth when the Cubs had Mays on the run for the first and last time of the game. Leon Trotsky Manning, the leader of the baseball Bolsheviki, drifted too far from the pier and he was thrown out by Li Hung Schang. In the sixth inning Trotsy got the idea that he could steal second, but Schang again threw him out.

Tyler's Wildness Is Fatal.

While the Red Sox didn't thump Tyler very hard Lefty was so wild that he was in constant trouble. In the first inning, with two gone, Strunk hit a fly back of short which would have been a cinch catch for Paskert, but Hollocher yelled that he wanted it and he awkwardly spilled it, although the pop fly was credited as a hit for Strunk. That's one thing the Cubs can't blame on Tyler. The Cub southpaw began to rehearse his pause on balls delivery in the second, when, with a couple of citizens down and out, Thomas drew a pass. Then followed a play with a laugh attached to it. Schang rolled to Hollocher and Chalmy threw wide to Pick to force Thomas, but Thomas beat the throw. He overran the bag, however, and Pick tagged him out.

Tyler's impression of the plate in the third inning was that it was platter was about four feet in diameter. It was because of this impression that Mays ambled. Hooper sacrificed, and Tyler handed Shean his passage to first when he should have known that complimentary tickets are a luxury nowadays. After Strunk's out had deposited the two runners on third and second, Whiteman then gave Max Flack his chance to do something which he will never be able to live down. In years to come, whenever the name of his ancestors is mentioned, people will say: "Flack? Flack? Oh, yes, that was the name of the fellow who muffed the ball in Boston way back in war times."

When the two runs which brought Boston victory had been safely chronicled McInnis jammed a hot roller to Hollocher and Stuffy beat the toss to first. Whiteman started to scamper to second and later decided to continue to third, but he was thrown out at third for his trouble. The Cubs still had a lot of scrap left in them and they tried to show a little of it in the first of the fourth inning. Flack partly atoned for his muff with a single to centre and he went down to second as Hollocher grounded out to McInnis. Leslie Mann was painfully hit on the ankle by one of Mays's underhand shoots and invalided his way to first. Mann's carelessness in being caught off first by Schang was costly at this moment, for the Cubs never had such a good chance to win after that.

Brief Rally for Cubs.

Paskert flared into a frenzy when Umpire Hildebrand called a strike on him, and as Dode was finally presented with a base on balls Flack stole third. Fred Merkle then came through with a single to left and drove Flack home. Charley Pick had an excellent chance to continue the Cubs' activity toward victory, but the best he could do was hammer a line drive to Harry Hooper.

The fourth has been Boston's lucky inning throughout the series, and they almost upset the Cubs in the fourth again today. Scott beat out a hit to Deal and Thomas sacrificed after Schang walked. Mays beat out an infield tap and loaded the bases. This was a tough ordeal that Tyler found himself in with only one man down. Hooper shot a grasser to Merkle, who flipped to Killefer and forced Scott at the plate. Shean ripped a hot bouncer to Deal and for once in the series Chuck was right on the job. He knocked down the hopper and tagged third base, forcing Mays, which was as rapid a thought as Deal has had in many a day.

The world's series is over, but the players are still in a state of uprising over the spoils. Now that they have the baseball part of it out of the way the players will go into immediate training to prevent any such occurrence as Flack's muff when they play the financial series with the National Commission for the currency. The players are unanimous in the belief that if Whiteman had hit a silver dollar out to Flack instead of a baseball Boston would never have won the championship today.

BATTLE IS CLOSE, BUT NOT EXCITING

Spectators Get Hardly a Thrill Per Inning from Final Clash of Series.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—In the sixth and concluding battle of the world's series here today, Mays and Schang were designated as the battery for the Red Sox, while Tyler and Killefer were in the points for the Cubs.

Umpire Hildebrand rendered the decisions at the home plate, while Klem was the arbiter at first base, Owens at second, and O'Day at third.

FIRST INNING.—Chicago — Thomas took Flack's hopper and got his man easily at first. Mays's underhand ball was kept closely around the batter's knees. Shean tossed out Hollocher. Scott got Mann at first. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FIRST INNING.—Boston — Hollocher made a nice play of Hooper's grounder and threw him out. Shean was a strike-out victim. Hollocher made a fine try for Strunk's Texas leaguer, but it got away from him and the official scorer gave Strunk a hit. Tyler held Strunk closely pinned to first base. Whiteman sent a long fly to Paskert. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.—Chicago — Shean threw out Paskert on his bounder near second. Merkle struck out. Pick singled into left field, hooking one of Mays's underhand balls near the handle. Pick was caught off first by a quick throw, Mays to McInnis. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.—Boston — Tyler tossed out McInnis. Tyler also tossed out Scott. Thomas walked. Hollocher took Schang's grounder and tossed to Pick too late, but Thomas overslid the bag and was out. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.—Chicago—Deal flied out to Whiteman. Killefer was out, Scott to McInnis. Tyler went out, Scott to McInnis. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.—Boston — Mays walked on four straight balls. Hooper sacrificed, Tyler to Merkle, and Mays went to second. Shean walked. Strunk was thrown out at first by Pick, Mays going to third and Shean to second. Mays and Shean scored when Flack dropped Whiteman's hot liner. McInnis got an infield hit, and when Whiteman tried for third, he was thrown out, the play being Hollocher to Merkle to Deal. TWO RUNS. ONE HIT. ONE ERROR.

FOURTH INNING.—Chicago — Flack singled over second. Hollocher went out to McInnis, unassisted, Flack going to second. Mann was hit by a pitched ball. The ball struck him on the leg and he fell to the ground in pain, but recovered and went to first base. He was picked off first by a quick throw by Schang. Paskert walked and Flack stole third. Flack scored on Merkle's single to left. Paskert stopped at second. Hopper got Pick's line drive. ONE RUN. TWO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING.—Boston—Scott got an infield hit, which Deal was only able to knock down. Thomas sacrificed Killefer to Pick. Schang walked. Tyler pitching nothing but wide ones to him. Mays beat out an infield hit, toward third, catching Deal flat footed by bunting. Scott was forced at the plate on Hooper's grounder to Merkle, who threw to Killefer. Schang went to third and Mays to second on the play. Deal knocked down Shean's seemingly safe hit and touched third, forcing out Mays. NO RUNS. TWO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING.—Chicago — Mays tossed out Deal. Killefer was also thrown out by Mays. Shean threw out Tyler. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING—Boston—Strunk flied out to Mann. Hollocher threw out Whiteman. McInnis beat out an infield hit, which Tyler knocked down. The official scorer gave Tyler an error instead of McInnis a hit. Scott flied out to Flack. NO RUNS. NO HITS. ONE ERROR.

SIXTH INNING.—Chicago — Flack walked. Mays lost control of his submarine delivery momentarily. McInnis took Hollocher's grounder and threw to Scott, forcing Flack. Mann forced Hollocher, Mays to Shean. Mann went out stealing, Schang to Shean. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING.—Boston — Paskert took Thomas's high fly back of the middle bag. Schang walked. Mays sent a high fly to Paskert. Schang went out stealing, Killefer to Pick. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNING.—Chicago — The band played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and the crowd stood with bared heads. Mays threw out Paskert at first. Thomas robbed Merkle of a hit, going down back of the bag and making a wonderful stop and equally wonderful throw to first. Mays tossed out Pick. No. RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNING.—Boston—Merkle took Hooper's grounder and touched first. Deal threw out Shean at first. Strunk singled over second. Paskert caught Whiteman's fly. NO RUNS. ONE HIT. NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING.—Chicago—Barber batted in place of Deal. Whiteman came in fast and took Barber's liner off the grass tops and turned a complete somersault. O'Farrel, batting for Killefer, sent a high fly to Scott. McCabe batted for Tyler. Whiteman was withdrawn at this point and Ruth was sent to left field for Boston. Whiteman hurt his neck in making the catch of Barber's drive. McCabe fouled out to Scott. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING.—Boston—Hendrix and O'Farrell became the battery for Chicago, and Zelder went to third base in place of Deal. McInnis flied out to Mann. Scott lofted to Paskert. Thomas also flied out to Paskert. NO RUNS. NO HITS. NO ERRORS.

NINTH INNING.—Chicago—Barber fouled to Thomas. Hollocher flied out to Ruth. Shean threw out Mann at first. NO RUNS. NO. HITS. NO ERRORS.

The Trump Captures Nursery Handicap at Belmont Park.

A surprise in keeping with the order of things at Belmont Park was furnished yesterday when the Beverwyck Stable's The Trump captured the Nursery Handicap for two-year-olds in a rousing finish, with the favorite, Walter M. Jefford's Routledge, in second place and George W. Loft's Futurity candidate, Rodgers, third.

The Trump, which has been beaten frequently in maiden races, was added at the last moment, and, though in with a light weight, was believed to be outclassed by nearly every one of the other youngsters in the field of six. All the way through the six furlongs the issue appeared to be among Routledge, War Marvel, and Rodgers, but when Routledge had disposed of the other two, The Trump came up fast on the outside. It looked as if Ambrose thought he had the race won with Routledge and stopped riding just in time to let The Trump win by a head.

There was a bad odor to the two-horse steeplechase, which the Triple Springs Farm's Reddest was displaced in favoritism by J. Howard Lewis's Max Meadows, a jumper only just out of the maiden class. Reddest furnished the reason when he refused the jump opposite the field stand, cleared it after several attempts, then refused the water jump, and after finally taking that obstacle was pulled up when he balked at the next fence. The stewards ordered that the entry of Reddest be refused in future.

SUN BRIAR IN FAST MILE.

Three-Year-Old Is Timed in 1:34 in Private Trial at Saratoga.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer telegraphed to THE TIMES from Saratoga last night that his three-year-old colt Sun Briar had run a mile against time on the Saratoga track yesterday and had completed the distance in 1:34, which is four-fifths of a second faster than the record made by Roseneath during the recent race meet. The fractional times weregiven as follows: Furlong, 0:11 2-5; quarter, 0:23; three furlongs, 0:33 4-5; half mile, 0:45; five furlongs, 0:57 2-5; six furlongs, 1:09 2-5; seven furlongs, 1:21 1-5; one mile, 1:34.

Word of the time trial was received at the Belmont Park track during the races there, but turfmen were of the opinion that the trial would not be considered official and would not receive the indorsement of the racing authorities.

RECORD TO WAGON BROKEN.

Trotters at Syracuse Clip Five Seconds from 24-Year-Old Mark.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The world's record for teams trotting to wagon was broken twice at the State Fair today in the feature event of another sensational card for the third day of the Grand Circuit.

The old mark of 2:15¼, made twenty-four years ago by Roseleaf and Sallie Simmons, was shattered first when Ernest Jones drove Woodlawn Girl and Hilda Audubon the first heat in 2:12¾. In the second heat A. J. Furbush of Boston, driving W. J. McDonald's Roy Miller and Lucy Van, clipped the mark to 2:10¾ after a whipping finish in which he finished a nose ahead of the Jones pair. The third heat was won by Jones's pair in 2:15¼.

TRUESDELL LEADER OF SENIOR GOLFERS

Nearly all of the veterans stuck to their guns in the second day of the Seniors' Golf Association tournament at the Apawamis Club yesterday. Although requiring a 90 for his second round, W. E. Truesdell, the Garden City man who had an 82 on Tuesday, succeeded in maintaining his lead and as a result won the thirty-six gross prize with a total of 172.

That left Darwin P. Kingsley, with an 89, the eighteen-hole gross winner for Tuesday, while Colonel J. E. Smith of Wilmington, getting round in 86, accounted for yesterday's gross prize. The thirty-six hole net winners in the various classes were: Class A, J. W. Sothern of Siwanoy, 193, 44—149; Class B, W. H. Claflin of Tedesco, 194, 40—154; Class C, J. W. Herbert of Oakland, 197, 44—153; Class D, the Rev. J. Gray Bolton, Philadelphia Cricket, 211, 60—151.

The last named headed the net list on the first day, but, as he took the thirty-six-hole event, it left George Wright of Wollaston as Tuesday's net winner with a card of 90, 16—74. Wright had been tied with Claflin, but the latter took the Class B trophy. There was a tie for yesterday's eighteen-hole net between Thomas E. Kirby of Bedford, 105, 30—75, and C. S. McClellan of Siwanoy, 97, 22—75.

J. F. Morrill, the Wollaston golfer, showed that there was little wrong with his short game by winning the putting competition with a score of 36 for the eighteen holes. Otto Hockmeyer got second prize with 37.

Deep Coat Collars Liked.

Reorders for Fall coats have not started to arrive yet in full volume but, from those few early duplications which are filtering in, manufacturers feel they are able to get something of a line on what the ultimate consumer, on whom the final judgment rests, prefers in the way of coat styles. It has been found that deep pointed collars reaching down in back sometimes as far as the waistline are popular, especially if these collars are of fur. And in this respect, unlike Fall suits, fur trimming is apparently quite highly favored in many sections. Large patch pockets, girdles and deep cuffs are other features most generally sought.

Vests for Women Popular.

Waistcoats for women for wear under suits or over dresses are said to be very well sought in many sections. Many of these vests are made very long, almost coat length. Others, while they are comparatively short in back, taper to a long point in front. Tan flowered poplin silk is a popular material for these garments. There is also a good demand for other heavy silks quite elaborately decorated with allover stitching and hand embroidery. In waistcoats of this sort favorite color combinations are given as rose and green on a yellow background, and blue or gray backgrounds with decorations in subdued gold and red.

Interest in Evening Wraps.

Evening wraps for Fall and Winter are coming in for quite a little attention these days, both in wholesale markets and at retail. Brocaded velvets, metallic cloths, and shiny satins are very much in the limelight. They are made in cape-coat styles as well as in draped cape designs and, if anything, the former is a little the favorite. There are quite a few wraps in which two materials have been very effectively combined. Fringe seems to be more popular than for many years. Such furs as fox, squirrel, Hudson seal, and ermine have been variously used for trimming.

Spring Waist Shades Restricted.

From present indications, manufacturers of waists in this country will go into the Spring season with a more restricted range of colors than has ever been the case before. In line with the conservation ideas of the War Industries Board, the Color Committee of the United Waist League of America has selected seven colors from the 128 contained in the Spring card of the Textile Color Card Association, and these will be recommended to the waist manufacturers of the country as the most adaptable and suitable for the new season. The league's color card, containing the selected hues, will be issued some time next month. At present the Color Committee is working with the silk manufacturers and dyers in an endeavor to obtain a standard shade of each color, and until this result is achieved the identity of the chosen seven is being kept under cover.

Breaking Away from Paris.

Though Paris seems to favor the short skirt, there is no indication so far that this "sensible length," as it has been called, is to be taken up with here to any large extent. The smartest dresses now seen in this country, and those which are most in demand by well dressed women, have skirts of ankle length and taper to a very narrow width at the bottom. Freedom is obtained in some of these by making skirts of all accordion pleats, a feature most prevalent in dresses of navy serge. The full-length skirt is seen not only in dresses but in separate skirts also, and has the world of fashion so by the ears that manufacturers do not believe it is to be discarded in a hurry whatever Paris may do.

Some Drug Prices Higher.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that prices of some drugs have been advanced here in the last week, owing to the depleted stocks. Inquiries have been active, but lack of offerings resulted in a quiet market. Herbs, leaves and seeds closed firmer. Bergamot oil was sharply advanced. There were few price changes in the market for industrial chemicals, the feature of the week being the sharp rise in bleaching powder. Prices of crudes, intermediates and finished dyestuffs are advancing. Dyewoods continue firm at the higher quotations.

Draped Hats for Matrons.

Small hats with plenty of draping on the crowns are being shown here now for wear by matrons. These hats have rolled brims, rolled side or back effects, and are offered both in mushrooms and sailors. The brims are one to two inches wide, and the crowns draped with the fullness to the back or side. In some cases the draping is in the form of a wing or quill effect, and is used as trimming. Jet ornaments, spangles, burnt ostrich and pompons are also used for trimmings. The materials of the hats are velvet and panne velvet, and in some these are combined with beaver.

Gray Goods Sellers Hold Off.

Aside from some trading in voiles and other fine-yarn cloths there was not a great deal of business done in the local market for gray goods yesterday. Here and there some mill "clean ups" were let out, and some selling by second hands of staples was also reported. So far as "regular goods" were concerned, bids for deliveries running from spots to the end of the year did not bring out many. In certain quarters of the market there is a feeling that there will be little change in the situation until after the turn of the month, when a new price period will be entered.

Shoe Season Opening Slowly.

While the women's end is much better than the men's, the best indications are that the Fall retail shoe season is opening slowly. Whether it is the approaching Liberty Loan that is holding business back, or whether it is general motives of economy, dealers are not prepared to say. While there is some complaint on the part of certain women regarding the restriction of styles at the instance of the War Industries Board, no drop in buying is attributed to it. In the case of men's footwear, the reason for reduced buying is more evident. With several hundred thousand men soon to be shod by the Government, there is little need of their buying their own shoes.

Will Have "Drive" for Workers.

The week of Oct. 21 to 26, inclusive, has been set aside by the United States Civil Service Commission as "Federal War Office Workers' Week" in this city. It will make a "drive" for Government employes at an exposition of modern office appliances and equipment that is to be held that week in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory. The commission is seeking applicants to fill thousands of office positions, essential in one way or another to the winning of the war. Representatives of the commission will be at the exposition to explain the urgent needs of the Government in this respect, and to give complete information concerning the various kinds of Federal positions. Opportunity will be afforded applicants to qualify on the spot for the positions that are open.

CROPS DAMAGED BY FROST.

Great Loss to Farmers Up the State and in New England.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—Crops in various sections of New England suffered damage from frost last night and early today. The weather bureau reports showed particularly heavy damage in northern Vermont and New Hampshire. Damage to war gardens in low sections in the vicinity of this city and Lowell, Lawrence, and Andover was also reported.

The frost touched many of the cranberry bogs in the Cape Cod district. Picking started in most cases this week and part of the crop had been harvested. Growers estimate that several thousand barrels were ruined by last night's cold.

Although predicting a bumper grain crop for Massachusetts this year, Commissioner Wilfred Wheeler of the State Department of Agriculture said that the frosts today and those of the early Summer would cut the possible maximum production of other crops to the extent of nearly 20 per cent. "The farming season this year has been one of the shortest in my experience," Mr. Wheeler said. "Sweet corn will be the greatest sufferer, but tomatoes and similar products also are seriously affected."

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Practically all of Western New York was under a blanket of white frost this morning and reports to the Weather Bureau indicate that it reached the stage of "killing frost" in the central and northern part of the State. Except for grapes practically all crops that would suffer from heavy frost have been harvested and the loss probably will not be serious.

ROME, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The first hard frost of the season was experienced in this city and vicinity last night. The mercury went to the freezing point and below in various sections. All vine growths were destroyed and corn and late buckwheat were badly cut in different places.

Butterfield Executor Appeals.

CARMEL, Sept. 11.—Albert Francis Hagar, an executor of the estate of Julia L. Butterfield of Cold Spring, filed an appeal in Putnam County today from Surrogate J. R. Southard's order directing the executors to pay over within thirty days $480,000 to the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., the residuary legatee. Mr. Hagar is preparing for a contest in the higher courts. The Y. M. C. A. has been trying to collect its bequest for five years, but a contest over the will has kept the estate constantly in litigation.

MINERAL BILL PASSED.

Authorizes Government Development of Deposits Needed for War.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—With minor amendments the bill providing for Government stimulation of production and prosecution of the war was passed today by the Senate without a record vote. A similar measure has passed the House and differences now will be adjusted in conference.

The Senate draft authorizes the President to take over and operate undeveloped or insufficiently developed deposits of metals or minerals named in the bill, or mines, smelters or plants which in his opinion are capable of producing minerals needed for the war. The bill also appropriates $50,000,000 to be used as a revolving fund to carry out the purposes of the law and gives the President authority to create one or more corporations to stimulate production and supervise distribution.

Discussion of the measure, which was endorsed by President Wilson, Secretary Lane and Chairman Baruch, of the War Industries Board, began in the Senate Monday. In explaining the purposes of the bill, Senator Henderson, Chairman of the Mines Committee, said it did not affect gold, silver, zinc, copper or lead, but did affect manganese, phosphorus, potassium, radium, mercury and thirty-six other minerals and ores. Powers conferred by the bill terminate two years after peace is declared.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Hard Hit Again, with Less of a Recovery Following—Governments Up.

The sharply opposed movements of speculative stocks, which broke easily on only moderate offerings yesterday afternoon, and the taxable Liberty bonds, which advanced quickly on a very heavy demand, were easily explained on the now familiar ground of insufficient banking support to accommodate speculative operations and the changed status of the Government loans which will be worked if Secretary McAdoo's unexpected recommendation for new tax exemption legislation is adopted. The decline in stocks which have long enjoyed particular attention from big operators brought out little evidence of support; it was the first day since the liquidation by hint from the Money Committee began that a break failed to bring in new buying orders of consequence.

The suggestion from the head of the Treasury Department that the purchaser of $30,000 of the forthcoming issue of Liberty bonds be granted exemption from income taxes, not only on that amount, but on an additional $45,000 worth of the second and third loan, came as a complete surprise to the financial district, even to men who have been in close touch with Washington officials on loan matters. That accounted for the confusion which reigned in the market at the opening. It was obvious that a great many persons with substantial incomes would at once see the wisdom of taking the full amount of Liberty bonds of the three issues from which they could enjoy the full coupon return, and the bidding in a market caught by surprise carried the old issues up very rapidly. By the same token, the exempt 3½'s were rendered relatively less attractive to a large class which can gain the same advantages from the higher interest-bearing issues, and they sold off. The movement was too abrupt to reflect accurately the exact change which will be worked in the investment position of the bonds if Congress accedes to Mr. McAdoo's request.

The final loss registered among issues which are supposed to have figured prominently in collateral loans of late ran from a fraction to five points. Once it became apparent to the professional traders that the old support was not being marshaled to protect these issues, the sellers took courage and put out short lines. Industrial Alcohol and Distillers at once became the target for such selling; the former dropped seven points from the morning price and closed with a net loss of 5, while Distillers broke nearly five points and showed a net decline of 3⅞. Sumatra Tobacco lost 4¼, Baldwin 1⅜, St. Paul 2, General Motors 4, Royal Dutch Petroleum 3⅜, Tobacco Products 2¼ and Steel 1½. Despite the weakness, dealings were on a scale much reduced from those on Tuesday. The news of the sinking of a transport, though fortunately there were no casualties, and the fact that the Exchange will be closed today, made the work of the short sellers more telling.

CONFIDENT TONE IN LONDON.

Traders Awaiting Events on the Western Battlefront.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—With large sales of National War Bonds and a disposition to await events on the western front, dealings on the Stock Exchange today were somewhat smaller, though the tone continued confident. French fives reacted and mines and other specialties were dull.

Money was in good demand and discount rates were quiet.

NEW CLEARING HOUSE RULE.

Will Increase Volume of Checks Passing Through Reserve Bank.

The New York Clearing House Association, at a special meeting held yesterday, adopted an amendment to the constitution prohibiting members, or non-members clearing through members, from paying exchange or other charges in connection with the collection of any item collectible through the Federal Reserve Bank in excess of the charges which would have been paid if such items had been collected through the Federal Reserve Banks.

With the adoption of the amendment it is expected that the volume of checks passing through the collection department of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York will greatly increase, inasmuch as the Clearing House institutions are likely to reduce the number of items now sent to their out-of-town correspondents for collection. In the collection of out-of-town checks the Federal Reserve Banks have an advantage over the correspondent banks by reason of the fact that they make adjustments through the Gold Settlement Fund in Washington, and consequently are in a position to cut by two the time for collecting. In cases where it would take a New York bank four days to collect an out-of-town check, the Federal Reserve Bank can do it in two days, for the moment the check is paid the transfer of funds to the New York member bank is made through the Gold Settlement Fund by wire.

CERTIFICATES IN DEMAND.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—There was an oversubscription of $144,529,500 for the latest offer of Treasury certificates. This is interpreted here to indicate a sound condition of the banks of the country and a general preparedness for the next bond campaign. The oversubscription was the largest yet in the issue of Treasury certificates. Ten of the twelve Federal Reserve banks oversubscribed.

The aggregate of subscriptions for certificates to date in anticipation of the Fourth Liberty Loan is $3,404,071,000. The subscriptions for the last biweekly offer were:

BOND EXEMPTION BILL TO BE SPEEDED

NO OPPOSITION IN SIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The request of Secretary McAdoo for immediate legislation to exempt a limited amount of the interest from Liberty bonds from taxation will receive the prompt attention of both houses of Congress. The Ways and Means Committee of the House has been called to meet tomorrow by Chairman Kitchin, at which time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Leffingwell will explain the reasons why the measure is necessary in order to popularize the next Liberty Loan issue.

Mr. Kitchin hopes to be able to report the bill to the House immediately after Mr. Leffingwell has finished his statement, and to close the general debate on the $8,000,000,000 Revenue bill tomorrow, so that the bond exemption measure may be passed by the House on Friday. Debate on the Revenue bill probably will continue for another week.

Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, announced that he would hold his committee in readiness to meet just as soon as the bill came from the House. So far, no definite opposition to the measure has been manifested in either Senate or House.

Mr. Kitchin estimates that passage of the bill desired by Secretary McAdoo for the protection of Liberty bond investors will make a difference in the total yield from the pending Revenue bill of about $50,000,000. No amendment or revision of the bill will be necessary, however, he explained, because the bill already provides for considerably more than $8,000,000,000, and the margin is sufficient to take care of the diminution caused by the removal of surtaxes from Liberty bond incomes.

The debate on the Revenue bill in the House continued throughout the day, the speakers including Representatives Sterling of Illinois and Sloan of Nebraska, Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee. They announced that they agreed with the main provisions of the bill, but criticised the failure of the majority to provide for raising a portion of the revenue by increasing the tariff duties.

Mr. Sterling said that if the Republicans had been in a majority on the committee "import duties would have been raised to a point where they would yield considerably more money and would have proven a protection to the United States in the period after the war." He also criticised the bill because it did not contain a provision for a tax of 1 per cent. on retail merchandise sales. He said that about $3,000,000,000 could be raised in this manner without hurting business.

"Every time a dollar's worth of groceries was purchased, for example, $1.01 could be paid to the grocer," he said. "For a $40 suit of clothes $40.40 would be paid. If a farmer sold his horse for $200 he would collect $202."

Mr. Sloan directed the attention of the House to the fact that Great Britain was collecting 13 per cent. of its revenue by import duties, Canada 58 per cent., and the United States only 6.38 per cent. He said this percentage in respect to the United States was entirely too low, and that with the largest importations in the history of the country the collections at the custom houses were the lowest.

The need for a committee to supervise all war expenditures was also emphasized by Mr. Sloan. He said the Hog Island scandal and what he called the great waste of money appropriated for airplanes would not have occurred had there been a responsible committee created by Congress to examine and inspect all such expenditures.

Mr. Klaw. The public, he said, took a long time to become accustomed to the 10 per cent. tax. Theatres, in the meantime, suffered through lack of attendance. The direct effect of the 10 per cent. tax on theatres, he said, was to reduce attendance by 10 per cent.

"If you close the theatres, you shut off an important part of Government propaganda," argued Mr. Klaw. "You need the theatres in wartime. The people must have relaxation. In France and England they are encouraged. Germany has subsidized theatres. In Berlin alone seventy-eight theatres are practically supported by the Government."

"The Kaiser urged keeping theatres open to keep up the morale of the people," said Mr. Savage. "Germany realizes the importance of the theatre in wartime. If our enemy believes in it we might give it some thought ourselves."

Mr. Klaw spoke of the new draft as "hitting the theatres hard."

"Not only will there be a further falling off in attendance, but our playing forces will be depleted," he said. "Actors will have to go into the army, many of them. The married ones in many cases will not be able to claim exemption, as their wives are self-supporting. The theatres have been put to great expense in increases of salaries for the performers. In every way our expenses have gone up, while the receipts have fallen off."

The average yearly amounts spent by individuals in America in theatre-going is $5, Mr. Klaw said. It is not the theatregoer buying the high-priced seats who supports the theatre, he said, but the "gallery god" and the holder of the balcony seat. When the new draft comes, many of this faithful following will disappear into the camp.

"England and France have the men on furlough to swell the crowds at the theatres," he said. "We are more than 3,000 miles away from the front and have no such support to rely upon."

Mr. Ames told of a project just agreed upon by which 200 American actors of the highest type are to provide entertainment for American soldiers in France. Mr. Ames went abroad some weeks ago, he said, with a representative of the actors, to confer with General Pershing, who had suggested the scheme. The General had impressed the necessity of providing entertainment for the soldiers. When Mr. Ames returned, arrangements were made by which the Y. M. C. A. would provide two-thirds of the cost of sending the actors to France and keeping them there, while the other third of the expense would be borne by the producers. Already fifty actors had gone abroad under this scheme.

Mr. Ames argued that any further tax on theatre tickets was bound to seriously cripple the playhouses of the entire country.

BIG LIBERTY BOND SALES.

Second and Third Issues Materially Advance, While First Declines.

The announcement that Secretary McAdoo had recommended to Congress that the outstanding 4 and 4¼ per cent. Liberty bonds, as well as the bonds of the forthcoming loan, have certain tax-exemption privileges stimulated activity in these issues at the opening of the Stock Exchange yesterday. During the first fifteen minutes of trading the second 4s advanced slightly more than 3½ points. These bonds sold up from 95.40 to 98, the highest price touched this year. The second 4¼s made a similar gain, also selling at 98, a new high record.

The greater part of the early gains were lost during the afternoon as a result of profit taking. The day's total transactions in Liberty bonds amounted to $10,116,000. The net gains for the day ranged from 54 to 116 Liberty bond points in the case of the 4s and the 4¼s.

The absolutely tax-exempt 3½ per cent. bonds of the first Liberty Loan, which recently sold up to 102⅛, were weak. The high quotation for the day was 101.14 and the closing 100.64, a net loss of .70. With the added tax-exemption privileges of the 4s and the 4¼s, it was figured that the value of the 3½s decreased relatively, inasmuch as persons owning $80,000 worth of the higher rate bonds could obtain from them the same tax-exemption advantages as from a similar amount of the 3½s.

	High.	Low.	Last.	Change.
First 3½s	101.16	100.10	100.64	— .70
First 4s	95.76	95.20	95.74	+ .54
Second 4s	98.00	95.40	95.60	+1.04
First 4¼s	95.76	95.20	95.76	+ .56
Second 4¼s	98.00	95.40	95.66	+1.16

While the 4 per cent. and 4¼ per cent. Liberty bonds were moving forward with rapidity the general stock market was passing through a decided movement in the opposite direction. Among the active speculative issues, including American Sumatra Tobacco, General Motors, Distillers Securities, Mexican Petroleum, and Tobacco Products, net losses running from 2 to more than 4 points were recorded. Even common sold off 1½ points and some of the railroad issues, notably Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, and Northern Pacific, developed noticeable weakness.

The decline of stocks was a continuation of the tendency of recent days. In the Street the lack of demand when stocks were offered was interpreted as a reflection of the effort of the banks to restrict speculation. The sales of substantial lines of stocks held in speculative accounts were thought to be the product of the current movement to curtail bank loans for stock market purposes. The market was only moderately active, the turnover of less than 400,000 shares being smaller than on each of several days last week.

CONDEMN TAX ON TICKETS.

Managers Say Doubling Rate Would Deal Theatres a Ruinous Blow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A protest against the contemplated 20 per cent. tax on theatre tickets in the new $8,000,000,000 Revenue bill was made today by Marc Klaw, Henry W. Savage, and Winthrop Ames, representing theatre owners and play producers. They told the Senate Finance Committee the existing tax of 10 per cent. had dealt theatres a heavy blow in attendance, and that to double the tax would be ruinous.

"Instead of yielding a greater return to the Government, the proposed 20 per cent. tax would close many theatres, thereby reducing the yield," declared Mr. Ames, "and would be a long step toward the elimination of the spoken drama."

CHANGE SHIPPING RULES.

War Board Announces New Import and Export Regulations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The War Trade Board today revoked all outstanding licenses for the importation of mahogany logs and mahogany lumber as to ocean shipment after Sept. 15. Hereafter no licenses for their importation will be issued except to cover such shipments as the Director of Lumber of the War Industries Board shall certify as suitable and necessary for Government use.

The board, in a new ruling, has authorized the importation of fresh tomatoes from the Bahamas to New York when moved as deck cargoes upon the Cuba-New York mail steamers. Fruits and vegetables are on the list of restricted imports, but in this as in similar cases, the War Trade Board have found it possible to aid a vital West Indies industry without affecting the general tonnage situation, since the tomatoes in question can be carried as deck loads without excluding other more essential cargo without imposing any further demands upon tonnage. Licenses will be issued for these shipments up to Dec. 31.

The War Trade Board, in another new ruling, has placed animal hair, other than horse hair, hair of the angora goat, camel and other like animals on the list of restricted imports. All outstanding licenses for these importations have been revoked as to ocean shipments from abroad after Sept. 15 and no new licenses will be issued except for ocean shipments from abroad made before Sept. 15.

The board has further restricted the importation of furs not on the skin, prepared for hatters' use, including furs, carroted. All outstanding licenses for importation of these commodities have been revoked as to ocean shipments made after Sept. 15.

By a new ruling of the board applicants for licenses to import wooled or pickled sheepskins are required to furnish to the Bureau of Imports of the board, before licenses may be granted, an agreement not to sell the skins so imported at a price in excess of the price fixed by the Price Fixing Committee. The board has authorised the import of hides and skins from the East Coast of South America, purchased before June 15, but which the importer has not been able to bring into this country on account of the restrictions upon imports.

ASKS ADJUDICATION OF RAIL CONTRACT

MANY STATES REPRESENTED

Resolutions Declare Government's Draft to be "Unsatisfactory and Unacceptable."

The Financial Committee of Seventy of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, at a meeting held yesterday at the Recess Club, adopted a resolution declaring the Government's draft of the railroad contract to be "unsatisfactory and unacceptable," and authorizing the association's counsel to make to Director General McAdoo a proposal for "co-operation in securing an adjudication upon the questions at issue."

Forty-seven of the seventy members of the Financial Committee attended yesterday's meeting. They represented twenty-three cities and sixteen States. A joint report of the Sub-Executive Committee of the association and the special committee, covering the work of the committees, was read and adopted. This report, covering sixteen pages, gave in detail the changes made in the various drafts of the contract. After a full discussion of the report and operations of the two committees, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, It appears from the report, this day submitted to this meeting by the special committee of this association having in charge the negotiation of the standard form of operating contract between the Government and the roads, under the Federal Control act, that many important changes favorable to the roads and the security holders have been secured, as set forth and enumerated in the report, through the efforts of the special committees; and

Whereas, It further appears from said report that the special committees have, notwithstanding such changes, resolved that the present standard form of contract which the Director General has tendered the carriers as the final offer of the Railroad Administration is unsatisfactory and unacceptable in certain vital and fundamental particulars set forth in said report; and

Whereas, This committee is advised that the Government representatives have insisted upon the retention of such objectionable provisions in said contract on the ground that upon their construction the Federal Control act the Government is in effect required to make such demands, from which construction this committee emphatically dissents; and

Whereas, The said report and the recommendations therein by the special committee of the association have been fully considered by this committee in connection with all the outstanding facts affecting the situation;

Now, therefore, be it resolved,

(1) The said report and recommendations are hereby accepted and approved.

(2) In order that there may be no possible disturbance of credit or in the plans of the Government resulting from the differences that have arisen on questions of law as outlined in the report, the special committees are hereby requested through counsel to make to the Director General a proposal on the lines of said report for co-operation in securing an adjudication upon the questions at issue and to offer meantime that the contract in its present form be executed by the carriers other than the carrier with respect to which such adjudication is to be asked, and to further offer that if the decision is adverse to the security holders the controversy be deemed ended; provided that if and to the extent and upon the point or points that the decision is adverse to the Government, all contracts made with the roads shall be amended to conform to the decision.

(3) Resolved that the special committees report back to this committee.

It appears that the committee does not intend to proceed with a test suit in the courts unless Mr. McAdoo indicates his willingness that such a test be made. In the event that he does not agree to the proposal, the special committee and its counsel will report back and await further action by the Financial Committee.

INTERBORO IS ORDERED TO OPERATE MORE CARS

Service Board Says That Company's Present Service Is "Inadequate, Insufficient, and Improper."

The New York Railways Company was directed yesterday to operate its cars in future according to the schedules filed with the commission and to file new schedules which will enable the company to supply adequate daylight service. This order is the principal result of the effort of John C. Cobb, one of the company's Directors, to stop all of the surface cars from midnight to 6 o'clock in the morning.

In its order the commission states that the "service and practice of the company during evening and night hours are "inadequate, insufficient, and improper." If the existing schedules are strictly observed it will mean that about 30 per cent. more cars will be operated by the company. In reference to the day-time service of the company the commission declared that the company "does not run its cars with sufficient regularity or frequency and does not have or maintain reasonable time schedules for the runs upon various of its lines from 6 A. M. to 6 P. M." Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the company, said that to operate the cars on the present schedules would require 600 additional men.

"We are doing all we can to get these men," he added. "We have been scouring the country for them, and the work offered ought to appeal to men seeking permanent work at fair wages. There need be no fear that any of the new employes, providing they are competent, will be replaced by men now fighting for the flag, because we are constantly increasing the service and there will be steady work for all."

The five days given the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to say whether it would comply with the new running schedules of subways prepared by the Public Service Commission expires today. Mr. Hedley would not say what the action of the company would be, but intimated that if the men needed for the work could be procured the new schedules would be lived up to. Asked if those in the company's employ who wanted to observe Yom Kippur would be excused, Mr. Hedley replied:

"The Jews in our employ who insist upon leaving work on Monday will find their jobs waiting for them on Tuesday. But of course we don't want any more men to quit work than can be avoided."

Vice President John J. Dempsey of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company made a similar statement.

New Listing on Stock Exchange.

The Committee on Stock List of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday admitted the following securities to listing on the exchange:

Marlin-Rockwell Corporation—voting trust certificates representing 56,675 shares of stock without par value, with authority to add similar trust certificates representing 12,991 shares of stock on official notice of issuance on conversion of the corporation's two-year convertible 6 per cent. notes; and with authority to add similar certificates representing 11,470 shares upon notice.

Pacific Railroad Company—$20,000,000 of ten-year 6 per cent secured notes, due July 1, 1928.

COTTON PRICES DECLINE IN A LIFELESS MARKET

Activity in December Contracts the Only Feature of the Session —Net Loss 10 to 70 Points.

Save for the activity in December contracts, which continues to be the surprising feature of the current cotton market, there was very little life in the session yesterday. This abnormal situation is generally referred to the shipping situation, with the minor influence of some other factors, such as the general indication of a very late crop owing to labor shortage. In any case, whereas in normal years the October contract at this season would be easily the market leader, the volume of business in December yesterday was more than double that in October, and greater than in all other months combined.

It was, on the whole, a weak and sagging market. The advance of the previous day had sufficed to eliminate most of the local short interest, and left the market open to fresh selling by the floor traders. The weekly weather report, although bullish, and offering the excuse for the only sign of strength, which took prices back a trifle above Tuesdays' close, was on the whole less unfavorable than had been expected, and prices soon went off again. The opening was at declines of 20 to 47 points, and the close ranged from 10 to 70 points off, the active months ranging around 30 points down.

The New York Cotton Exchange will be closed today.

Justice Donnelly Restrains Mount Vernon from Licensing News dealers.

Supreme Court Justice Donnelly yesterday granted an injunction applied for in behalf of the Hearst newspapers restraining the municipal authorities of Mount Vernon from enforcing the ordinance passed recently requiring all newsdealers to be licensed and to give notice of the names of the newspapers and publications they intend to sell. The plaintiff's contention was that the ordinance attempted to accomplish the same object as a previous ordinance barring the sale of Hearst newspapers in Mount Vernon, and alleged that the action of the authorities was not in good faith.

Justice Donnelly based his decision partly on the ground taken by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich in deciding that the previous ordinance was unconstitutional.

SMALL STEEL MEN SEEK SPECIAL RATES

PRICE CONFERENCE SOON

Ordinary Consumer's Chance of Getting Material Expected to Grow Steadily Less.

With the time approaching for the Government and the steel producers to establish a new price schedule for the last quarter of the year, steel and iron makers are holding daily conferences in regard to the negotiations. The conference will be held at Washington next week, subsequent to a meeting in this city next Monday when final details of the manufacturers' position will be prepared for submission to the Federal Price Fixing Committee of the War Industries Board. It is expected that numerous advances will be asked over prices which have been in effect since last June.

"Smaller producers are more outspoken in calling for a separation of their case from that of the integrated companies." The Iron Age says. "Yet they are not ready to have the Government take over all output at differential prices. Neither Government nor steel trade wants to open that door.

"There has been some surprise over information that the Lake Superior iron ore producers, whose prices were put up 45 cents per ton in June, are now asking another advance. Their claim is that the 35 cents increase in rail freight and the last 10 per cent. added to wages have used up the June increment. Owners of some of the smaller underground mines in particular are urging their need of a higher price on next year's ore to cover dead work which must be undertaken in the coming Winter.

"The vast scale of the plans for the offensive in France appears in weekly calls for more steel. The distribution of 34,000 tons of barb wire for the Government is just completed, with 22,000 tons for France in abeyance, when larger war demands for this product came up than thave been considered at any time thus far. In the Cleveland district the placing of 10,000,000 additional shell forgings is one indication of the tremendous recent enlargement of the munitions program. The ordinary consumer's chance of getting steel, judged solely by the developments of the last week, will grow steadily less in the final quarter of the year."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"There is a well defined expectation in some quarters that the Government, in fixing schedules for the final three months of the year, may recognize price inequalities in certain lines and make allowances accordingly. Interest especially has been turned upon pig iron, where the widening gap in production costs in various districts has become a more insistent factor. The Steel Corporation is in the market for 40,000 tons of first quarter basic for two eastern plants."

NATION IS FACING GASOLINE SHORTAGE

Garfield Tells Senate That Stocks on Atlantic Seaboard Are at Low Level.

OUTPUT IS DIMINISHING

California Yield Had to be Tapped to Make Up Deficit—Gasless Sundays a Necessity.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A serious gasoline shortage exists, both as to home use and shipment abroad, according to the data furnished the Senate today by Fuel Administrator Garfield in response to the Lodge resolution, passed by that body earlier in the week, seeking the facts. The figures, compiled by the Oil Division of the Bureau of Statistics, indicate a reserve supply only for thirty days.

Mr. Garfield says the daily stocks are constantly diminishing owing to the heavy war demand. Since April 1 last, when production was at the highest point for the year, there has been a decrease in reserves of 4,119,000 barrels of oil. There has been a daily deficit in production, according to the Bureau of Statistics, of 6,000 barrels since April 1, indicating a yearly deficit of approximately 2,000,000 barrels.

To make up the shortage in production in Eastern fields, it has been necessary, the Fuel Administrator says, to tap the California yield, which has fallen off in exactly the same proportion as that in the East. The Fuel Administrator speaks of gas stocks on the Atlantic seaboard, for shipment abroad, being "at a particularly low level." The problem of low stocks throughout the country, he says, affects the entire gasoline situation, intimating that it was this that made "gasless Sunday" necessary.

Here is the data supplied the Senate, affecting the stocks in the East and in California:

TERRITORY EAST OF CALIFORNIA.

	Barrels.
Gasoline and naphtha stocks, 1918—
Jan. 1	8,400,000
Aug. 1	7,800,000
Estimated daily production and consumption:
	Barrels.
Approximate daily consumption—
Domestic	160,000
Export	34,000
Total daily consumption	194,000
Approximate daily production	191,000
Average daily deficit	3,000
(Probable result for year ending Dec. 31, 1918.)

These figures would indicate a deficit for the year of about 1,000,000 barrels. This may be materially increased by war demands.

The above figures must be read with the understanding that gasoline is a seasonal product, with the maximum consumption comprehended in the period April to September, inclusive, and with the peak load coming in the months of June, July, and August. Records for the months of April, May, and June, combined, show the following: (July and August are not yet entirely complete:)

	Barrels.
Approx. daily average consumption—
Domestic	199,000
Export	37,000
Total	236,000
Approx. daily average production	216,000
Daily deficit, April, May, June	20,000

The total reduction in stocks of gasoline and naphtha during the month of July was approximately 1,367,000 barrels—or 44,000 barrels a day—with the peak load just ahead in August.

It is estimated that August will show a reduction in stocks of close to 2,000,000 barrels, or 65,000 barrels daily deficit. With the August reduction in stocks materializing, reserves would be brought down to a point not exceeding thirty days' supply.

To meet this very unsatisfactory stock condition, 250 cars of gasoline have just been purchased in California and are moving eastward, with the expectation that more will be purchased in the future.

Stocks of crude petroleum are constantly declining, and kerosene and fuel oil supplies are unsatisfactory, all of which bears an intimate relation to the gasoline problem.

The movement of crude petroleum and its products is of necessity eastward to the Atlantic seaboard points for export and to supply war needs in the Atlantic territory. Gasoline stocks on the Atlantic seaboard available for export have been recently at a particularly low level.

CALIFORNIA TERRITORY.

	Barrels.
Gasoline and naphtha stocks—
Stocks on hand, Jan. 1, 1918	1,502,000
Stocks on hand March 1, 1918	1,787,000
Stocks on hand Aug. 1, 1918	848,000
Total decrease from high point	919,000
Daily production, consumption, and export, first half of 1918:
Approximate daily consumption:
Domestic	29,000
Export	2,000
Total	31,000
Approximate daily production	28,000
April, May, and June, 1918, approximate daily consumption:
Domestic	33,000
Export	2,000
Total	35,000
Approximate daily production	27,000
Daily deficit	8,000

After the figures had been read to the Senate, Senator Lodge offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling upon the Bureau of Mines to supply information as to the quantity of oil estimated in the fields throughout the country.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,807 packages. Considerably more stock is coming in and the trade is better supplied than heretofore. There is, however, a fair demand and values are firmly maintained, but without material change so far as the table grades are concerned. Ladles and packing stock have gained another half cent. Creamery, higher than extra, a pound, 53½@54c; extras, 92 score, 53c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 49@53½c; seconds, 85 to 87 score, 46@48½c; thirds, 43@44½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 55@55½c; extras, 54@54½c; firsts, 51@53½c; seconds, 47@50c; State dairy tubs, finest, 51½@52c; good to prime, 49@51c; common to fair, 41@48c; renovated, extras, 45@45½c; firsts, 43@44c; lower grades, 39@ 42c; imitation creamery, firsts, 41@42c; ladles, current make, firsts, 38½@39½c; seconds, 37@37½c; lower grades, 35@36½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 37c; No. 2, 36@36½c; lower grades, 33@35½c.

EGGS.—15,883 cases. The market is generally quiet and on the bulk of the supply decidedly sluggish with stocks accumulating and prices tending in sellers' favor. On actual inspections of grade we can make no material change in the range of quotations, but many lots are selling lower than obtained recently for the same quality, sometimes as much as 1@2c below prices obtained a week ago. Storage eggs are in good demand and firm, sales are at somewhat irregular prices owing to the variations in stocks of similar or like quality, but some trading in some fancy goods has been effected a little above previous top quotations. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality are generally reported sustained with a moderate demand, but buyers are very critical. Most of the supply is more or less defective and the ordinary and undergrades are pressed for sale at a wide range of comparatively low prices with a very slow movement. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 51@52c; extra firsts, 48@50c; firsts, 44@47c; seconds and poorer, 32@43c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 37@39c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@36c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@35c; undergrades, 28@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 43@44½c; firsts, charges paid, 42½@ 43½c; seconds, charges paid, 40@42c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 64@68c; ordinary to prime, 45@63c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@63c; Pacific Coast whites, firsts to finest, 60@62c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 42@60c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 54@56c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 40@52c.

TEXAS COMPANY EARNS INCOME OF $34,873,402

Gain of $11,965,478, Although Additions to Reserve Funds Increased More Than Fourfold.

The Texas Company set aside from its earnings in the 1918 year various reserve funds to a total more than four times the corresponding sums the year before and still showed an increase in its profits. The annual statement, issued yesterday, displayed gross earnings amounting to $80,260,633, an increase of $25,921,783 over 1917. The fiscal year ended June 30. Expenses and taxes absorbed $45,387,231, against $31,431,126, leaving a net income of $34,873,402, in contrast with $22,907,924 in the preceding year.

The reserve, totaling $14,232,411, comprised $5,297,088 added to sinking fund and depreciation, $1,340,940 added to reserve for replacement of marine equipment and $7,468,184 as an additional provision for taxes, which was over and above the year's direct tax allowance. The sum of $125,298 was set aside for doubtful accounts. The balance of earnings amounted to $20,640,991, equal to $29.75 per share of stock, compared with $55.54 earned the year before on a smaller amount of stock. The balance available for dividends in the previous fiscal period was $19,724,526.

The management added more than $14,000,000 to the surplus account, making the total profit and loss account at the end of the year $54,667,429. The balance sheet showed oil inventories aggregating $53,119,254 at the close of the year, compared with $40,178,773 twelve months before. Cash totaled $8,244,630 and the sinking fund and depreciation reserves amounted to $29,245,830, in contrast with $15,189,900 at the end of the preceding fiscal year.

WILL SELL PLANT OF GERMAN CONCERN

Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company Had Thrived Here in Making Mining Machinery.

The assets of the Orenstein-Arthur-Koppel Company, manufacturers of mining machinery, representing an original investment of $1,400,000, will be sold at auction today by the Alien Property Custodian. This concern is the first of the large German-owned corporation taken over by the Alien Property Custodian to be placed on the auction block. According to the announcement of the sale made yesterday by A. Mitchell Palmer, the auction will take place in front of the company's plant at Koppel, Penn., under the supervision of Joseph F. Guffey, Director of the Bureau of Sales.

Only American citizens will be permitted to bid for the purchase of shares in the company. The proceeds will be invested in Liberty Bonds. The sale will cause the transformation of the company from a 100 per cent German-owned concern to a 100 per cent American business corporation.

The Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company is a branch of the Arthur Koppel Aktiengesellschaft, a German corporation with its headquarters in Berlin. It is engaged in the manufacture of mining machinery, coal cars, and transportation construction material of almost every description. Much material of this character has been supplied to the United States and British Governments.

Included in the sale of the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company will be a number of subsidiary companies which it owns. They are the Koppel Land Company, the Beaver Connecting Railroad Company, the Koppel Water Company, the Koppel Sales Company, of Koppel, Penn.; the Pennsylvania Car and Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh and the Universal Railway Products Company, of New York.

The plant of the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company consists of an erecting shop, machine shop, forge shop, car shop, woodworking shop, track shop, power buildings, works office building and central office building. The company also owns forty-nine houses, a hotel building, about 450 acres of land and about 700 platted lots. In addition to its plant at Koppel, the company owns a large warehouse at Willow Avenue and Seventeenth Street, Hoboken, which also will be included in the sale.

The history of the concern, according to the investigators of the Alien Property Custodian, furnishes an "excellent example of the German pre-war methods in obtaining a foothold in an essential American industry, an industry from which valuable military information was obtained and sent to Germany." About ten years ago the Orenstein & Koppel-Arthur Koppel Aktiengesellschaft, a German corporation with its principal office in Berlin, organized a branch in this country under the laws of Pennsylvania, calling it the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company.

The company established itself at Koppel, which is about thirty-five miles from Pittsburgh. As the business of the company grew, the subsidiary companies were established in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and San Francisco. The parent concern in Germany had many branches and plants in South American countries, Cuba and Mexico, and also in Africa, England and Russia. The establishment of a branch plant in this country was calculated to complete the chain that eventually would give the Germans practically a world control of this particular industry.

In this country the enterprise met with remarkable success. The Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company installed light railway equipment in practically all American munition plants, steel plants and kindred concerns. It had contracts with the Westinghouse Company, with the United States Steel Corporation, with the Du Pont Works and with nearly half of the big industrial plants operating in this country.

In view of these conditions, the investigators of the office of the Alien Property Custodian reached the conclusion that the directors of this German-owned concern must have found it easy to supply information of military importance to the German Government regarding the industrial and munition plants in this country. The American business was conducted by a committee composed of Arthur Riche, Karl Hansen, and Eric Joseph, all of them German subjects, now interned.

The Orenstein-Arthur Koppel Company was taken over by the Alien Property Custodian several months ago. Since then it has been operated as an American concern, under the supervision of T. Hart Given.

On Friday, Sept. 13, the Alien Property Custodian will sell the 20 per cent. enemy interest in the H. Koppers Company of Pittsburgh, designers and builders of coke ovens. This interest is owned by Heinrich Koppers, now in Germany. The H. Koppers Company is capitalized at $1,500,000. The par value of the enemy stock to be sold is $300,000. The sale will take place in Pittsburgh.

LIQUOR MEN OBJECT TO MILITARY ZONE

Assemblyman McCue Says They Alone Are Selling Liquor to Uniformed Men—Protest Against Prohibition.

Members of the New York Retail Liquor Dealers' Association, whose places of business are south of Fourteenth Street, Manhattan, to the number of between 2,000 and 3,000, met in the old Atlantic Garden in the Bowery yesterday afternoon to declare war on the "bootleggers" in their territory and to protest against declaring that part of Manhattan Island, which includes the new court house site, where soldiers are in barracks, a military zone where no intoxicating liquors may be sold. C. J. Reilly, State Organizer of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association, presided. Incidentally the meeting unanimously approved the suggestion that the President of the State organization send to all New York Congressmen a protest against the prohibition legislation pending in Congress.

"We do not desire to stir up any sectional strife," the protest read, "for we feel that all sections of the country should co-operate together in order that the cause of liberty may live; but we think that members of Congress from Southern communities are doing this very thing by their persistent and continuous agitation for prohibition in communities to which such legislation is absolutely obnoxious. We feel that these members could better show their patriotism by agreeing that the price of cotton, the great staple commodity so necessary for human existence and the prosecution of the war, be fixed by act of Congress."

The protest also made inquiry if the prohibition members of Congress would enact legislation "to relieve us from leases on real estate, on which we shall continue to be liable after the proposed prohibition legislation becomes effective." And "will these Congressmen please inform the American people why the grain which we are forbidden to use in the manufacture of distilled spirits and beer is exported to our allies to be used by them for the very purposes forbidden to us?" Furthermore, will prohibition Congressmen "see to it that no coal exported from the United States is used in breweries or distilleries of the allied nations?" And, above all, "will they enact legislation providing for the return to us of the taxes which we have paid on the liquors which they now threaten to prevent us from selling? If they do not refund this money we feel that they have obtained it under false pretenses."

Prolonged and vigorous applause greeted the reading of these passages from the protest. Then Assemblyman Martin B. McCue of the Twelfth District, which takes in the Grand Central terminal, sailed into the "bootleggers" and the licensed saloon keeper who sold liquor to soldiers or sailors in uniform.

"Any of you men who are caught doing so dastardly a thing," he said, "will be severely punished, but not anywhere near as severely as you ought to be. See to it that the man in his country's uniform not only can't get any intoxicating liquors in your place, but make it your business to see that he can't get it anywhere else. And here and now I appeal to William B. Joyce of the Bartenders' Union, who sits on this platform, to bring about such a sentiment among the members of his organization that not one will serve a soldier or sailor with a drop of intoxicating liquor.

"To sell liquor to a man who is helping to make the world safe for democracy is not only an offense against the National Government, but it is an offense to the fathers and mothers of those boys who would go through hell for their country and their flag. Drive every 'bootlegger' from New York. Let every member of this organization constitute himself a policeman to see that this law is not violated or evaded."

Captain T. N. Pfeiffer, U. S. A., of the War Camps Activities Service had a good word to say for the New York saloon keeper. Generally speaking, the Captain said, he believed that the licensed saloon keepers of New York were obeying the law. Ex-Congressman M. F. Farley, M. J. Jennings, and William B. Joyce of the Bartenders' Benevolent and Protective Association were other speakers.

Eight Billion Dollars

Or to be exact $8,182,492,000 Revenue

THAT'S more money than is now in circulation in the U. S. A. That makes Rockefeller's millions sound like small change. There isn't room in my check-book, on the dotted line after the dollar sign, to write this figure!

But you and I—and all the rest of us over here—are going to get together and raise this amount to help our boys "over there," return Belgium to King Albert, Alsace-Lorraine to France, and move General Pershing to Berlin.

Most of us have got to begin to save NOW in order to have the money ready for Uncle Sam when the payments are due.

Under these conditions, no man can afford to pay more than is necessary to get what he needs.

Dr. Garfield left it to your conscience last Sunday about wasting gas and running your car—and it was all that was necessary. I'm going to do the same thing in regard to saving money in buying a hat, and put it right up to you!

But I want to tell you one thing. Your conscience won't have to get permission of your pocketbook to buy one of my hats—because I have got a hat good enough for anybody, and you can have any felt hat or derby in my store for $2.85.

Do you save or waste on clothes?

THE ANSWER to that question is—You do; one or the other; save or waste. We can tell you how to do one and not the other; save, not waste.

Every patriotic man wants to serve in any and every way he can; there are ways to serve even in the matter of clothes-buying.

1 Dont buy any if you have clothes that will do; some men have plenty.

2 Take such care of your clothes; keep them cleaned, pressed, hung up carefully when not in use; make them last longer.

3 If you find it necessary to buy, be sure of good quality; get clothes that last long and look well, so that next season you wont need to buy new ones.
